Will the county support tax for education?

by Bert Seaman

Would you be willing to pay more taxes to support the county's educational system? Nine of 13 people the Reporter talked to said "yes."

The proposal to add an extra five mills to the 12 mills in property tax that now goes to education, was made at last week's board of education

According to Superintendent of Education Ellie Glasscox, there are $13 million worth of building needs in the Shelby County school system.

"We can see no way," he told the board and audience, "to finance the vast majority of them."
This year's $26,709,003 budget only allows

$2,125,206 for capital outlay. The additional tax would bring in an estimated $1.5 million. A mill equals one tenth of a cent, and the extra five mills would represent an annual property tax increase of about $19 on a home valued at $50,000.

One of the people polled by the Reporter concerning the additional tax, said he wouldn't vote for any kind of tax increase. He declined to give his name. Don Threadgill of Alabaster was also opposed. He said it was his feeling the money now going to education could be used more efficiently.

Two of those queried said they would have to give the matter some thought.

All of the board present at Tuesday's meeting voted in favor of the increase -- which will be decided by a referendum next year. (Board member Dr. Bill Fancher was absent).

Glasscox said the vote would probably be held sometime during the first three months of 1984.

A large group of supporters of the tax increase were present at the Tuesday meeting. They were residents of the Thompson school district who have been at several board meetings asking for a new high school.

Although the superintendent reported that $250,000 has been set aside for the purchase of land, no decision has yet been made on where it will be. Alabaster and Inverness were the two areas mentioned. Other needs Glasscox listed in the new budget include: $40,000 to correct problems in the sewer system at Vincent Elementary; $15,000 for paving at Elvin Hill; $2,500 for paving at Calera High School; $35,000 for building improvements at Shelby County High School.

He also noted that $403,500 is still due on the new elementary school at Inverness and that the cost of 22 new buses will amount to $550,000.

No buses had been ordered last year because of pro-ration, so the school system is playing catchup this year.

Elvin Hill first graders Wesley Joiner and Jessica Parker were 'caught dirty handed' participating in the Shelby County High Junior Civitans' fingerprinting service project last Thursday. Besides students at the elementary school, the club also provided fingerprinting ID service to SCHS. Help-

Those Alabamians who were awake on October 25 at 7:30 a.m., knew very little about this country's military invasion of Grenada.

Those who did know something about it knew only what was reported on television.

But at least one Shelby Countian knew as much about what was happening far across the ocean as the Americans in Grenada.

Sue Pritchard, age 32, of Oak Mountain Lake Road, listened to her ham radio for almost 26 hours as St. George Medical College students talked to other ham operators and the U.S. State Department.

"It was real exciting," said the University of Alabama electrical engineering student. She knew from the beginning she was hearing students caught in the middle students in Grenada had recorded eight hours of it.

She even heard a broadcast from the U.S. State Department tell the Grenada students, "The Cavalry comes at dark" and "to hit the deck."

Did she actually talk to them? "No. I have amateur radio privileges but this was an emergency situation and no one was supposed to talk unless they could help the situation. Other ham operators did talk to Grenada, relaying vital informa-

"But they couldn't go to the telephone for fear of being hit by stray bullets, Pritchard said. "So... they just laid on the floor and talked to the United States."

Pritchard said that one major problem was keeping the morale of the American students up. She credited the success of that to ham radio operators who kept the students in tough with their

Commission yet to take its budget to SMC

by Fred Guarino

Does the Shelby County Commission really want $250,000 from Shelby Medical Center to help fund health services?

Does the county really intend to ask for the money to fund such things as the mosquito control program and mental health?

If so -- with the next commission meeting set for Monday, November 14 and an approved budget of $8,049,000 hanging in the balance -- nothing has yet been done about it.

As of Tuesday morning, Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden's administrative assistant Myra Davis had heard of no planned meeting between commissioners and the SMC hospital board.

Commissioner Harold Davenport had also heard of no meeting set by Snowden. "After I read the article in the newspaper (in which hospital board finance chairman Calvin Smith said he was waiting for someone to set up a meeting) I asked Judge Snowden to get with him..."

Davenport agreed with Smith's assumption that it is the responsibility of the commission chairman to make the first move.

According to Smith, only two county commissioners -- Jake Morris and Leon Archer -- have come to see him, and that was unofficial. As of Tuesday, he still had received no official request.

"I have had a couple of commissioners come by and I have offered to sit and listen," Smith said. "I said our committee would meet... but I didn't have a fixed opinion of how it would go."

According to recent comments by county commissioners, if the $250,000 from Shelby Medical Center is not received, the entire county budget will have to be revised.

The Reporter tried to contact Snowden Tuesday, but he was unavailable, and did not return

Man with gun holds Alabaster police at bay

An Alabaster man is in jail on $50,000 bond after being charged with assault with intent to murder, escape, resisting arrest, and assault with a deadly weapon Friday night.

Police Chief "Bull" Carter told the Reporter that Raymond Ray, who resides off County 26 near Fulton Springs, went into his sister's house knocking out windows and drew a shotgun on the officers who answered the call.

"He held off the police until we finally had to tear-gas him out of the house" Carter said of the incident which took place on 8th Street SW.

Ray, reported to have been in his 20's, escaped the house but was apprehended one half mile away, according to Carter.

In on the arrest were Lt. Leroy Davis, Sgt. Frank Page, officers David Palmer and Brian Clark, as well as backup police from Helena.

Water balloons don't make much noise

Halloween stays calm across Shelby County

The battle of the century took place in Columbiana on Halloween night. Ghouls, ghosts, witches and other strange creatures of the night all converged on a local gas station for a giant water balloon fight.

But other than this -- and a few rolled yards --Shelby County was quiet on the night of trick-or-

"It went real smooth," said Alabaster Police Chief "Bull" Carter. "Outside of a few rolled yards there were no bad apples or poison candy like last year."

Calera police collected suspicious looking eggs from a number of potential tricksters. But according to reports, police and egg goblins took the matter in humorous stride.

"Someone called in and said someone was driving around with their lights out trying to run over the children," said Shelby County Chief Deputy James Jones. Since no car was ever found fitting the description, Jones said the calls were probably "Everything was just fine," said chief Ray Rollan in Helena. Reports from Montevallo indicated that the only devilment there came in the form of rolled yards.

"I was mighty proud of the young uns," said Vincent Police Chief George Humphries. "Everything went fairly smooth. It was mighty light down this way."

"There wasn't any problem at all," said Pelham Police Chief D. O. Watson. "We only had two egg throwing incidents."

Tuesday, November 8. That's the day Shelby County voters will turn out -- probably in small numbers -- to choose three men to send to Montgomery for three years. At stake is Shelby County's and Alabama's future -our schools, taxes, growth and general quality of life. And the quality of our government. These are the matters the Shelby County Reporter addressed in one-on-one, tape recorded interviews with all seven candidates last week at the newspaper's main office in Columbiana.

The candidates: House District 41 -- Sonny Moore, Jim Entrekin House District 40 -- John Tanner, Al Knight, Ed Gentry Senate District 14 -- Don Murphy, Frank 'Butch'

Would you support a raise for the legislature? Do you know what the job pays?

Senate District 14 Ellis: No, I would not support a raise for the legislature, and I do not know exactly what it pays... it could be $10,000 to $12,000 per year. I have not been interested in the amount of pay and I have not verified that.

Murphy: Let me answer that in reverse. Yes, I know what the job pays. And no, I wouldn't support a pay raise, I'm not saying I would never support a pay raise, but I don't think we need a pay raise with the economy the way it is and other employees not being able to have a pay raise. The legislature is not a money making job. It's a service job to your community.

House District 40

Gentry: No. I definitely would not support it. The reason for it is that a person who is elected should be a public servant. That's why they run for office, not to make a living out of being an elected official.

Knight: Yes, I certainly would. I think we ought to make the legislature probably a salaried position where you get a monthly income and expenses on top that. A person like me who's a salaried individual already... once I'm elected I'll have to take a considerable cut in that pay. The job pays $10 a day, plus expenses. (It should probably pay) something that would be more in tune with the amount of time spent on the job. But make it where it's not self-sufficient, because it is a part time job. (Presently,) it's a job for the independently wealthy. Look at the union members. They have to take a leave of absence from their jobs. They ought not to have to lose that much money because they're doing a job that's much

Tanner: Yes, I do know what the job pays. Not to the penny, but it's $400 a month plus a stipend while the legislature is in session, and a per diem. It also depends on how many committees you serve on. No, I would not support a raise for the legislature because there is no need for one. You serve in the legislature not for the money, but for the public service nature of it. I think it's adequately compensated for that.

House District 41

Entrekin: Yes, I do know what the job pays. I'm not sure at this point whether I would support a raise or not. People are probably getting what they pay for -- which is not very much with the legislature's pay. With the present financial situation in the state, I would not support a pay raise. I would not say I would never support a raise. But if I were looking for pay, I would definitely be doing something besides running for the legislature.

Moore: If the economy keeps on the increase, I would probably support a pay raise. But if it stays at the small growth we're receiving now, I would probably not support one. If we can maintain the same room rent and gasoline prices, I'm satisfied with what the legislature is receiving. But if the inflation factor was to increase, I would probably support a pay increase. I didn't support either the $400 expense allowance or the pay raise last time when it came up. It would save the taxpayer money and shorten the session if the legislature was paid just an annual fee. A lot of people are dependent, or partially dependent on (the pay) for their living. The more you stay the more you make. That's a bad deal.

Would you have the deputies' salaries tied back with the state troopers' scale, or would you let the personnel board administer it?

Senate District 14

Ellis: In this particular situation the law is already on the books and no one knows at this point what the personnel board is going to do when it takes over the setting of the deputies' pay. I think it would be irresponsible to introduce without commission request, legislation that substantially changed that. The first thing that should be done is that the commission and personnel board be allowed to resolve the issue themselves. I am quite confident that they'll be able to resolve it without the need legislation.

If that fails, I do believe the ultimate the county expenditures needs to be wit ty commission, unless you have spec from Montgomery. If they aren't able the issue otherwise, I would support a did two things: maintain the quality of forcement which we expect in this c return the basic control over the amour which is to be spent in that and other a county commission.

Murphy: I think the law's wrong nov deputies' pay is under the state troop think it's wrong by being under the board. You have a non-elected board in the county purse strings. It should be I under the county commission. Those a

'Legislation without the county commission's approval?'

They're the ones the people elect, they're the ones that should have control.

House District 40

Gentry: I think that is strictly up to the personnel board to administrate that. I don't think it should be legislative issue. I think it should be handled by the board, working with the sheriff... this is a toughy. I think the personnel board should work hard to see that we do not lose the deputies that we have spent tremendous amounts of money on training, because of a discrepancy over pay. This is a hazardous job and for so many years here in this county the deputies were underpaid.

Knight: I would let the personnel board administer the salaries of every employee for which they have the responsibility of raising the funds to pay. When that bill (the tie to the trooper scale) was passed, the deputies were taking a beating on their wages. That bill, from a practical standpoint, served a very useful purpose, to get their wages up to a level that's much more reasonable. A lot of people think that when you say you support it going back over to the personnel board, they think that means cutting their salaries; certainly not cutting their salaries.

Tanner: I would let the personnel board administer it. At the time the bill was written to tie the pay scale to the troopers', I'm sure it was necessary at the time, nevertheless, it's bad legislation when you take from the county commission any and all means of trying to balance the budget. I think the personnel board can submit their budget to the county commission, base the salaries on whatever reasons they deem necessary for an increase, and handle it that way. I hope they let the commission knows well in advance so they can plan the budget.

House District 41

Entrekin: I definitely believe in home rule. Nobody should be telling the county who to give raises to without giving them money to do it with. The way it's set up now is setting a priority for the county budget before they ever sit down to the table. It may be that one year that is a high priority. It may be that other years, something else really must be put above that. As it stands now, the priority is already set before they ever sit down to see what the needs of the county are. I think it's really worked to the detriment of the county because people in the county government have not had raises in several years. Basically, on any question, I believe in having the decision made as close to home as possible.

Moore: I passed the bill and started the personnel board (not the trooper tie in), and I'm satisfied' with it just the way it is. I have not had anyone personnel board. Well, you know, the personnel board can do what they want to do by just a simple resolution. They can tie it right back to the state troopers' (scale) if they elect to do so.

Would you support legislation that would cost the county money without the county commission's approval? Senate District 14

Ellis: The county is required to balance it s budget within rather narrowly defined limits. For that reason, I think that the county commission has an undeniable interest in local legislation that mandates the payment of funds. I would certainly seek the advice, the recommendation of the commissions in any one of the counties involved with this district, before passing any legislation that would affect them monetarily. Murphy: I would try not to. I would not make a flat statement that I would not pass a law. I will do this -- any pay raises for anyone elected by the people would have to be approved by the county that would cost the county). I would try to sit down and reason with the commission why it would need to be passed. If at all possible, I would commission. I would try not to (pass legislation

Gentry: No. I think that this is a problem that we have faced in this county for so many years, that the legislators that have represented this county basically came out of other counties, and have not worked in close communications in seeing what was in the best interest for the majority of people and not just in the best interest of a few of the people.

Knight: I'm not real sure I can give you a direct answer to that. My gut feeling is that I probably would not support any legislation without the county commission being involved in the decision -- they are the authority that is going to have to raise that money. I couldn't blanketly say that I would not support any legislation without their approval. There are some things -- for example in education -- that the county commission has nothing really to do with, that would be in the county and would be funded by the county, but it would be through the education board.

Tanner: No. The key word in that question is "approval." But you don't need to introduce or support legislation without the city leaders, the county leaders all knowing it. You don't need to support legislation to spend money without their knowledge and approval, and also without providing a base for it. The answer is no, you can't do that.

Entrekin: No. One of my main goals is to work with the county, with the local city governments. I'd be very foolish to come in and try to tell then what they ought to do. I want to work closely with them and I want them to tell me what they want me to be working on in Montgomery. Again -- you just can't tell people to do things without giving them money for it.

Moore: I represent the people within the county, and I would want to do what the people in the county want done. Secondly, it would be in conjunction with, or have the support of, the county commission. Certainly, I would like that. But basically I support the people in Shelby County.

We tend to think that a legislator is elected only to represent a group of other elected officials in the county -- that's not right. The main thing we need to do is get more people involved in legislative acts... write your legislator and express your views. When we advertise a piece of legislation and we have no response, no opposition to that piece of legislation, we in turn think it's approved by the people.

Ellis: I am personally opposed to dog racing and believe that a majority of the people in this county are opposed to it. I would not sponsor legislation to legalize dog racing.

Murphy: I would introduce legislation to allow the people to vote. I think that's a major issue that's been kicked around this county for several years. I personally am not in favor of a dog track, but... I would like to see the whole county vote on

Gentry: Let me say this -- I do not feel that parimutual betting is a solution to problems in Shelby County, whether it's funds for education, or funds for the sheriff's department, or roads... I think that a dog track in Shelby County would eventually cost people. It would not be an asset for Shelby County. Everybody thinks it would bring a lot of tax dollars in, but do we realize what it's going to cost us to feed the people who lose the money that they were going to feed their families with? I think that we have too many other things we should be doing in Montgomery for the betterment of Shelby County, and a dog track is not one of them. It is not going to become a reality for Shelby County. It is one of those things that I would not support under any circumstances.

Knight: I would not support a bill for a dog track anywhere. I would not oppose a bill that would put an issue like that to a vote of the people. You cannot legislate morality. You've got to give people the opportunity to vote on issues that are very emotional like that. A lot of times you flat, frankly don't know what the majority of the people in your area want.

Without going into how bills are finally drawn up, my gut feeling is that everybody should have an opportunity to vote on it, if they are affected by it. A dog track may be voted on in Alabaster or Pelham, but the rest of the county should share in some of the resources that come out of that dog track, because they're going to share in some of the costs of it, I assure you -- costs in the form of roads and perhaps crime.

Tanner: Ummm... No. I think it's a moot question. For anyone in Shelby County to pursue dog racing, is beating a dead horse -- pun intended. I think the horse track in Birmingham, or the chance of a horse track in Birmingham, will effectively prohibit any type of parimutual wagering -horses, dogs or chickens -- in a county adjacent to Jefferson County, or even close.

track in Shelby County, and it would not matter what area voted on it.

Moore: No. Short and to the point. I am not going to support legislation for a dog track, per se. I believe the majority of the people in District 41 are opposed to a dog track.

Specifically, what would you do to attract business and industry to Shelby County and Alabama in general? What would you do to support business and industry that's already here? Senate District 14

Ellis: We have an abundance of natural resources in Alabama... and dedicated, hard working people. To have jobs for our people we must have industry and business growth. Business, of course must pay its own way. We have new plants coming (to Alabama)... The Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway is scheduled for completion in 1985. So, I see some encouraging signs

But by-and-large I think what we need to do is make better use of our natural and human resources and allow businesses to be controlled more by competition in the "market place," as opposed to unnecessary, minimized governmental red tape and bureaucracy.

In encouraging the new industry, we need to take advantage of the agencies and industrial boards, and existing machinery that we have, for industries that we want to attract. In addition to that, create the business climate that I mentioned Continued on next page

'What would you do to attract business and industry?'

Continued from preceding page before. In the course of freeing industry, you will aid and assist the businesses.

Murphy: We need to get prepared as a county, and I've worked with the county commission, through ADO (Alabama Development Office), or whomever we need to work with in order to get our county ready to receive industry. Our county is not prepared. I think we need an industrial park for this county. We need to have something to offer industry.

I would like to see expansion of (present) industry inside our county. I think the only way we're going to be able to do that, is to meet with the industrial leaders, to work with them. I think we need to do this statewide -- have a committee of top industrial leaders to work along with ADO, with the legislators in Montgomery. I think that in the past we have left industrial leaders out, and they can be a bigger factor in having industry come to Alabama than what we can do as legislators and what the ADO can do.

I would also like to have an award each year honoring our top industrial leader in the county. Show some appreciation. Listen to their problems. Help solve their problems. Communicate. And that's what we haven't done in the past.

House District 40

Gentry: First thing you've got to do to attract business into Shelby County -- if businesses are not going to locate within a city where there is already an industrial park, then what we've got to do is set up a county industrial development board. Place people on it who are professionals in recruiting businesses for Shelby County. I think you have to have controlled growth, but at the same time, in order to build a sound tax base, you have to bring business here that fits into the environment that we have.

Working with your chamber of commerce, both in the state and the national chamber of commerce, would be an ideal situation in order to bring business into Shelby County and the State of Alabama. Working with the ADO very closely -you cannot do it alone. It takes working together, and in the past we have not worked together. What businesses have come to Shelby County, I feel like they have come on their own. I feel that we have got to work and set up this industrial development board to go out and to encourage businesses to come. We do not have that, as of yet, other than the Pelham Chamber of Commerce.

In order to keep business here, we cannot continue to tax businesses. Last year alone we saw the state pass a $226 million tax enhancement program on businesses. Why would businesses want to come to Alabama if we're going to tax them to death? In order to keep the jobs we have now, we've not to do everything possible within the power of the state legislature to keep these businesses here. As long as we are taxing businesses as we are, I feel that you're going to see less businesses locate in the State of Alabama. They're going to look at other places.

Knight: We have the ADO, whose responsibility is that very thing. But they don't have the resources in the form of personnel or funding or freedom. Instead of political payoffs, the people that staff it should be businessmen that know what other businessmen want. To attract them to Alabama. They have very little latitude, direction. I would support anything that would revamp the ADO.

Shelby County has several unique problems. One is that it is expanding at a tremendous rate. We need an industrial development board that is far more active than our current board. We need people that are already here as businesses (on it). We could establish an industrial development park, a high technology park, the health industries. The land is available in Shelby County. but it's not being put to proper use. We don't have anybody that's putting all the pieces together. We still have the feeling in this county that everything's just going to kind of happen, that we don't have to do any kind of planning for it. We need to be working with all the departments in Shelby County... doing some long range planning, coming up with some ways to fund the activities that are going to be required to attract new business. I'd like to see more businesses that work centergistically -- where they work with each other -- attracting new businesses.

To provide them with the work force they need. The work force that's needed in business is provided through our public education system. The product of public education goes directly into industry. In order to provide best for the businesses that are here today, we need to help them with their creative financing -- all the things that go along with helping small businesses. But also to make sure that we provide them with a trained work force.

Tanner: Several, several years ago, I can say that I -- with the support of many leaders -organized and founded the Pelham Area Chamber of Commerce. I got the ball rolling and we drew in good folks, and we put the chamber together. It's not directly responsible for the rise and fall of any businesses, but we as city leaders have worked closely to actively solicit business and industry into the area, worked with the ADO.

With the chambers of commerce in north Shelby County, we have prepared Pelham as a "prepared city."

We need to work with the airport authority to make the airport in Shelby County bigger and better. We need to make the business climate more attractive. The first thing that businesses look at is where the employees are going to live. The education system is a very important aspect. The more we can do for it, the better we're going to do for the business climate. There's no doubt that there are exaggerated claims of businesses being discouraged by Alabama. But there are laws in Montgomery that must be protected and expanded on that can make the state appear more desirable... but you don't want to take it to a ridiculous extreme. Somewhere between the AFL-CIO and the Associated Industries proposals, there is a happy medium. We've got to have a game plan. We've got to work to improve (all that we have). You've got to put your money where your mouth is.

House District 41

Entrekin: The first thing we've got to do is change our tax structure. Reverse some of the things that were done this past year. The legislature seems to run away businesses who are looking to locate in the Sunbelt -- all of which combine to create a business climate in Alabama which is causing industries to go to Florida, Georgia, Mississippi and other states. Alabama is number 23 in the nation -- probably only because we happen to be in the Sunbelt.

As far as attracting business and industry to Shelby County, we have to have the roadwork and waste disposal facilities that are necessary to attract the industries. Plans were made for these things in the past and the roads have not been completed -- I'm speaking specifically of Columbiana and Wilsonville. In Wilsonville, they're sitting there with the land available and they haven't been able to do anything with it because of the sewer system not being completed. Highway 145 link has not been completed.

There might be the need for another industrial park someplace in the county.

Taxes are a cost of producing a product, and a business has to add the cost of that tax into the price they charge, If a company (elsewhere) can sell a product at a lower price (because of lower taxes), therefore taking the business away from a firm in Alabama, it endangers jobs that already exist in Alabama. If we don't get that straightened out in the legislature, then we're not going to have new businesses and industries. The governor promised no new taxes. Then they passed $226 million in taxes on business. When a tax is put on a product, you pay it and I pay it.

From all reports I've heard, (the Alabama Development Office) is not doing its job. It's staffed with political appointees. We need enthusiastic, energetic people in that office that are out selling the State of Alabama. I would like to possibly create a new legislative subcommittee dealing with (attracting new business and industry). I would like to use my experience in business. I know their problems. I want to be the salesman for the county.

Moore: We're coming with some programs to train existing businesses and help existing business, through ADO. The only thing that I know that we can do is probably continue to give most businesses a tax break through the Wallace-Cater Act, which is a plus. We've got to have good schools if businesses come into this state. We've got to have a certain type recreation for them. We've got to have good places for the folks to eat. We've got to have good roads. I know that a lot of people think that tax is the main issue on business. But I was at a meeting in this county a few years ago where a business stated he wanted none of those benefits. He wanted to be a part of the community and wanted to pay his way when he came to the county. I think if we have good country clubs, good churches, adequate roads and a first class school system, that we can attract first class business. Those are the main things -- along with a tax structure that is competitive with our neighboring counties. I think we'll be in very, very good shape.

Would you support collective bargaining for public employees?

Senate District 14

Ellis: No. As a general rule I would not support collective bargaining for public employees. That's the answer to the way the question is worded. I do think that public employees need an avenue for expressing any suggestions or grievances that they might have concerning their employment, and that procedure should be made available where they can be listened to.

Murphy: No. I would not.

House District 40

Gentry: I don't know. I have no comment on

Knight: No, I would not. All you have to do is look at Chicago if you want to know what that gets you into - kids sitting at home instead of in Tanner: I don't have any problem with collective bargaining for public employees to the extent that it does not cause strikes. There are no simple answers to these questions. While I can say I don't have any problems with collective bargaining for public employees, but if the bill was written so that strikes were inevitable or probable, and you have a shutdown of the work force -- I don't want that. But there again, somewhere down the road you have to protect the employees' rights. You don't just want an employer to fire someone because they don't like the color of their hair. This is a step in that direction, but it can certainly be taken too far. There's no yes or no to that.

Entrekin: Absolutely not. People who have a public trust, who are holding our lives in their hands, our law enforcement officials, our fire departments, the people who are holding the minds of our children in their hands -- they have a public trust. We cannot be subjected to the likes of what we see across the country with 400,000 school children sitting at home in Chicago.

We've it seen all in the news, buildings burning down because firemen had some squabble with the city government. I believe that we as citizens must realize that we need quality policemen, we need quality firemen, we need quality teachers. We need to see that we need to pay enough for these positions that we attract good people to them. I am for the rank and file man, I am for teachers and all our public servants, but collective bargaining is not the answer.

Moore: I have no trouble as long as -- and I want this brought out -- that they can bargain as long as there is a stiff penalty or a no strike clause in it. Your federal employees, your postal employees and all them have a right to bargain with, but they have a no strike clause. I have no objection to it as long as there is no strike, but if there is provision where they can strike, I would be bitterly opposed to it.

What specifically would you do to improve education in Shelby County and Alabama? And do you think support for the AEA is necessarily support for education?

Senate District 14

Ellis: No, support for AEA is not necessarily support for education. There are some aspects of AEA for which support of would bring benefits to education. I think you have to have an attractive employment opportunity for teachers if you're going to attract and keep the quality of teachers that we need to provide for the proper education for our children.

We must provide quality education for our sons and daughters, not only to equip them to successfully compete within the job market, but also to allow our America to compete with other countries in what is going to become an ever increasing world economy. The money we spend on education can be considered an investment. With the lowest per pupil educational budget in the country, we have made advances in the ten or 11 year period from 1972 to 1983.

Additional reform is still needed in several categories. First, we've got to have the required political leadership for reform. I think we've actually got to have some structural changes for comprehensive reform -- for example, two-year college chancellor Howard Gundy's recent reorganization reform. I think we need to focus as much on excellence as we do on simple competency both at school and at home. And parents and citizen groups such as the PTA's will need to help the consensus required for progress.

The bottom line is additional funding for public education in this state. I believe the public is ready to support increased (tax) funding, if that funding provides for proper accountability and responsibility of those funds.

Murphy: I would like to see the politics taken out of education. We have made it too political.

The state needs a plan for education -- I feel like we don't have a plan for education in the State of Alabama. We have given communities junior colleges and trade schools that were delivered to certain individuals. I think we've had a lot of duplication. We've got some universities in Alabama with empty classrooms, yet here in our own county we have classes being held in the hallways of schools. I think we need to look at our priorities as to where we're putting our money. We're spending money where we don't need to spend, and we're not spending money where we should be. I feel like we need more local support for education --I'm talking about monetary support -- and I think we can have it, if given the opportunity to vote.

No, support for AEA is not necessarily support for education. I think AEA has gotten away from its original direction as to why it was set up. I would like to see it get back on the course of improving education for the kids in the classrooms and stop trying to become a union. We were sent out by AEA a questionnaire with 17 questions, and one question pertained to education. I know teachers need protection, but I believe that probably 75%-80% of the teachers don't agree with all the things that AEA is trying to do. I think AEA needs to improve their image with the public.

Gentry: What we have got to do in order to improve education, first of all you have got to have money. We have got to re-shuffle the money that is spent... take it out of other programs that are not priorities and put it back into education. We are wasting money. We could take it and put it back into the educational facilities, "K" through... all levels of education.

I do not think AEA is necessarily support for education. The way they go about doing things is not in the best interest for the educational systems here in Alabama. When they're asking you to support legislation that you have not even read -- how can anyone say that's for the best interest of the majority of the people here in Alabama?

Knight: One of the things we have had recently in Alabama is ACHE -- Alabama Commission on Higher Education. Essentially, it tried to establish the missions and the goals of higher education. I would very much like to see an Alabama Commission on Education that would establish missions and goals for public education.

There's two or three things that we really ought to be working on in education. One of them is mental discipline. One of them is establishing an increase in knowledge. And the other one is to build character. Once you get outside that area, you're getting into the social issues of what schools can and can't do.

What we need to do is to have some long range plans, establish what the missions are, and develop long range -- I'm not talking about year to year survival strategy like we've been going through for so many years in the state -- but long range, well established plans of how to meet these missions. Let's avoid this type of issue where we suddenly have the question of are we going to have kindergartens or not. Too, we need to have leaders that recognize that business and education are inseparably linked.

Pouring money into anything is never an answer. You've got to know what to find, where that money is going. There are many of things I could talk about in detail -- starting to establish teachers as professionals and treating them as professionals rather than paying them as a union wage earner.

The AEA is a labor union. There is no question that the AEA has interest in education, but their questionnaire reflected very well what their in-

Tanner: What is best for AEA is not always best for education in general. Somewhere in here I want to insert the statement that I have made no comments to any special interest groups.

Not only does AEA perform a vital role in the support for education and the support for teachers, but there are other groups that spin off of education that need representation. So, the first thing, bringing back funding for the schools is going to be one of the primary ways to support education in District 40. Throwing money at the problems in education won't solve all the problems, but it will cure a lot of the ills we have.

We first need to fully fund -- and I will push for a fully funded kindergarten program. Then we need to take a look at the needs of all the schools in the county. Some are extremely crowded. We need to get them out of the trailers, get them out of the halls and out of the lunchrooms, and get them into classrooms. Thompson High School needs a new building. We've got to push for that. Thompson Elementary is over crowded. The other schools in the district have the same problems, maybe not as severe.

I don't care if it's pork barrel money, discretionary money, state and federal grants, or if it's working with the county board of education to provide an expanded tax base for the schools -- the legislator -- whoever it is and I hope it's me -we've got to work with finding a solution. Parents are tired of selling this and selling that just to have the basic requirements. It's ridiculous.

If we can get money without having to redistrict, we need to do that first. If all that fails, then... say North Shelby wants to create a district and raise their own taxes -- that's a means of solv-

Good teachers are a must. We need to give them the best benefits we can afford, provide them with all the tools they need. We need to fund areas for the talented children, the exceptional children, the ones that have disabilities.

House District 41

Entrekin: Currently, Alabama is tenth in the nation as far as teacher salaries. We're 49th in total monies spent on education -- which shows you the imbalance in our public education system. I'm glad that we're able to pay our teachers well. I think we should. But we're going to have to channel more monies into capital projects. We don't have enough schools for the growth that's going on. People in the Inverness area are scrambling trying to get a school ready, out selling everything, because there's not enough money going into capital projects.

This all ties back into the business climate in Alabama. In order to improve education (etc.), we have to have a better business climate in Alabama - number one. If we don't, then in order to get the new money for education and other things, it's going to have to come out of the pockets of the people who are here right now. Nobody seems to have the insight, or something, to improve the business climate in the state.

Also we're going to have to take a look at the proportion of monies that are going into higher education versus high school and elementary

Interviews are tools

Mack Dennis, a reader, came by Tuesday to renew his annual subscription for the 58th time. We talked a few minutes while attending to business. The topic -- elections.

"Up in Four Mile we have a mix --Republicans and Democrats, too," he said. "I've had calls from both sides. It's going to be a tough race. Lots of 'em go out and vote, but lots aren't interested like they used to be..."

For the "lots" who vote, the Reporter has published one-on-one interviews this week. Each candidate was asked the same questions. The interviews lasted from 45 minutes to well over an hour. Answers were edited only for considerations of repetitiveness, relation to specifics, and space considerations.

There are not absolute right or wrong answers to the questions, because each reader -- each voter -- has a mind of his or her own. We think you'll find the interviews useful tools in making your decisions next Tuesday.

As for the "lots" who aren't interested -- well, thanks for not caring about everybody's future. And please -don't yell too loudly about what happens to Shelby County and Alabama over the next three years.

Constitution goes to polls

Shelby County voters will get their say Tuesday on the proposed state constitution.

If approved statewide, the constitution will replace our present governing document that dates

Opponents of the measure have petitioned the Alabama Supreme Court in an effort to get it removed from the ballot on procedural grounds, but so far without success.

Critics charge that the new constitution was drafted too hastily, has an unclear origin, is vague, may impede state, county, and city financing, does not strongly and specifically condemn such ethical lapses as bribery, fails to resolve the home-rule controversy that continually pits local officials against the legislature, and authorizes lot-

Lest anyone conclude that such defects will doom the document, proponents point out that past constitutions that were worse in every one of the listed areas have sailed through handily.

This leads to another anti-constitution argument: that by slightly improving the 1901 constitution, the measure will remove public pressure for change, and waste an opportunity to get a really outstanding document.

Alabama has had six constitutions, adopted in 1819, 1861, 1865, 1868, 1875, and 1901 respective-

Although all six were approved by constitutional conventions, the first three went into effect without being voted on by the people, and the fourth was adopted despite negative popular opi-

The 1875 constitution was adopted as a reaction against Reconstruction, and featured many financial restraints on those in power.

Those restraints are still with us, because the 1901 constitution carried forward the 1875 document with two major additions: local amendments and the disenfranchisement of blacks.

The latter was declared incompatible with the US constitution in the 1960's, while abuses of the former led to the present reform efforts.

One local provision in the 1901 document concerns Shelby County: it requires that the courthouse not be moved away from Columbiana without a vote of the people of the county.

Both Shelby County's state senator and state representative were from Calera at that time, and both had tried to move the county seat to Calera, prompting the provision.

In fact, the courthouse legend goes, the two Calera lawmakers had taken a bill to change Calera's city limits and altered it after it passed both houses to provide for moving the courthouse. The Governor signed the altered version, and our county seat would now be in Calera had not the 1901 constitution happened along to annul the unorthodox measure and save the day for Columbiana.

A few of the 435 amendments affect Shelby County directly, mostly providing salary raises or additional secretaries or bailiffs for courthouse personnel.

None of these local provisions would appear in the new document, although their substance would be retained as state law.

The "convention" that recommended the present proposal apparently consisted of Lt. Governor Bill Baxley, his aide Bill Stephens who actually wrote it, Senator Ryan DeGraffenreid of Tuscaloosa who steered it through the Senate, and Governor Wallace, who secured House passage of the measure. Paul Hubbert of the AEA has also declared himself a supporter of it.

Arrayed against them are the Alabama State Bar Association, the Alabama Trial Lawvers' Association, State Representative Rick Manley of Demopolis, and Circuit Judge William Gordon of purchase three acres of land with him holding the mortgage. After several months without any kind of deed, title or contract, and so many excuses from the fellow I could have written a book, I finally realized he may have no intention of giving me any documents.

I hired a local lawyer to look into this and after another year or so and $600 in legal fees, I did manage to have my day in court, or so I thought. As it turned out, the judge made a one or two minute inspection of the case history. He then suggested that the two lawyers work out the difficulties out of court.

The lawyers drew up an agreement in which the alleged mortgage holder would furnish a deed, title insurance and I would have the ability to sell the property to anyone who wishes to buy

Two sales fell through because of improper descriptions and property lines, as well as a previous mortgage, which made the purchase contract I signed void. I again realized something was wrong.

I wonder, could it be that all this was not an accident on the part of the seller? Could it be that this has happened five times before, as well? Could it be that this kind of thing will go on in-

Letter to the Editor: 'The Food Snatch Giveaway

Program'

Wednesday, October 26, 1983 was a very hectic day for me! I drove to Columbiana this day to receive for my first time a hunk of the cheese giveaway (which I was eligible to receive). As I live and breathe I will never do it

I arrived at this place at 7:50 a.m. I finally walked out with three items, when I should have got five. I did this so I could leave and get home before dark. The flour and milk was on the way but some said the truck broke down.

I was the 14th one in line but when I stepped up to receive my gift, some approximately 70 people were ahead of me. I have always been taught to respect others but this time it really got to me. I have never been so confused in my life and approximately

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana,

This is for the mites that are slowly destroying my turnip patch:

I know you're there. I know you've been there for almost a week. But I have news for you. I suppose you're trying to get as big as cockroaches, and maybe you will, and it's perfectly all right with me. But there's something else, too. Ed Benson has a turnip patch that covers a whole acre and Tom Minor has one almost as big, and Willard Cross and Peter Jones and Eddie Benson have two patches each. And I've got grazing rights in all of them. And for years Hubert Kirkland and I have shared the same patch. So, go ahead and get as big as roaches. And when you're through, start on the nut grass. Please!

Isloe Faust remembers: The new paved road in front of Cecil Cowart's drug store in Calera, and cokes and ham sandwiches inside and curb service outside, with Uncle Jack Jennings strutting all over the place like a young game rooster. The cars were parked halfway down the block, each with a tray on the window and a guy and girl inside. Curb Service!

I guess it went out with pistol-legged pants and short haircuts and naked upper lips. But it was something, especially for a boy and his girl who had maybe a quarter to spend.

Left over from a family reunion: One's name was Wilton Lyon and the other's name was Will Jones. They lived in Calera years ago before paved roads and street lights and garden tillers. Will was busy in his garden, as was his fashion, once March had crowded February off the calendar. He had broke his ground with Cedric, his mule, and was busy setting out plants when Wilton came along, on his way to the post of-"What you setting out, Will?" Wilton asked. Will kept working and said, without looking up: "Octagon soap wrappers."

Teacher Talk

Editor's note -- David Little is a fourth grade teacher at Thompson Elementary School, and has been teaching for 10 years. He is married and has 3 children.

by David Little

There is one word closely associated with a child's education which can help a child achieve success in school, yet often causes dismay or confusion in the home. The word I am speaking about is "homework".

Usually, homework is assigned by teachers to reinforce current lessons being taught or to introduce students to new material soon to be covered. Homework can also include studying for tests and developing projects, reports, etc.

I hope this article will help parents minimize the problems and anxiety often associated with homework assignments. May I suggest the following guidelines:

1. Without fail ask your child every day what he or she did in school. Children may often recall homework assignments after reflecting on the day's activities.

2. Buy a small notebook for your child to write down daily assignments. It is always very easy to forget things not written down.

3. Have a consistent time allocated everyday after school for homework. I would suggest that you allow a time period of one hour for snacks and relaxation immediately after school because everyone needs to unwind after seven hours of work. Then at least 45 to 60 minutes should be devoted to homework. During this time eliminate interruptions such as TV, radio, and phone calls.

4. Buy your child an atlas or small globe and a dictionary or set of encylopedias. These will prove to be invaluable tools for both you and your child.

5. Try to be patient with your child if things go wrong. For example, multiplication facts take time and repetition. Any child can learn if given enough time and support.

6. Praise your child. A pat on the back or a smile can mean the world to a boy or girl who has finally mastered some difficult equation or problem.

7. Have you ever had your child tell you "no homework tonight?" Then find something relevant to what he or she is studying and develop your own homework. The best achievers are those who go the "extra mile."

8. As an elementary teacher I would ask all parents of kindergarten through sixth-grade students to have their children read aloud or silently at least three times weekly. There is so much that can be learned through books. Buy books for your children to read. Limit television viewing, and encourage your children to share what they have read with you.

The Alabama Scene

by Bob Ingram

A year ago, close to 1.1 million Alabamians went to the polls in the November general election. If half that many votes are cast next Tuesday in the special election it will come as an astonishment to most observers.

A new State Legislature will be elected next Tuesday; a proposed new state constitution on the ballot as well. But despite the importance of the referendum, voter interest is almost nil.

There are several legislative races which may produce moderate turnouts. This is especially true where incumbent lawmakers who were not handpicked by the State Democratic Committee will be seeking reelection as independents. Some of these races have grown warm. Otherwise the election is dullsville.

The campaign for and against the constitution has been unique in that it has been exceedingly difficult to find anyone who openly supports it. It has drawn fierce opposition from many powerful groups and at this writing it would seem the document is doomed to defeat.

Odds and Ends --- It's hard to fault Congressman Jack Edwards of Mobile for his decision to retire at the end of his present term. He's been in Washington for almost 20 years, and as he put it so well, he has "no desire to die with his boots on" in Congress. The nation would be well served if all congressmen -- including some who have served well into senility - might follow Edwards' lead.

Jockeying for position to succeed Edwards in the 1984 elections has already begun in earnest. Former Sen. H. L. (Sonny) Callahan, a loser to Bill Baxley a year ago in the lieutenant governor's race, is a likely candidate, more likely as a Republican rather than a Democrat. John Tyson Jr., a member of the State Board of Education and the son of the man Edwards beat when he was first elected in 1964, is another possibilty. So is controversial school official Dan Alexander, and faintly mentioned has been former House Speaker Joe McCorquodale. The likelihood is slim that both Mc-Corquodale and Callahan would run. They drink from the same political bucket, which is to say, their supporters are much the same peo-

The death of Ron Tate last week was tragic. Tate was the highly visible spokesman for the State Prison Department and thoroughly competent man. It was determined he had cancer only eight weeks ago. Tate was 40...

A punster with a quicker wit than most has come up with a good one: Since Paul Hubbert of the AEA and Joe Reed of the ADC work so well together delivering the bloc vote of teachers and blacks to the candidates of their choice, could this coalition hereafter not best be referred to as the "H & R Bloc Vote"?

'What would you do to improve education in Shelby County?'

education. We've got 56% of the money spent on education going for the 30% of the students that graduate from high school and go on to college. We're building a nice superstructure, but our foundation is eroding. We cannot allow that to

I would like to see all children in Shelby County have kindergarten. I think it's unfair that only part of them have a kindergarten.

AEA is part of the problem because they caused the imbalance in the system. I don't believe most of the good teachers of this state go along with this type of thing. I also think people of this state are pretty fed up with some of the other things AEA has done -- passing laws so that a local school board can't fire a drunk bus driver, or an incompetent teacher without going through an almost impossible, binding arbitration process. It's the people's money and the people's children and they should be in control of it.

Moore: I think first of all one of the prime things that we've got to do -- and it's a plus -- we have got to fully fund the kindergarten program so that every child within the state will be on an equal basis.

I think that we need to be sure that our teachers are of the highest quality in education, that are dedicated to the education profession.

I voted against some bills for AEA that I didn't think were supportive of education. I would like to see AEA and the PTA and the other organizations get behind a program that would enhance or help the students that are seeking education. Regardless of what program it might be, if it would improve the quality of education, I would like to see all groups rally their forces behind those programs.

Would you support any bill that tried to do away with tenure to school support personnel? Senate District 14

Ellis: That bill is on the books now, provides for a three year probation period... I would have no plans to attempt to repeal that.

Murphy: Yes I would. I fought against school support personnel having tenure. I think it's just an additional step towards unionizing our public employees and our public teachers. Support personnel are separate from teachers and should be treated as such. I feel like the teachers are working on the better education. The support personnel are working to making a living. I don't think our money, our tax dollars and our superintendent's time should be tied with arbitration with school support personnel. I think they should be protected, but I don't believe in the tenure law for

Gentry: As far as tenure for school support personnel, I have never been contacted or no one has ever asked me about my feelings on that, and I have never have really looked into what it is all consisting of at this time. At this present time I would have no comment on it.

Knight: Yes, I would. I don't think that it's right to hamstring the very organization that we give the right to manage a business. We give the school board the authority to manage the business, then we take that authority away from them by putting various tenure bills on there. I don't think we should have tenure bills in the form that they're designed.

Tanner: I don't know. And I'll have to be honest, I don't know how the tenure bill works with support personnel as opposed to the teachers.

If there was, I'd have to read the bill to be sure. But I don't think I could support it.

House District 41

Entrekin: Yes I would. I don't think I should be guaranteed a job. I don't think anyone should be guaranteed a job, because when you give someone a guarantee of a job, you do away with their incentive for doing their very best. It's a ridiculous thing that only protects the incompetent, the incapable and what you've got is a lot of people who are not doing the job, that are getting paid the same and treated the same as teachers and janitors and bus drivers that are really trying to do their Moore: We have just put school support personnel under tenure. The bill as originally (written) put support personnel under tenure at a very shorter time than the teachers in the state. I did support the bill that put them under the same (tenure) as a teacher.

I see not much difference between a lunchroom worker being tenured in at three years, as I do for a school teacher being tenured in at three years. But I did oppose the bill until it was amended to a

Vietnam vets plan memorial

Alabama Viet Nam Veterans are holding a memorial service November 10 in Woodrow Wilson Park across from the City Hall in Birmingham.

The event -- which is a first for city and state -- is being held in conjunction with the annual National Veterans Day observance.

In commemoration, community and state leaders will publicly read the names of those Alabamians who gave their lives, or who are still missing in the Viet Nam War.

Talmadge C. Foster, program director for the event, explains that the service is important because it will give Viet Nam era veterans an opportunity to express their sympathy and concern to families of the dead and miss-three year tenure clause. I think we should be able to find out within three years. Since we have it with teachers, I don't see any reason to discriminate against the school bus driver, the shop personnel.

'Repeal Right to Work Law?'

Would you support an agency shop bill or any move to repeal the Right to Work Law? What is your stand on the prevailing wage bill?

Senate District 14

Ellis: I am opposed to repeal of the Right to Work Law. I believe that government should allow the greatest freedom of choice to the greatest number of people. I am opposed to mandatory agency shop. And I'm opposed to the prevailing wage bill.

I might say this... I think there are some things that need to be done for the average working man in this state, such as increased workman's compensation benefits and other type things like that.

Murphy: I would not support an agency shop bill and I am definitely opposed to doing away with the Right to Work law. Prevailing wage bill—I fought against it last time in the legislature, and I'd fight it again. I think it's a waste. It's a waste of tax dollars that I don't feel like we have the luxury to waste. I think it's wrong to force private enterprise and tell them what wages they can and cannot pay. I'm strongly in support of the free enterprise system.

House District 40

Gentry: I have not read the legislation on this agency shop bill. I could not comment on that.

ED GENTRY

Yes, I would support the Right to Work law, We can no longer deny this right by closed door negotiations by labor. I feel it's a person's right to choose whether he wants to belong to a labor organization.

I do not feel that the prevailing wage bill is for the best interest of the majorities of the citizens in House District 40 or the State of Alabama. I think it would be a hindrance to bringing in new businesses.

Knight: Absolutely not. When you start repealing the Right to Work law, you are taking away your basic right of a person choosing where they want to work and who they want to work for. I would not support any version of doing away with it, which includes agency shop.

I would not support any form of the prevailing wage bill, either.

Tanner: No. I could never support any legislation that would repeal the Right to Work law. I'm in favor it. If someone wants to join the union, that should be his or her prerogative. I don't see how anybody could be for that, but I know that there are a lot of people that are. I do support the Right to Work 100% and would not do anything to jeopardize that. I haven't read the prevailing wage bill. Until I can read the bill and be sure, I'm going to say I'm uncommitted.

House District 41

Entrekin: Absolutely not. Seventy percent of the population is against this. Fifty percent of even union rank and file people are against this because they know it is not the American way to force someone to join a union. Agency shop would force people to pay union dues whether they're members of the union or not. Fifty percent of the companies seeking to locate their businesses in the Sunbelt would not even consider locating in a state that did not have a Right to Work Law. Any benefit that might come to by having this would be very short lived because they're going to destroy the new job opportunities.

Prevailing Wage says that, effectively, the prevailing union wage would have to be paid on any state construction project. That means that taxpayers would have to pay up to 30% more for every construction project in this state. There's absolutely no benefit for the general citizen in Alabama for (any of these).

Moore: I will not support a piece of legislation that repeals the Right to Work Law. On the agency shop bill I would have to look at the language and what it says. That bill was in the legislature at one time. So you know I wouldn't lie to you, I supported that agency shop at that time. But it was some nine years ago and I'd have to see that bill today before I'd comment on if I would support it or wouldn't support it.

Under the structure of the prevailing wage that was introduced this year, I would support it. This time the prevailing wage would have been within Shelby County or a certain area, the same wage the federal government bases their wage. It wouldn't be like prevailing in Birmingham or New York, (but) close to where the construction is being done.

What might you propose to improve the quality of life for the elderly?

Senate District 14

Ellis: Experts are predicting that in the next century those of us who are 65 and over will account for more than one out of every five persons and will literally alter the way the US lives and works. One of the best programs that I have seen come out of the legislative process for the elderly is the current Program on Aging that provides facilities for the recreational and social gathering of our senior citizens; provides nutritional meals and care for them.

That program in some parts of Senate District 14 is being threatened by the possible loss of funds. I think that program needs to be protected and enhanced as money is available to do so. We must solve the problems in the years to come, that deal with their welfare and being and take advantages of the vitality and the training that those accumulated years can give to us.

The continuing health and care of our senior citizens from a medical standpoint, will largely have to depend on funding from the national level, as opposed to the state or county.

Murphy: I think our Program on Aging is an excellent program, one of the few programs I feel like we contribute to that we get our money's worth back out of. A lot of elderly people are on a fixed income. I think their utility bills should be on a fixed rate, and tied back to their income.

I think it's a disgrace when utilities can double their rates and no one cares about the elderly. I think there should be laws passed, or some restrictions put on utilities where the elderly on fixed incomes are concerned. Medical expenses — same story. There are some elderly people I know that can't buy insurance, but they get sick and have to go to the hospital. And in some cases they've spent their life savings just paying the hospital bill. They've paid their way in life and I feel like we have a strong obligation to see to it that they are cared for.

Gentry: The elderly are the backbone of this country. They have sacrificed and given us the things we enjoy today. We have got to see that those people are taken care of. You have got to provide things such as medical care for our senior citizens and the elderly. How can we just shun them and lay them to the side and say "you're no good?" There's a lot of ways we can work to provide for our senior citizens.

Knight: One of the areas of this country most overlooked and maltreated is the elderly. Of all the social programs in the country, the one I would jump on very quickly is support of the elderly. We mistreat the elderly as a rule, not as an exception. I'm not sure I have the information that I need to say what I would specifically do to support the elderly in Shelby County. However, I would say that I will continue to support efforts at making the life of the elderly citizens much more comfortable and easier. Although I don't have specific proposals, I am certainly open to any suggestions and would probably support any of the issues that come in support of the elderly.

Tanner: If I was a congressman or a US senator I could propose many more than I could as a legislator. But... I would like to see an expanded, complemented program for the elderly. I don't think they should be mandated to retire at age 50 or 55 or 65. When a man or woman is 60, 70 years old and is still performing his job well, he ought not to be required to retire unless he wants to.

One thing that I personally am doing is interceding in a suit that is pending before the Public Service Commission. The suit relates to the enormous increase that Bell Telephone is imposing. The elderly or disadvantaged or the handicapped that are living on a fixed income may be in a position that they can't afford a telephone. A telephone is no longer a luxury. So I'm interceding in a lawsuit on behalf of 65 senior citizens, that will hopefully establish a new program that's available in other states, called "The Lifeline Project." What that will do, if we're successful, is cut out anyone that's over 60 or 65 years old, or has some handicap or disability that ties into a fixed income. It will freeze their telephone rates at $8 or $10 a month.

Entrekin: Almost everything we're talking about is tied back into taxes, and taxes are tied back into getting new industry into Alabama. I believe that we could help elderly people in Alabama by being able to increase their medicare benefits if we had this new tax money.

Moore: We'd have to improve our senior Continued on next page

Vickrey regains post

University of Montevallo President Jim Vickrey has been reappointed to the Alabama Film Commission by Governor George C. Wallace.

The UM president received the news of his reappointment with the same good humor in which he received his termination notice a couple of weeks ago. His name was one left off the commission when Gov. Wallace announced reorganization plans.

"Reappointment is not nearly as exhilarating as being 'fired' from it, but it's a great deal more satisfying -- for which I thank Governor Wallace," Vickrey said. He expected to be placed back on the commission when Wallace reviewed his situation.

"The Film Commission can be a major force for enhancing economic development in our state, and I look forward to continuing to work with its members to attract more movie making to Alabama," he added. Vickrey, who teaches film courses in UM's Department of Communication Arts in addition to his administrative duties, is widely known for his interest in the subject. He does movie reviews on radio each week and "publishes" a weekly movie review newsletter called "ReelWorld."

His book "Passing Notes" includes some three dozen essays on motion pictures.

4-H Horse Club to meet at farm

A horse lovers' weekend is on tap for equine owners and fanciers.

On Saturday, members of the 4-H Horse Club will gather at the Triple E Farm on County 12 for a trail ride. But anyone who would like to join the ride or just have lunch with the group at the Tom Locey farm is welcome to do so.

A film on Quarter horses and a cutting demonstration is also open to the public Sunday afternoon.

That event will be held at the farm of Joe Clark in Brierfield beginning at 1:30.

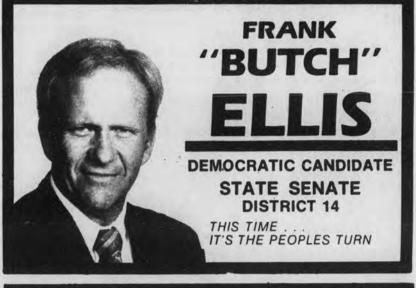

For more information about either activity, call the Loceys at 663-4213 or Grace Page, 663-5538.

citizens groups. We'd have to create more recreation for them, and take a special interest in seeing that these programs are administered to where more people can get involved in the programs. We'd probably need to put a larger sum of money into it. Money seems to be what it takes to be able to transport and feed and entertain our senior citizens. Today, it's hard to put that extra dollar in any program when you've been in proration. All of us need to devote time to our senior citizen programs to see that they have adequate meals and are cared for and have comfortable place in which to live.

Do you think a road is needed to tie together the county seat and the northern part of Shelby Coun-

Senate District 14

Ellis: Better access is needed without any question. I don't know that a new highway is needed to link Columbiana with other parts of the county, but better access -- whether that is a completely new highway or partially new and partially old improvement -- yes, I think that should be pursued as money is available to do it.

FRANK "BUTCH" ELLIS

Murphy: That's the "phantom road" that you hear about everytime an election comes up. It would be nice if we had the funds to do it, but I believe the figure I've heard is $18 million or better or to do. I think we could use the $18 million a lot better than having a direct road to Columbiana. It would more than likely double the $18 million (to build).

House District 40

Gentry: I do not at this time -- a county road -feel that Shelby County can afford to. Not that it's not needed. I think that plans should be laid and ground work should possibly be done now. Sure, it's going to be a necessity in order to tie the 280 business district into the county seat here. Then again, is it really going to be that valuable since we have the courthouse annex in Pelham? So, yes and no. It could provide a much quicker and safer way to come to the county courthouse, but I do not feel like the expense of the highway would be justifiable.

Knight: I don't know.

I don't know that it would be better if we were to expend that kind of resources on establishing that kind of road. I think from the long range standpoint, I would have to say yes. Not just North Shelby -- it's tying in all the county where Columbiana would be the hub and have easy access to all parts of the count. Sure, you hear an awful lot of complaints about getting to Columbiana from the north party of the county. It's a pretty drive, but it's not what a lot of people consider easy access. In order to provide easy access. for everybody to the center of county government - it is really needed.

Alternatives are available, however. One of those is the branch courthouse. The more services that are available to all parts of the county, the better off we are. And that may be a better alternative. If the county is going to have to fund (the road), I think the county could find a whole lot of things that are needed far more than a road to the north part of the county.

Tanner: Yes -- if we could provide the funding for it -- that would be a tremendous asset for the folks that live in north Shelby County that have to come to Columbiana. Of course you have the branch in Pelham now, but it would certainly open up this area (Columbiana).

House District 41

Entrekin: I haven't been asked that question before. There may be a need I don't know about. People may have some problems that I don't know about. It would be nice, but I don't at this point think that I could say it's necessary.

Moore: I supported that and we thought that we would be lot farther along now than we were under the James administration. We had a commitment from him for survey purposes. It would be a way to get to the northern part of Shelby County, and with the population growth in the northern part of Shelby County, they certainly need a way to get to the county seat. Certainly I support some corridor or some road or something to get people to and from Columbiana in a better way than which we have today.

Would you support any increases in taxes? If so, what for and which taxes? Senate District 14

Ellis: I would not support any increase in taxes unless it provided for a vote by the people. I do not believe the majority of the people in this distrcit are opposed to imposition of any new tax with the possible exception of the more adequate funding of the educational needs of our children.

Murphy: If we had to have a tax, probably the safest tax and fairest tax you could impose on the people would be a sales tax, a statewide sales tax. If we had to have additional revenue for the nursing homes, the medicare, medicaid, the schools -those would be some of the ones I would look at if I would vote for a tax. Right now I don't think we need a tax on the people or industry either. I think we can get more mileage out of what money we've got if we'll just do it.

House District 40

Gentry: If the majority of the people felt that a higher millage tax was needed to improve our education, put more money back into the classrooms, new construction of buildings -- yes I would definitely support this. I would support a tax as long as the majority of people want it. I think that decision should be left up to the people.

'Would you support tax increase?'

And I think you will find that a majority of the people would support a higher millage for education should it come up for a vote.

Knight: Sure. The first increase in tax I would support whole heartedly is the five mills additional, in education, ad valorem tax. Right now the county is charging below what is allowed by the state legislature without getting legislative approval.

This is probably going to get me in trouble... One of the things we do in this state is advertise extremely low property taxes. But the first things an exceptionally low property tax tells most people is that you have exceptionally low services. I don't think right now this county is properly funded. I don't think we can pay our employees as well as they should be paid. We can't expand the services to meet the increased growth we're meeting. Look at the sheriff's department. He has a tremendous burden to patrol the whole county. I don't think the sheriff's department is properly funded. I don't think many of the departments are properly funded. I would probably have to say I would support an increase in ad valorem tax for the county commission.

Tanner: Taxes -- it would depend on what for. That's a Catch 22 question. If it was a tax that would help education, then I could probably support that. But it's too simplistic to say yes I would support a tax to improve education, because you'd want to be darn sure you know what that tax is going to do for education, and what it's going to do for education in my district.

People in north Shelby, for instance, I think would favor a tax increase in something like property tax if it could be targeted for education in their area. But people in south Shelby County, especially those people on fixed incomes who don't have children in schools, are not going to support that. That's where you have to weigh the plusses against the minusses. The answer to the question is maybe.

Entrekin: There's three ways to get more revenue: you can tax the people more; you can get rid of waste in your present system; and you can bring new tax generating sources into your area. I don't believe I could be for raising taxes on people until we've tried the other two methods; we haven't done a good job at that. If we simply go out and pass new taxes, then we're not going to be putting pressure on politicians to do the dirty work necessary to get rid of waste in the system. We've got to force that issue first. We've got to force the issue of bringing new tax sources into the state, or else we'll just continue to go on taxing the people and taxing the people.

The tax I would probably support the quickest would be a referendum for a higher mill tax specifically for education, for special education districts that people in the county might want to create

Moore: Today I don't believe I would support any increase in taxes. And if I did it would be at a vote of the people of the county. Right now I don't see any statewide taxes that I would support. They're talking about sales tax for prisons, they talked about more revenue for gasoline. But I don't think people in the state, as a whole, would be supportive of a tax measure at this time.

How much are you spending on this election? Senate District 14

Ellis: My wife and I went to the bank and borrowed $5,000 to fund this campaign. We're not spending a great deal of money. We've accepted and will accept no money from any political action committee, any lobbyist group or special or vested interest that attempts to lobby in Montgomery. We have accepted some individual contributions from friends. With respect to the question, I'm hoping that my personal expenditure on the election will be limited to... maybe $2,000. We will probably spend, total, approximately $7,500, but I don't know.

Murphy: I couldn't answer that because I don't know how much I've spent. I've spent quite a lot, mainly on advertising, posters. I'm not going to spend what most people spend on an election. I don't feel like you have to.

House District 40

Gentry: I really could not give you a definite figure on a set price at this time. My books are open to you. The Citizens for Gentry Campaign is open to anyone who wants to look at it. I have nothing to hide as far as that's concerned.

Knight: I don't know for sure, but we plan to spend between $6,000 and $8,000.

Tanner: I can honestly say I don't know. Are you asking how much is John Tanner spending? I'm not spending any of my money this time. I wised up. My contributions are coming from individuals who believe in my campaign. I'm probably at $6,000 now and it'll probably go around $8,000.

House District 41

Entrekin: I hope to spend around $8,000, but that remains to be seen. That's what I'm budgeting.

Moore: Exactly what we have spent, I couldn't tell you at the present time. We've tried to keep it at a very nominal figure.

Are there any issues that you think are important that we have not addressed? Senate District 14

Ellis: In answering any question about particular bills, you must realize that there are probably 100 different ways to write bills that fit into any of those categories. It is somewhat difficult to intelligently answer those questions that simply identify a piece of legislation by its common name, without talking more specifically about the particular provisions of the bill and how it will be worded.

Yes. I think we all know what the problems that we face are... I think the issue is which of the candidates is the most qualified to answer and solve those problems, and which of the candidates can be the most effective in Montgomery.

We've got to do something about the quality of education. We've got to do something to solve the problems of jobs and unemployment. We've got to do something about crime. Somewhere we've forgotten that the law is designed to protect those that obey the law, and to punish those that disobey it. We've got to reverse that and the vast cost of crime in our society.

The real issue in the campaign is which candidate is best qualified to address those issues.

Murphy: Yes. I want to talk about the hand picked candidates of the Democratic Party. I think the news media has been remiss in pointing out to the public about how the hand picking came about. I'd like to see an article why all of a sudden the Democratic Party decided to have hand picking instead of open primaries. They lambasted the Republican Party and rightfully so for not giving the people the opportunity to vote (in past years). I think this is something not to be taken lightly. I think it's a big issue.

House District 40

Gentry: The small business people. Taxing the business people. I think that again we cannot continue to tax business people who employ people who are paying taxes to build the sound tax base that we have got to have to be a successful county and to be a successful state.

One other thing is the environment. We must protect the clean air we breathe, the clean water that we enjoy in this area. We cannot let this county or any county become a dump site for hazardous waste. We already have one hazardous waste disposal here in Alabama, and we cannot afford to let the dumping of hazardous waste come into the State of Alabama. Period.

Communications. I think we have seen, especially here in this county, in this house district, a lack of communications between the legislator who was there, as far as everybody is concerned and not just a few people. A legislator should be able to communicate with everybody, keeping them informed with what is going on. I do plan to place each and every piece of local legislation in the county paper so that the people can be informed on what is going on. This is one you'll be able to communicate more so than it's ever been done before with the people.

Knight: There are two issues I would bring up.
One of them is that we as a county have been a part of so many delegations. We have never really

We need jobs and tax money that new industry will provide. My opponent received the lowest rating possible (0%) from groups trying to get new industry in Alabama. Jim Entrekin will work to help Alabama attract new business and industry to our state and county.

Issues you think important?

had the opportunity to have a Shelby County delegation, and we have that opportunity now. I think it's going to be critical now as it was in the past — but it was never exercised — that the state and county bodies know what's going on with each other. The city officials need to be involved in it. I would insist that we have a periodic meeting of various county and city officials that would allow the representatives and senator to know what's going on in the county and cities, and vice versa. It's important that we establish those needs before we get to the point of voting on a bill.

The second thing is that this county is experiencing phenomenal growth. And there's good news and bad news to growth. The good news is it brings new industry to the area... The bad news is that the funds provided through the new taxes take years to reach the county budgets. So we have to be providing these increased services before we're able to fund them. The state needs to help us in this regard. There should be a needs assessment in this area. We should be getting more of the bond money that's been available in the past. The county education system is bursting at the seams. All you have to do is go down to Thompson Elementary and see the seven portable classrooms and the fourth and fifth grade combined class in the foyer. We have got to have state help to cope with the problems.

Tanner: One of the key issues is who can be the most effective for the district. If you labor under the assumption that everyone wants to do the right thing, then who can best do that?

One other issue is victims' rights. To enact legislation to provide more stringent safeguards for protection of victims' rights in criminal cases.

There's another (issue) -- increase the drinking age to 21. That's something that's going to come up and needs to be addressed and I would support that.

The move on to limit the abortion law in Alabama. Yes, I do (favor it).

House District 41

Entrekin: Probably another issue that we haven't talked much about deals with trial lawyers and their efforts in the legislature. They narrowly failed to pass legislation in the last session that would allow lawsuits to be filed and heard by people who are injured because of their own negligence. This is called the comparative negligence bill. This would simply open up Pandora's box to all kinds of lawsuits against any and everybody, even though you caused the injury yourself. All you're doing there is just making it more profitable to lawyers. Also they're trying to pass laws to force you to carry higher amounts of insurance on your car, your home, so they can get higher judgments and higher fees in their lawsuits. All lawyers are not this way. But the trial lawyer group led by Jimmy Knight -- this is definitely the way they operate. They go around trying to get people to sue other people. These are the kinds of people who are heading up the Democratic Party in Alabama.

I think another issue in Shelby County is how responsive the member of the legislature is to local government. I believe the function of state government should be to support local government. I have two functions as I see it: basically, I'm to communicate and support the needs of local governments, and I'm to adequately represent the people of this county and state.

Shelby County is growing very fast. We need to make sure that this new growth is controlled, that it's compatible with the lifestyle we want. We need to make sure it's not detrimental to our areas in any way. We need to look for a candidate who will preserve our communities and neighborhoods by planning the growth.

Moore: I think you've asked the main questions. Of course we'll have a lot more questions—what we're going to do with a prison system, and if the people are going to be willing to pay the price to house the prisoners as the federal government requires us to do? Or are we going to still have to let them out? The legislature is going to have to address that. It's very, very costly. We're just finishing up three prisons and the court's still trying to make us turn them out. I don't know what the answer is.

... You want a politician to say yes or no. That is what I was telling you about the agency shop bill and a few other things -- you and I neither one knows what will be in the bill. Have no idea what would be in the bill. You want a politician to say yes or no. Then in eight months, if he didn't do on the yes or no, the way that you asked the question, then you or any other group will, if it doesn't suit your taste -- "Moore said in October the 29th, 1983, that he wouldn't. January the 16th in 19 and 84, he did!" And neither one of us knows what was in the bill. You're going by a title only. And until a bill is looked at, you have no more idea of what's going to be in it than I do. We tend to think that just because of a name title, we're opposed to it or, for it, or because one group gives you a donation that you're going to support every piece of legislation that comes down the path. ... You think that all of a sudden a Democratic nominee gets endorsed by that committe that puts them in, that everything they want, everything they ask for, that's what they're going to get. There's a lot been said about hand picking. I have won more elections than the Republican Party has had primaries.

Longtime city leader dies

Zera King Walton died at her home in Columbiana on November 1.

A graduate of Troy State Teachers College and the University of Alabama, she came to Columbiana in 1929 as Supervisor of Instruction for the Shelby County schools. She served in this capacity until 1937.

During this time she was elected President of the State Supervisors and was initiated into the Delta Kappa Gamma Society, and was also a member of Kappa Delta Pi, educational honorary society.

She was a member of the Columbiana Methodist Church where she served on the official board, was superintendent of the children's department, and a leader in the MYF. She was a past president of the local WSCS and a leader in the Sylacauga District.

Mrs. Walton was a president of the Columbiana PTO and of the Columbiana Culture Club. She was active in the formation of the Columbiana Public Library, and Representative Don Murphy believes some false information is circulating about his support of the Attention Home.

Home support

He says that he strongly supports the home and its programs, and has a letter from W.M. 'Bill' Rushton, director of the state department of Economic and Community Affairs, thanking him for his calls to that office about funds for the home.

Rushton told Murphy that the application for funds did not arrive at his office until after the funds were already committed.

Rushton also said that the Attention Home may not be eligible for funds under the program he administers, but his staff is looking into it.

The fact that the Attention Home did not receive the grant has caused considerable dismay in local circles. was a member of the American

Church calls Irish preacher

John Douglas Mark got acquainted with pay phones and car tag

The Irish preacher had planned to make a quick trip to Columbiana to buy his car tag before picking up his kindergarten age daughter for

However, Mark hadn't bargained on the waiting line in the probate office which necessitated finding a pay phone to call to the school, telling them he would be late.

"I hadn't realized you had to pay for a local call," he explained. Since his arrival in this country two years ago, Mark and his family have been living in North Carolina. He has recently been called to assume the pastorate of Faith Presbyterian Church on Valleydale Road where he will be offically installed Sunday.

A native of Armagh in Northern Ireland, Mark graduated from Dublin University and New College in Edinburgh, Scotland where he attended seminary.

Members of a North Carolina congregation knew Mark from an assistantship he served in a church near them during the summer of 1972. They called him to be their pastor from the First Killyleagh Presbyterian Church of Ireland.

"When we arrived in this country in October," Mark remembered, "it was hotter than the hottest day in Ireland."

Another difference he found in this country, Mark said, was the pace of life. It is, he observed, "so much faster here." After their arrival in Shelby County, Mark told the Reporter that he and his wife were impressed that, "the congregation called us to minister to them -- but they've been ministering to us as well." He reported that the church has 150 members now, adding that there is great potential for growth. Since the majority of the congregation is made up of young couples, Mark noted that the church has "a stack of small children with several on the way."

The minister and his wife, Alison, are among the couples expecting. Their fifth child is due in January.

Their family now consists of Jonathan, 8; Catherine, 6; Olwyn, 4 and Andrew, 2.

Last January, a 90-year-old woman faced a critical situation. At the height of cold weather, she was suffering from arthritis and a severe kidney ailment.

Medical and heating costs were higher than usual, and her only income was government assistance. As the bills mounted, there was not enough money to pay for heating and the other expenses, too. She had never had to ask for help before. Project SHARE paid her heating

With 27-0 rout of West Blocton

Montevallo Bulldogs had something to prove

The Montevallo Bulldogs won their last regular game of the season last Friday night 27-0. But the road victory over 2A powerhouse West Blocton came on the heels of a very trying week.

It also came at a time when the now 9-1 Bulldogs had something to prove.

Number one tailback Jeff Chism and wingback Andy Chism were both suspended from the game by Coach Richard Gilliam for disciplinary

Students in Montevallo were telling the team that it could not win without its two super stars, said Gilliam.

To add to all this, right cornerback Jeff Gentry's father passed away during the week and he had to leave the team last Monday.

Starting end Rick Dobson was hurting from a back injury and fullback Barry Worthy was suffering from a joint injury to his big toe. But by game time Dobson was back at 85 to 90 percent efficiency, said Gilliam, and Gentry was a surprising returnee to the squud by Thursday. "He gave us outstanding leadership," the Bulldog coach said, in praise of the young man who had suffered a personal tragedy.

Worthy's condition really never improved and Gilliam had to limit him to defensive duty. He normally played both on the team's offense and defense.

As for the Chism boys, Gilliam found himself actually holding tryouts to fill their positions.

Kevin Staffney won the job of replacing Jeff Chism as an outside linebacker on defense and Anthony Prentice replaced the star on offense.

Ricky Gaddis replaced Andy Chism on offense and Keith Moore replaced Barry Worthy on of-

To further complicate things, number two fullback Keith Moore had to alternate with Rodney Tolbert who had never played before this

But anyone who saw Montevallo play last Friday night would never have dreamed the personnel

The Bulldogs opened the game with a 65-yard 12 play drive that ended with a one-yard Prentice endzone leap. Paul Bush added the PAT and Montevallo led 7-0.

The next time Montevallo had the ball, it moved 57 yards in 11 plays and again Prentice scored from the one. The PAT was wide and low this time but the Bulldogs led 13-0.

The second Bulldog TD was set up by a 20-yard Taylor Blackwell run.

Montevallo continued to dominate action in the third period. A four play, 65-yard drive was capped by a 54-yard scoring run by quarterback Blackwell. Prentice scored the two-point conversion and Montevallo led 21-0.

Ouinton Chism added to the trouble for West Blocton when he blocked a punt. But the following Bulldog field goal attempt by Paul Bush was no good.

Later in the fourth quarter, West Blocton shot itself in the foot. A punt snap sailed over the kicker's head and Montevallo took possession at the opposition's nine yard line.

Realizing that victory was secure and that West Blocton had played a "clean" game, Gilliam sent his number two squad into the contest. The move was intended to retard further scoring.

But as fate would have it, reserve quarterback Ricky Gaddis optioned up the middle and went the distance for the score. The PAT was missed but the Bulldogs went on to win 27-0.

West Blocton was 6-2 on the season coming into the Montevallo game. They had only lost to football powers Brookwood and Oak Grove.

"But our kids really wanted to prove something... that they could win without Andy or Jeff Chism," Gilliam explained of his team's outstanding play under extraordinary circumstances.

As for the suspended twosome, Gilliam had only good words.

'They took their punishment like men and stood in their civilian clothes on the sidelines. They cheered their teammates on. They will be fully restored," he said.

Montevallo has cinched a spot in the state 2A playoffs, but the Bulldogs will not know until Friday night who their opponent will be.

The 'Dogs first state playoff game will be November 11 and it will be an away contest.

For the record, Montevallo defeated West Blocton by scoring the same number of points last season. The only difference was that the opposition did score two touchdowns in that 27-12 contest.

Winning tradition helps Warriors roll Vincent

The Thompson Warriors could have slobbed around last Friday night and for a while last week, it seemed they would.

The Warriors were out of the area race, thanks to Sylacauga. With no playoff future, their practices had been poor by the standards of Head Coach Doug Wheeler and running back Luvell Bivins. But when the 7:30 p.m. kickoff came for the Thompson/Vincent football game in Alabaster, something snapped. The Warriors played like a team possessed and they blitzed the Yellow Jackets 41-16.

"I was suprised it turned out like it did," Coach Wheeler said reflecting on the week's practice."But it seemed like they came together tonight and I co tell they were getting ready to play.".

"During the week, we weren't fired up at all," confessed Bivins. However, he touched upon something that proved to be the Thompson rally to arms.

"We have a winning tradition at THS and we wanted to go out and finish the year as winners... and that's what we did tonight."

But hold the phone, Thompson isn't really finished yet. West Point arrives Friday for a game that was added late in the season. Bivins' simply referred to his team's clean sweep of county op-

However, questions of Warrior motivation never mattered to Vincent Coach Harold Garrett.

"They could have wollered around... but they came after us," was all he had to say.

When you get down to it, Garrett was right! Nothing matters but the fact the Warriors scored 41 points, unleashed 201 yards of rushing power and a 161 yard air attack.

In turn, Thompson held Vincent to just 210 yards and 16

Thompson wasted little time proving its motivations anyway. It took the big red machine less than one minute to score a touchdown, have it called back, and to score again.

Bivins took the opening kickoff and returned it all the way. A clip brought the TD back but it took Thompson only two plays to relight the scorebaord.

Bivins moved eleven yards from his own 34 yard line to the Thompson 43. From there Gordon Kenney hit Scottie Hawkins

'Jacket breakthrough

Vincent standout Robert Pouge (33) breaks into the Thompson endzone for a third period twopoint conversion. The Yellow Jackets lost this meeting with the Warriors 41-16 but with the help of never say die players like Pouge, they won the second half of play 16-8. Celebrating Pouge's conversion are Cedric Riggins (32), Scotty Kelley (51) and others. Heath Reynolds (15) didn't get to see the two-point play because he was too busy blocking. Thompson Jimmy Frazier (19), Alfred Pickett (62) and another unknown Warrior didn't like the play very much. (Photo by Fred Guarino) with a 56-yard paydirt bomb. The PAT missed but Thompson led 6-0 with 11:03 remaining in the first quarter.

If Vincent was shaken by early turn of events, the Yellow Jackets had to be reeling moments later. On their first possession drive, a Yellow Jacket pass was picked off by Thompson's Todd Harris at the Vincent 35 yard line. Just seven plays later Bivins scored on a two-yard romp.

A two-point conversion attempt by Kenney failed, but the Warriors led 12-0 in the first Vincent could do little on its next possession and a punt to Thompson started another Warrior TD drive.

Bivins and Max Brown took turns carrying the ball from the Warrior 20 yard line. Kenney mixed in passes to Tim Smith and Brown for good measure. A late hit penalty against Vincent also helped the cause.

The 80-yard push finally came to a close in the second quarter on a first and goal TD pass from Kenney to Smith. Bivins scored the two point conversion and Thompson led 20-0.

Vincent couldn't get any offense going and that was just fine with the Warriors.

On its next possession, Thompson used only three plays to complete a 61-yard scoring drive. Bivins ran for seven yards and Brown ran for four yards before Bivins ripped a 50-yard dash to the endzone. The PAT was good and Thompson led 27-0.

The Yellow Jackets tried to get something going just before the half ended.

They moved from their own 34 yard line to the Warrior 21 with the help of passes from Eddie Reynolds to Otis Kidd, Bruce Hamilton, and Heath Reynolds. Robert Pouge handled the rushing.

But a fourth down pass fell incomplete and Thompson took over at its own 14 yard line.

Seven plays and 86 yards later, the Warriors led 33-0 on a 21-yard Kenney to Smith pass. The only glory for the Yellow Jackets was a PAT block by Vernon Kidd.

Things got much worse for Vincent before they got better in the second half.

A Yellow Jacket punt was returned 43 yards by Bivins to finish Warrior TD scoring in the third quarter.

But even an illegal procedure call against Thompson on the PAT didn't help Vincent. The point after had been ruled good. But when the Warriors had to try it again, Kenney simply passed to Preston Hansford for the twopoint conversion and a 41-0 lead.5

The Yellow Jackets would finally score late in the third period on a 79-yard drive capped by a four-yard pass from

by Mark C. Jones

The Calera Eagles captured their sixth win of the season last Friday night by defeating area foe Maplesville 21-7.

The win came with the help of two Darryl Griffith touchdowns and that ups the Eagles' to 6-3 on the year with one game remaining against rival Isabella.

"Maplesville gave us a tough fight but our guys wanted it more, I think," said a pleased Danny Alverson. "Our players are playing with pride and our seniors are leading the way in keeping our winning tradition."
One senior, Todd Kill-

ingsworth, figured in on 21 tackles, five unassisted, to lead the stingy Calera defense. He led a group that gave up just one touchdown, and rallied to hold off several Maplesville threats.

"Todd is one of the best football players I've ever seen at Calera." said Alverson. "he has a natural instinct for the football and I believe he is definitely one of the best in the state."

The Devils scored first on an 84-yard, 14 play drive with 11:09 to go in the second quarter. The extra point attempt was good and Maplesville lead 7-0.

The Eagles defense rose to the nover at the Eagle 28 yard line.

Three plays later, the Devils found themselves even further away from the goal at the Calera 33. Maplesville punted and the Eagles mounted their most impressive drive of the night.

Pushing 80 yards in 12 plays Calera tied the game with 3:54 left in the first half on a fouryard Griffith run and Steve Ellison added the extra point. The score was set up by a 34 yard pass from Mark Jones to Edwin Milstead.

The Eagles squandered another scoring opportunity late in the half moving to within four yards of the Devils' goal. But time expired and Calera settled for a tie game at the half.

Calera's third possession of the second half resulted in a 65 yard, five play touchdown drive. Kenny Johnson ran it in from 14 yards out with 40 seconds left in the period. Ellison added the kick to give the Eagles a 14-7 lead.

Cedric Keller also contributed defensively, intercepting a Maplesville pass deep in Calera territory in the fourth quarter.

> Later in the quarter, an Eagle drive ran out of gas at the Devil 43 and Ellison punted to the Maplesville 9 yard line. Three plays later the Devils fumbled and Calera recovered.

With just 39 seconds left in the game Griffith put the icing on the cake with his second touchdown run from six yards out. Ellison kicked the extra point and win number six was in the bag. "This win was important for us because we made a goal of finishing 7-3 after our loss to Verbena that prevents us from going to the playoffs." said Alverson. "I'm sure all our players, especially the seniors, want to close out our year with a win. And we want to end the year undefeated at home. That's important to all of us."

Pelham fought the Aggies to a close 15-7 score.

"I thought we had a real good effort," said Panther Coach Billy Tohill. "We just made some mistakes that were the turning point of Tohill would not say what the costly mistakes were. But he gave credit to his team for playing with number one and number two tailbacks Mark Brashier and Ricky Shifflett as well as starting free safety Tony Jeffers.

The Panthers trailed Sylacauga 9-0 at the half. But Pelham came back in the third quarter to make it a 9-7 game on a Gary Howard two-yard run and PAT.

The two teams stayed within two points of each other until late in the fourth quarter when the Aggies upped their lead to 15-7.

Tohill would not name anyone as an outstanding individual player for Pelham but he had good words for his team as a whole.

"Golly, they didn't score but 15 points on us and they've got folks who can outrun lightning," he said. "Our people were getting to the football."

The Panthers will be looking for their fourth win of the season Friday night when Chilton County comes calling.

That's the way Shelby Academy Coach Dewayne Kervin responded to his team's eighth loss of the season against two

His Raider squad played a fairly even contest with Southern but gave up the ball enough for the opposition to take a 17-3 victory.

The Raiders took a 3-0 lead in the second quarter on a 32-yard Vince Pickett field goal. But the first mistake came when Shelby Academy gave up a 47-yard pass to set up a game tying field goal.

The biggest mistake of the night came however in the third period. A lateral was dropped by the Raiders and picked up Southern for a score.

came when the Raiders gave up a Raiders at home.

"It was the same old story... 46 yard run to the opposition.

Statistically the Raiders made one more first down than Southern, rushed only six less yards and passed for 34 more yards.

"It was a fairly even game... The difference was our mistakes. They (Southern) don't make any," Kervin said.

Last year's contest between Shelby Academy and Southern was so even that it ended in a 6-6

But with Southern behind them, the 2-8 Raiders must forget and go forward to host arch rival Coosa Valley Academy Friday night. Coosa Valley sports a 1-7 record, which means that both teams will be hungry.

"I think it will be a toss-up," The final mistake of the night Kervin said to be played by the Lady Falcons head for district in volleyball competition

With the help of former Thompson High School star "Toots" Cooley, the Lady Falcons volleyball team sports a 22-19 record with the two most important matches of the season scheduled this Saturday (Nov. 5).

UM has reached District 27 playoffs and the winner qualifies for the NAIA National Tournament (Nov. 17-19) in Rock Hill, SC.

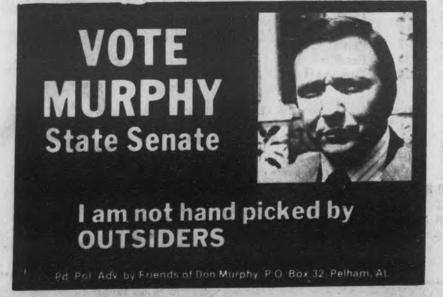

The District tournament will take place in Bell Gym on the UAB campus with Montevallo playing Huntingdon College at 3 p.m., with the winner playing Alabama State at 5 p.m., with both matches being the best three-out-of-five games.

One of the most consistent players on the team has been THS product Cooley. She was an day."

All-Star player for coach Lynn Rushing at Thompson and has progressed into one of the top setters in the area.

"Toots" is having another good year for us and will be a key if our offense is to get on track this Saturday," said Warren. "She made the All-District 27 team last year and I feel she is having just as good of a year this year."

"I am very confident that we will win the District tournament," said Cooley. "The experience we gained at the National Tournament last year will help us, plus I feel that even though our record isn't great we have played a tough schedule and that will pay off for us this Satur-

'Night Train'

He may be just a freshman, but 6'3" former Thompson High School football star Arthur Johnson has already seen action in the orange and blue of the Auburn Tigers. He didn't get to play against Florida Saturday but he was ready for Coach Pat Dye's call. Having made six tackles for the tigers this year, Johnson has already been nick named "Night Train". Tiger, Johnson is Warrior at heart

by Fred Guarino

While the Auburn Tigers defeated a determined bunch of Florida Gators in Auburn last Saturday, a proud, former Warrior from Thompson High School could only look on from the

Also while the Tigers were whipping the Gators 28-21, another proud, former Warrior could only listen to the game from home in Alabaster. He was out with a pinched nerve in his back.

Too, another Thompson Warrior failed to see action. But all three freshmen had one thing to be proud of Saturday -- all enjoy the privilege of being Auburn Tigers and all were given scholarships for their performances on Larry Simmons' 3A State Champion high school team.

Until last Saturday Arthur Johnson had played -- some -- in every game for Auburn. He had made six tackles as a defensive back. Three of those were solos and three were assists.

Demetrius Threatt got into action against Kentucky two carries gained an impressive 18 yards.

While Greg Snell has never been in on an Auburn snap, he too has claim to fame. He has been red shirted for future use. Of the three, Johnson was the only Warrior ready on Saturday should Coach Pat Dye have found the need. Dressed in full battle gear, Johnson cheered excitedly as Bo Jackson ripped 55 yards for a TD early in the first quarter.

Helmet in hand, he got excited again when Randy Campbell scored on a four-yard first period burst.

When Chris Taylor took a 41-yard Campbell pass for yet another score. Johnson let his excitement get the best of him. Johnson never sat down in the first half. He never sat down during the whole game -- just in case, hope against hope, he might be needed. Johnson didn't sit even when Florida scored to make it a 21-7 ballgame and indicated this was no contest for the untried.

When the Tigers came out for the second half of play, Johnson was even more eager, wearing his helt of and stanging closer to his coaches.

After a Florida fumble on a would-be TD romp and after an 80-yard follow up Bo Jackson TD burst, Johnson must have seen visions of participating.

When the Tigers held Florida on four downs at the Auburn one yard line, Johnson strutted the sidelines and slapped hands with his defensive buddies. After Florda closed it to a 28-21 game, he knew the battle call would never come for him. Not today.

In the locker room... Johnson sat quietly in a corner removing his clean battle gear. He smiled shyly and showed some surprise that someone had actually come to interview him.

"Yes sir I wanted to get in," Johnson laughed when asked about his long sideline vigil. "I played in all games but this one... But the main thing is winning and that's what we did." But what about the times he did play? The six tackles? How does it feel to play major college ball?

"It feels good, but I don't get too high on that," Johnson said thoughtfully and with team spirit. "I can always do better and before the year is over I hope I can contribute more." Is college ball really different than high school, and is that difference the power behind the tackles and blocks? "It is different. I expected that" Johnson confessed. "But it's the speed of the linemen... everyone out there is much faster than in high school." You were numnber one on your high school team. How does it feel to be a freshman reserve player on a college team? "It's hard but I expected that. I knew I wouldn't jump out. But after I got the spring under my belt, I knew I'd be all right." Are you happy or do you miss Alabaster?

"I'm happy here," Johnson said pausing for a moment The question stirred something. "I miss Alabaster, a whole lot of friends and everyone, especially my high school coach."

Johnson confided that he keeps up with his old Warrior squad every Friday night. But are there any regrets? Do you feel you made the right decision to play for Auburn? "Yes sir, I made the right decision," Johnson perked up. "I never regretted it." Johnson may not have played physically in Saturday's football contest but he played with his mind and heart. And no, Johnson has not changed or gotten big headed. He is still a young man from Alabaster with a soft, warm spot for home and those he left behind.

It was a tough year...

Briarwood Lions sought higher goals

A long football season came to a close for the Briarwood Christian High School last Friday night.

Last year at this point the Lions were preparing to play Cathedral for the championship of Alabama Christian Athletic Conference -which they won. They sported an outstanding 9-1 record.

Last Friday night the Lions finished out the 1983 season. The circumstances, however, were different. They suffered their seventh loss against two wins -- 20-6 at the hands of Isabella.

It was a disappointing finish before a home crowd. "We played tougher opponents," commented Coach Gary Fleming of his team's first year as an associate member of the Alabama High School Athletic Assocation.

Briarwood wanted to participate more with public schools to broaden its sports horizons and seek State Board of Education accredidation. (not necessarily in that order.) It knew it would not be eligible for any state honors this season.

But still Briarwood and Fleming hoped to do better on both the year, and the last game.

"We played part of the game real good and four or five plays later... we were in another world and zap, zap, the opposition scored," Fleming said. "We played people who had the capability of scoring like that."

Fleming, however, did not write 1983 off as a total loss. He said that his team was never overwhelmed by any of the public schools it played. "We just played poor in spots."

Even against Isabella, the Lions put up a good fight. On the first play of the second half Bobby Welch threw a 65-yard bomb to Kevin Kynerd to close within seven of the opposition at 13-6. Later the Lions pushed to the Isabella ten yard line only to throw an interception. "We could have tied it, or gone ahead," Fleming noted. Too, the Lion defense came alive and a last second TD by Isabella left a score which belied the closeness of the contest.

What about the future for Briarwood? "There is a good sophomore class and junior class coming along," the coach said optimistically. "We are losing some kids who didn't have a lot of talent, but who did have a lot of grit and determination." The Lions will hold their annual sports banquet Friday night at 6:30 p.m. No doubt they'll come away winners from that.

Lions fight

Isabella may have out scored the Briarwood Lions last Friday night, but they certainly didn't hit any harder. Proving that the Lions have a strong defense in their last game of the season are Jimmy Collier (11) and Art Hickman (55). Too far away to help is Kenneth Preston (87).(Photo by Jerome Bannister)

Mistakes not Tigers destroy Wildcats

The score was Childersburg 20, Shelby County 7 as the final second ticked off the scoreboard clock last Friday night.

That score was the same margin by which the Wildcats lost to Childersburg 26-13 last year. But this time the contest was not so much a whipping by the Tigers as it was a suicidal effort by SCHS.

Too, the game was not as lopsided as the score indicates.

The Wildcats held the football only four times in the first half.

They fumbled once, threw two interceptions and were called one time for holding.

Even so, Childersburg led by only 12 points at the half.

A Tiger fumble recovered by the Wildcats early in the third period set up the only Shelby County score of the night. Quarterback Kenneth Jones sneaked into the endzone from one yard out. Jeff Denny added the PAT to make it a 12-7 con-fourth periods of play but those suicidal tendencies came back to kill would-be winning touchdowns.

Once Shelby County pushed inside the Childersburg ten yard line but that drive stalled. Another time the Wildcats punched deep into Tiger territory only to fumble.

"I thought we had good effort but we had too many mistakes," said Wildcat Coach Ricky Seale. "In the last three games we have the ball well in the third and had 16 turnovers and you can't beat anybody with that."

> But accounting for the deep pushes into Tiger territory, Seale credited his offensive line and the catching ability of Gerald Lawson and Jeff Denny.

> Shelby County travels to Jemison Friday night for a game Seale said he thinks his team can win. However, he said, "We have to go out there and play and not

Panthers win fourth championship

With their biggest offensive outing the 95 pound Pelham Panthers defeated Central Park 42-6 to remain the only undefeated team in the AYFL.

The Panthers finish the year as American Conference champions for the fourth time in as many

In Saturday's offensive effort the young Pelham team mounted 210 yards rushing and 60 yards passing. They lead 12-0 at half but later added 30 points.

Scott Busby lead the team with 84 yards and two touchdowns. Robbie McCary added two touchdowns and David Sanders and Brian Chambers added one each.

Jimmy Hicks accounted for 12 points, passing to Busby for one touchdown and running for three extra points.

On the year the Panthers totaled 244 points compared to 38 for opponents. In seven regular season games

Pelham compiled 1565 yards total offense. Busby paced the team with 547 yards, eight touchdowns and one extra point.

George Golliday turned in the most points with eight touchdowns and six extra points. Chambers had the best average carry with 274 yards on 11 carries for seven touchdowns and two

Coosa Valley falls again

Coosa Valley Coach Bruce Breland didn't have a whole lot to say after his team fell to 1-7 on the year last Friday night.

The Rebels were whipped 49-13 by a 6-3 Springwood team that has lost only to 3A size schools.

Breland would name no standouts for the game and he would only say of his team's upcoming fight and season finale with Shelby Academy, "I think it will be a classic battle between two rebuilding teams."

Coosa Valley's only points against Springwood came on a six-yard pass from quarterback Ricky Sprouce, a PAT and a three yard run by Bret Strickland.

The first score came in the second quarter when the Rebels were down 21-0 and the second came in the third period when CVA trailed 36-7.

The Rebels lost to Springwood last year 27-0.

As this years only American Conference champion. The Panthers defend their 1982 AYFL Super Bowl title in playoff this

The first round of the playoffs will match Pelham against Fultondale at Pelham High School at 10:30 a.m.

The Plains are no place for a Crimson Tider

by Fred Guarino

It was about the kind of day you would expect for an avowed Alabama fan/sports editor covering an Auburn football game last Saturday.

First I was told to meet dedicated Dye-hard Auburn man Wayne Rasco -- by the rascal himself -- at 7:30 a.m. in Columbiana. We were to make the trip in his fantastic motor home.

I didn't get home from covering the Thompson/ Vincent game until late Friday night. Too, the kickoff on the Plains was not slated until 1:30 p.m. It seemed unfair somehow.

Then when I got to Rasco's house, I found out that a foul-up pushed our departure back until after 8 a.m. and here I had gotten only about three hours sleep to meet his insisted deadline.

Even more, I found Rasco talking about switching to his car, of all things, at the same time I found out that I would have to endure the two and a-half hour trip with a crowd of Auburn

That group included Mike Hill of Columbiana, Ron Currin of Chelsea, Jerry Reinhardsen of Birmingham and Johnny Davis

At least fellow Reporter photographer Jerome Bannister was along for the ride and he claimed not to be a fan of Alabama or Auburn.

No such luck for a break. I found out that Bannister "was" an Auburn man.

Oh well... At least Rasco decided to take the motor home. Unfortunately by then, I was wishing he hadn't.

I learned too late to jump ship that this Auburn nut was going to take that giant rolling machine on a shortcut route.

Some shortcut.... It turned out to be a very narrow, curving, rough road through no man's land. The motor home barely fit on that dog trail, and cars were trying to pass us!

My mission on this day was to cover the football game and to interview former Thompson High School football stars and Tiger freshmen Arthur Johnson, Demetrius Threatt and Greg Johnson had played in every Auburn football game this season on defense and had been making some great tackles. Threatt had been carrying the ball a little but for big gains. Snell had been red shirted for future use.

I was to accomplish this goal with the aid of a "pressbox

Well when I finally arrived, I found out that those darned Auburn folks had not put me in the pressbox at all. I was stuck outside with a little folding chair on the photo deck!

I knew what Superman must have felt like in flight. Only a small cage to catch cameras at my feet broke the drop-off view. But, after climbing over a few people and a few steps I could at least get free food and drink inside. Too, I was promised that vital information would be sent to me. Not too bad I thought.

But then none of that took place until after I had to endure watching a scrimmage of the Auburn baseketball team with that wild bunch I came with.

Even worse, I had to listen to how great Auburn was from even more Auburn fans. They were Maria and Hugh Alford of Birmingham, Rhett Vick, Doug Bulger, Pat Bulger, George Bentley and Rux Bentley of Columbiana, and Dwight Bentley of Birmingham.

At least one in the group was nice enough to let me eat some baked pork and beans and Maria Alford only let her outrage at my Alabama loyalty show once.

But then things began to take a turn for the worst. I confirmed that Demetrius Threatt was injured and at home in Alabaster and that Greg Snell was red shirted.

Too, the dang Auburn pressbox elevator went up when it was supposed to go down and down when it was supposed to go up. It often jumped up and down before I coud brave getting out of

The stats that I was supposed to get during the game, stopped

Worse for me... Arthur Johnson never played against Florida. I could only watch him watch the game from the sidelines.

Then came the final blow. I had been told to go to the locker room with about two minutes left in the game if I wanted an interview. I fought the elevator. I fought through the crowd and reached my destinaton just as the team left the field.

It was all for nothing. I learned that I couldn't go in for another full ten or so while Coach Pat Dye made his final speech. My day had been almost as bad as those Bert Seaman

But it wasn't a total loss. Just as I completed my interview with Johnson, I discovered something.

I had earned at least one bit of glory. In my hand was a "Crimson Tide" ink pen. I had carried it to the Loveliest Village on the Plains. I had taken it into the Auburn pressbox. I had even taken it into the Auburn locker room.

I had survived.

Hornet supporters see future in tough Comer contest

The now 2-7 Chelsea Hornets were looking for their third win of the season last Friday night in a home game against B. B. Comer.

But the only problem was that 1-7 Comer was looking for its second win, and Chelsea wasn't looking all that hard.

To explain a little, Chelsea Coach Gene Hulsey matter of factly told the Reporter that with no playoff future for his team this year, he simply decided to play his younger kids.

Taking that into account, Comer got its wish by way of a 27-12 victory and Chelsea supporters got a look at the Hornets' future.

Chelsea trailed 19-0 before it mounted a 70-yard scoring drive in the second quarter. Jason Wiggins hit Johnny Sands with a five-yard pass for the tal-

Late in the fourth quarter when everything was over but the shouting, Chelsea managed to get another six points. Mike Gragg ripped a 65-yard TD run. However, the try for the extra point failed.

But while the 27-12 loss may have hurt, Head Coach Gene Hulsey was telling no sob stories and offering no apologies.

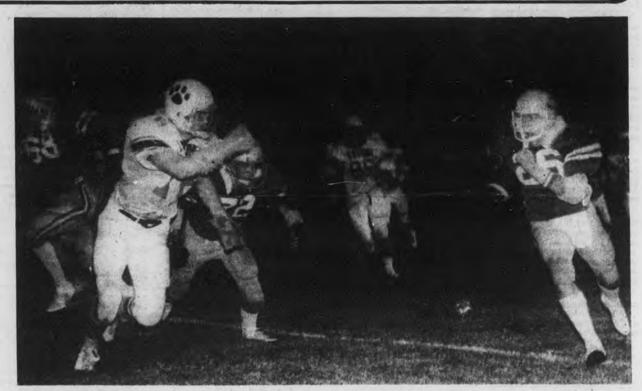

"We played a lot of young kids and started two ninth graders, Larry Offord and Heath Moore," he said. "I'm trying to get some experience for next year's team... We've started working for the future."

In case you are wondering about Offord and Moore, don't bother looking in your Chelsea programs. The two are so new that they are not even listed.

But Hulsey said he has not given up on his 1982 squad by a "long shot." He said that quarterback Wiggins and end Sands are still playing outstanding football.

Too, the first year Chelsea coach is looking forward to a classic fight between his team and its arch rival Vincent Friday night.

"I am sure they will be up for us and we will be up for them," Hulsey said of the game to be played in the Yellow Jackets' backyard.

For illegal hunters

Three-wheelers mean trouble

Illegal hunters who operate in the far back woods of Shelby County, are in for a surprise.

The surprise will be a conservation officer riding a three-wheel all terrain vehicle. These vehicles can get to places that no fourwheel vehicle can reach.

The Game and Fish Division has issued 24 Honda all terrain cycles with accompanying trailers in Alabama (two to each of 12 districts).

Shelby County is in District 7 which includes Cullman, Blount, Talladega and St. Clair Counties. tually based in Shelby County, one is stationed in Pell City for this county's use, according to conservation officer Doyle

Wood spoke of the asset the vehicle will be on logging roads which have become grown over, low areas of the county and dove

> Along with Wood, Kelley hopes future funding will provide for an increase in the number of three-wheel vehicles from two to eight or ten in each district.

Wood said the new vehicles will help especially on dove fields by increasing the speed in which hunters can be checked.

He told the Reporter that some arrests have already been made baiters and other illegal with the aid of the new vehicles.

Reynolds to Hamilton. Pouge added the two-point conversion to make it a 44-8 ballgame.

Vincent would score again on a spectacular 83-yard run with just 1:23 left in the game. After the Yellow Jackets stopped Thompson reserves, Pouge ripped the distance on the first play from scrimmage.

Eddie Reynolds added the twopoint conversion and the game ended 41-16.

If nothing else, those late Vincent touchdowns gave Garrett something to motivate his squad with for next week's Chelsea contest and season finale at home.

"It was a tribute to our kids' play that we won the second half 16-8," Garrett said.

The Chelsea game has been called the battle of East Shelby County and with Vincent now 2-8 on the year and Chelsea 2-7, it should be a classic battle.

For the record, the Thompson Warriors defeated Vincent 28-8 last season.

Traveling art

Catherine Dunn (left) of the University of Montevallo's art faculty, assisted members of the Arts and Humanities Council of Shelby County in selecting UM student art work for two traveling exhibits which will go to the county schools this year. Members of the council who are handling the project include (from right) Suzanne Nichols, Barbara Williams and Rachel Fowler.

Alumni of UM name outstanding teachers

Sarah Palmer and Dr. Frank McCoy recently became the first recipients of the "Outstanding Commitment to Teaching" award. The award was presented during Founders Day activities by the University of Montevallo National Alumni Association.

Nominations for the award were made by students, faculty, staff and alumni. The two faculty members received a plaque and $1,000 each.

An associate professor of English, Ms. Palmer has taught at Montevallo since 1968. Prior to coming to UM, she taught English at Central High School in Phenix City, at Auburn University and at Chilton County High School.

Ms. Palmer received her bachelor's degree in English from Piedmont College and her master's from Auburn University. She completed her coursework for a doctorate at the University of Alabama.

McCoy assumed the chairmanship of the UM art department when he arrived in 1976. Since that time he received the Award of Excellence in 1982-83 and was named Distinguished University Educator in 1980-81, University Scholar in 1979-80 and College of Fine Arts Distinguished Teacher in 1977-78.

Prior to coming to Montevallo, he taught art in Kalamazoo, Mich., at Georgia Southern College in Statesboro, and at Stratford College in Danville, Va.

He earned his bachelor's degree in art education from Western Michigan University, his master's degree in art history from Florida State University and his doctorate in art history from the University of North Carolina.

Amusing 90-year old charms nursing home

by Fred Guarino

"I just talk to them and laugh with them - tickle them under the chin and wake them up. It's not very much."

That's the way a very lively Mrs. Winifred Stanley sees her volunteer visits to elderly residents of Briarcliff Nursing Home. Considering that Mrs. Stanley turned 90 years old last Saturday, "not very much" is something of an understatement. There's much more to this kind English soul than meets eye.

The fascinating life she has led and the stories she tells the nursing home residents keep her in high demand. Moreover, her beautiful appearance belies her years and speaks well of the famous work ethic for keeping

Mrs. Stanley was born in a little village in Southampton, England, on a hill where her father had a strawberry farm. She recalls, "I had to work on the farm when we were children."

She also recalls that before the farm, her father served under Sir Thomas Lipton. "You remember Tommy... Eveybody knows him. He ran the races that the Australians won this year."

But farm life wasn't for Mrs. Stanley who confesses with a smile "I didn't like it very much. It was hard."

But that was all right, because she would not spend her life on a farm. She was destined for adventure of the kind most people only dream about, and visits to places that are only exotic names on a map to the less travel-

Council says erosion at schools is critical

by David F. Moore

It's called CAWACO. It sounds perhaps like an Indian tribe that once roamed and lived off the wooded lands of Central Alabama, and perhaps that's appropriate.

CAWACO -- which signifies the Cahaba, Warrior and Coosa River basins -- is a Resource, Conservation and Development council that covers Shelby, Blount, Walker, Jefferson and Chilton Counties.

Tuesday the council held its annual meeting at the State 4-H Center on Lay Lake near Columbiana.

What the council intends to do for Shelby County in the next several years are these things:

•Help provide for a countywide, public water system

•Improve erosion problems at the 4-H Center •Enlarge and clean out the University of Montevallo Lake, and establish recreation facilities there.

Shelby County council members are Probate Judge Tommy Snowden and Rural Development Chairman Col. Claude Smith. Shelby County Soil and Water Conservation District Chairman Lawrence Garrett serves as secretary/treasurer to the council.

Teacher to parents: 'Think first grade'

Some adults are going back to equals four. the first grade at Valley Elementary School.

No, the people going back to Helen Eckert's class are not learning to read and write for the first time. They are simply learning to do it over again in order to help their first grade children.

"I would call home and say a first grade student needs help and would ask the parents to flash cards for phonetic sounds," Eckert said, "and some wouldn't know what I was talking about."

So the teacher realized that the parents had forgotten how they learned to read. "I thought it would be good to have a class for the parents to familiarize them with the terms we use..."

"I thought it would help both the parent and the child," Eckert said. "It's so frustrating for a parent with their first child in school. They want to help but they don't have the knowledge of the skills they need."

What Eckert does is take the parents back to when they were children. She shows them how to hold pencils and position paper for writing. She explains the use of physical objects in sets so that children can learn "Two and two is four."

She also assists the parents in teaching their children how to go from that point to two plus two

"I present the things we will be doing with the children in advance. I encourage parents to ask their children questions such as what comes between C and E..."

The teacher explained that many children can memorize but they cannot tell you what comes after a certain number.

The classes are held the last Monday of each month at 7:30 p.m. in the Valley School cafetorium.

How do the parents respond? "I find more parents come up and say they like it because they feel more comfortable with helping their children. This way they know how their children are supposed to do their work."

A native of Pittsburg and resident of Hoover for the past 11 years, Eckert received her teaching certificate from the University of Montevallo.

She became so interested in education that she went to classes at UM while her own children were in school. It took her nine years to graduate that way. When she was a senior, her daughter was a freshman.

About 155 first graders attend Valley Elementary School and about 50 parents show up for each of Eckert's classes. She said, however, that all parents of school children are welcome.

Leeds plans clinic for cancer screening

A cancer screening clinic will be held Sunday and Monday, November 13-14 in Leeds.

The clinic is sponsored by the Foundation for Women's Health in Alabama, which is urging all women who have not had a medical examination in the past year, to attend.

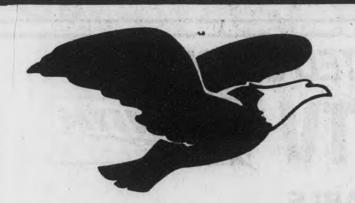

The clinic is being held from 1-5 p.m. Sunday, and from 5-9 p.m. on Monday, at the 699-6145

Brookwood/Leeds Health Center on Parkway Drive Southwest. Cervical Pap smears and a lesson on breast self-examinations will be given.

A small donation is requested, but a spokesperson for the foundation said no one would be turned away.

Why is Ed Gentry Running as an Independent?

ine least of the distallen

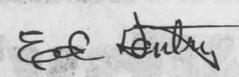

A lot of people ask me that question. Here are the answers.

In the past, I have supported the Democratic Party and its candidates. I've always felt the people should have a say in deciding who the Democratic candidate will be. I believe a State Representative should represent the people who elect him, not the party who nominates him.

We now have a situation in Alabama where there was no Democratic Primary. The voters of District 40 did not have a chance to choose their Democratic nominee for State Representative. The Democratic candidates were hand picked by the State Democratic Executive Committee, meeting in Birmingham.

I am not abandoning the Democratic Party. The Democratic Party is abandoning me. I am opposed to machine politics where a few political bosses from all over Alabama decide who will represent the people of District 40 as your State Representative. That is why I am running as an independent candidate in the November 8th general election. The voters of District 40 should have a chance to vote for an energetic, hard working, and very much Informed State Representative.

If you agree the voters should pick their State Representative, then I urge you to join us and vote for Ed Gentry, independent candidate as your State Representative in District 40.

TO THE CITIZENS OF SHELBY COUNTY

from Maui, Hawaii
12:30 (3) (42) Ray Perkins Short

Because of the hard work of SONNY MOORE in the Alabama Legislature, law enforcement in Shelby Count has progressed from a mere job to a full profession. Those of us in law enforcement in Shelby County are appreciative of the help SONNY MOORE has given us in the past. We are confident Sonny Moore will continue to be a strong supporter of law enforcement. SONNY MOORE, Democratic candidate for State Representative District 41 has our vote of confidence and our support.

Columbiana library group plans meeting

Marcia M. Sears will be the guest speaker at the Thursday, November 3, meeting of the Columbiana Friends of the library. She will share some interesting and informative anecdotes about her trip to the Soviet Union.

At this meeting the Friends will also outline plans for future fund raising activities. Presently they have raised $340 from a book sale and donations.

The public is cordially invited to the meeting at the Columbiana Public Library at 7 p.m.

I ask for your vote November 8. This is why-

It has been a long time since the general condition of our State has been so poor. It's hard to recall when so much needs to be done by our State Legislature, and yet, so little is being accomplished. Especially for the business climate and education system.

We must put handcuffs on three or four certain 'special interest' groups, and neutralize hand-picked candidates. . . the ones committed to more of the same.

lam FREE to represent you —the local voter. I am not hand-picked by incumbents for more of the same. I know that business and education must work in concert to improve both areas of concern. I am the candidate who has a choice of how to vote on each issue that comes before the Legislature.

have studied and worked all of my life for the purpose of serving my family and community. I am experienced, ready, and free to work for you. The Legislature is where I will do the most good. With your support, I will be there . . . free to work effectively for us all.

Al Knight deals with the reality of today's needs.

The Business Climate in Alabama needs more than a band-aid.

Our Legislature needs to bring private business into a partnership with State government and work as a "team" to solve mutual problems. Business must be returned to its rightful position of importance if we want to get our people back to work. Al Knight will work hard to accomplish this.

Our Education System needs new priorities.

There's no reason for Alabama to continue being last . . . unless we continue with more of the same. Al Knight's record stands strong and clear in support of public education. There is no job more important than improving Alabama's education system. Al Knight understands how 'the system' works, and pledges to make quality of education a MAJOR issue.

Alabama's Industrial Development Office must be given more freedom.

More freedom.

Although Alabama has the resources to attract industry, we are next to the bottom among Southern states in urban economic growth and rural per capita income. Al Knight will work to strengthen the Alabama Development Office, and promote providing the tools that ADO needs to be prevailing.

Our Legislative leaders must insist on integrity

Al Knight knows that we must remove the dominance of special interest groups. Al Knight is free to vote his convictions for our District 40, and not fall prey to cronyism and the buddy system in state government. Al Knight stands for integrity among our Legislative leaders—at all times.

I have much at stake, too!

Martha and I have our home in Shelby county with our two children. Michael attends Riverchase Middle School, and Shannon attends Inverness Elementary school.

Shannon attends Inverness Elementary school.

I have a B.S. degree in business from UAB; 20 years with the Bell System as a corporate & project manager; member of Christ Church United Methodist; Bd. of Managers YMCA; active in PTO; a Boy Scout leader; and member—Pelham Chamber of Commerce.

FRANK "BUTCH" ELLIS

... a message to the voters of District 14

This is my first time to seek public office. I was unopposed for the Democratic nomination. I have not and will not accept contributions from any special interest group, and, am committed to no one except the people of this District. I have run a clean and positive campaign. I promise to be a fair and effective voice in Montgomery for the farmer, small businessman, and average working man and woman of this District.

I ask for your vote on November 8.

ald for by Ellis Senate Committee, 2700 Hwy 31 So., Pelham, AL 35124

A special message to you from Ed Gentry

My family and I are very proud to be a part of this House District.

We are in the midst of a very important election. The results will affect you and your loved ones for years to come.

I offer you honest, positive, and aggressive leadership in Montgomery. It is time that we deal with problems up front and plan for the future, rather than wait and react to them once we are experiencing the difficulty.

I assure you, the voters of House District 40, that I will conduct both my personal and public life in a way that will bring credit and pride to you, my family and myself.

I sincerely ask for your support and your vote on November 8.

than herself, yet less able to get around?

"I enjoy it because they enjoy seeing me. I don't really do much. I don't get paid. It's all volunteer."

Maybe an explanation lies in these comments.

"When I see some of the poor dears, I feel terrible about them and I think how lucky I am."

Mrs. Stanley still goes home to England at least once every year. She used to travel the big ocean liners because she was afraid of aircraft.

"I was terrified of flying," she recalls, "but my first flight was just lovely and now I get there in a day instead of six."

All of this raises another question: how does this lady who has lived without her husband since he was killed in World War II, and who has done so many things, stay so fit?

"Work," is her only answer. "My advice is to keep working... keep doing something. I'm always making something. I don't sell anything, I just give them away."

Surely, there must be more... Does she try not to smoke, drink or eat too much?

As to the first, Mrs. Stanley has never smoked. But the others... "I like a drink when it's available. I eat anything I can Always downplaying herself, Mrs. Stanley does not understand the surprise people feel about her volunteer work at a nursing

"I wasn't doing anything, so I decided to do it," she says. "Don't make too much of this. There are several volunteers up there. I have just been fortunate and I feel very able to do it."

Not only does Mrs. Stanley not like much publicity, but she does not like the press. Her last photograph was taken before 1939 and the last interview she gave was when her husband died.

"I don't like the press. They write down everything you say. When my husband died they called on me and they printed everything... reams of it. If you do that I'll shoot you."

(Sorry...) Mrs. Stanley has 11 grandchildren who all have children of their own. She also has three daughters, Mrs. Roy Jowers of Pelham, Mrs. Louis Cost of Siluria and Mrs. Roberta Warren of Hoover.

Let's Improve Our Schools

Our schools need to be returned to the parents and taxpayers. You're more concerned about your children's education than bureaucrats in Montgomery or officials of the teacher union. Influencing my decision to run were the votes of our present Representative to give more power to officials of the teacher union (AEA) at the expense of locally elected school boards. (H.8; H.296)

Let's Stop the Growth of Government and Taxes

You pay enough taxes. With the income you do keep, I trust you'll do more good with it than a government bureaucracy. Your tax dollars are being wasted and that needs to be changed.

Let's Move Into the Future With a Growing Economy

Jobs—Shelby County needs more and higher paying jobs to provide for our families. Here's how: limit government spending, limit taxes, limit restrictions and regulations on industry and workers, and provide a good education for our children.

Dear Friend,

Like you, I am desperately concerned for my children's future. I am tired of politicians who "straddle the fence" and seem to accomplish nothing but to dole out favors to special interest groups and perpetuate their political careers. I pledge to do what is right for Alabama, regardless of the personal consequences.

About 28% of Shelby County's voters went to the polls Tuesday to elect a senator and two representatives to the state legislature.

Unofficial returns show that Frank "Butch" Ellis of Columbiana was elected to Senate District 14, to represent Shelby County and parts of Bibb and St. Clair Counties. Ellis, a Democrat, defeated Representative Don Murphy, a Republican of Pelham, by a vote of 8,372 to

In Shelby County, Ellis drew 5,888 votes to Murphy's 3,483. In Bibb County it was Ellis 909, Murphy 317. In St. Clair Ellis had 1,575 to Murphy's 1,139 votes.

In the 3-way race for state representative from District 40 (west Shelby County and part of Bibb), the winner was Democrat John Tanner. He drew 1,540 votes in Shelby County, where his Republican opponent Al Knight outdistanced hiim with a vote of 1,863, and his independent opponent Ed Gentry drew 624 votes.

In Bibb County, Gentry was the biggest vote-getter of the three. The unofficial score there was Gentry 746, Tanner 565, and Knight 98.

The combined vote was Tanner 2,105, Knight 1,961, and Gentry 1,370. In general elections, there are no runoffs, so Tanner won with some 39% of the vote.

In the race for house of representatives District 40, the central and eastern sections of the county, Democratic Representative Sonny Moore defeated his Republican opponent Jim Entrekin by an unofficial vote of 2,672 to 2,365.

Voter 'islands' cause problems at two polls from staff reports There were problems at some voting places, Tuesday, but apparently they had more to do with people than machines. Bill Tucker -- one of the county's two voting machine custodians responsible for placing the machines and seeing they are set properly with the correct ballot in place -- told the Reporter last week that no major difficulties had been anticipated.

Ten extra machines were put out this year, Tucker said, because of split boxes resulting from the newly drawn, court ordered district lines.

After he returned to his office at 6 p.m. Tuesday, after traveling to voting places throughout the county, Tucker said all the problems he had encountered during the day were "people" problems.

One voter in Dogwood, he reported, fussed at him 45 minutes because he wanted to vote for John Tanner and Tanner's name wasn't on the

That was one of the beats, Tucker explained, where a confusing "island" of voters was left when the state drew the new district lines. These "islands" resulted in a number of people who apparently thought they live in District 40, having to vote for candidates running in District 41.

A similar situation occurred in beat 12, Tucker

Many people who had voted in Beat 12, Box 1

(north Shelby County) for the past ten years found that they had to vote in the new Box 5.

This caused some consternation among voters because the only list poll workers had was the old Box 1 list.

Map readers Paul Owens and Beverly Lawrence, who were at the voting place, had to determine just where the people were to vote, and their names were then, if necessary, taken from the old Box 1 list and added to the new one.

Poll Worker Kathryn Street said that several people were upset because they got out and worked for candidates only to find that those people did not appear on their ballots.

A school for poll workers was held last week to prepare those in charge of the voting for Tuesday's election.

Tucker called the turnout "good" although only about half of the 225 workers attended the two sessions. Sixty-five workers showed up for the Columbiana school session and 55 attended the session in Pelham.

A few of the polling places did not have telephones. One was the Union Hall in Beat 19 (Maylene) where Tucker anticipated there might be a need for communication with the registrars

That turned out to be the case, and Tucker said he was grateful for the help of Shelby County Amateur Radio Club operators who handled communications between the two locations.

That's the way the Pelham Council seemed to feel Monday as one resident of the city wanted several stop signs taken down. Also, a petition was presented asking that speed breakers be removed.

The council had previously approved both the stop signs and speed breakers at the request of residents of those areas.

Councilman Ken Maynard pointed out that the council members knew the stop signs wouldn't solve the problem in Brookfield Estates when they acted on the stop sign proposal.

But he went on to say that the council felt it was giving the majority of residents there what they wanted.

Alice Graham, who lives in Brookfield Estates, disagreed. She said no one had even asked her or others on her end of the street if they wanted the

In order to give the majority of residents in that area and around Crosscreek Trail a chance to voice their opinion, the council decided to discuss both situations at the next meeting devices to slow traffic at Cross Creek Trail and Roundhill Road were actually rumble strips. Speed breakers, he pointed out, extend all the way across the road, whereas the bumps residents were complaining about only extend across one lane.

Saying he would prefer the speed bumps be removed, Watson noted that drivers are now going into the wrong lane to avoid going over them. "I'm afraid someone will eventually have a head-on collison," he remarked.

The petition with signatures representing 21 families will be discussed at the next meeting along with a request from Joe Shores for a three-way stop at Crosscreek and Creekview. Shores reported that drivers speed along the straight stretch of road from Crosscreek to Bearden Road, trying to make up time after stopping at the Crosscreek-Roundhill intersection. He said that he had talked to neighbors and they were in favor of a three-way stop in view of the fact there had been several minor accidents at the intersection and a number of close calls.

In other business:

•The council approved Councilman John Tanner's request for a street light needs study of the Chapparell subdivision by Alabama Power Co.

Tanner also said he would check on the cost of street lights for Chandalar subdivision where lights had been requested some time earlier with no action being taken.

•The council also agreed to the transfer of an on and off premises beer license for Mama Mia's Pizzeria in Pelham Mall.

UW lags, extends deadline

Shelby County United Way volunteers had high hopes of meeting this year's $275,000 goal.

The chances of that happening however, now appear dim since only 71% of the goal has been met and the deadline is only a week away. Some $85,000 is still needed for the county to reach its quota.

There's brighter news though from the three county area of which Shelby is a part. To date, 94% of the $10,345,000 goal has been collected for the Jefferson-Shelby-Walker County area.

Also on the bright side, two county divisions -- the Professional Division and Women's Division - have gone over their $1,000 goals.

Chaired by commission chairman Tommy Snowden, the professionals have reached 142% of their goal. Susan Cole of Combustion Engineering, heading the Women's Division, pushed it over its goal with the $1,050 raised at the recent Monster Run in Inverness.

85% of his $4,000 goal until some of the municipality workers register their contributions. Business and other divisions range from 30%-83% of their goals.

The reason for the Shelby County slump, explained Jerry DesRoche, who heads up the Shelby County division, is the closing of one major business and cut backs in other businesses. This accounts for a decrease in business donations of $20,000-$30,000, and a loss of approximately $15,000 in giving from employees, he said.

He also mentioned that labor negotiations are being carried on in several businesses, and for that reason they have not been approached

In order to allow workers more time to meet the goal -- or at least come closer to meeting it -- the deadline is being extended another couple of weeks, DesRoche reported.

Last year's drive turned out to be a success after the necessary funds were collected by county volunteers after the time limit was extended.

Calera paves way for mobile home park

The City of Calera has paved the way for the construction of a new mobile home park. It is also taking steps to make the city the home of an annual railroad

In a unanimous vote Tuesday night, the council approved the rezoning of property off 9th Street (behind the government housing project) for mobile home

The new park -- on formerly zoned R-3 (multi-family) property -- was sought by Tom Poe and some associates from Hoover. It will include 45 mobile home

In a related matter, the council also added a mercy clause to its city ordinance to allow temporary mobile home set-up on residential property.

The mercy clause was approved so that persons suffering disasters such as a house fire or a storm could set-up mobile homes on their property until such time as their houses could be rebuilt.

A permit must, however, be purchased and proof of home construction must be shown.

The city also agreed to serve as sponsor for a federal Arts and Humanities Grant to establish a railroad festival.

The grant is being sought by Ken Chapman of the Calera United Methodist Church.

With the planned construction of an operating railroad and museum in Calera by the Heart of Dixie Railroad Club, the city expects to become known as a 'railroad center.'

Mayor Carl Prichard said the proposed festival will be related to this and will be on a par with the Clanton Peach Festival or the Cullman Octoberfest.

"It will be a fun event," Prichard said, "with the election of a railroad queen, a parade, lectures for community education and other activities."

The mayor said the first rails for the proposed Calera Railroad will be laid this winter, or at least by early spring.

In other action the council approved the holding of a December 7 bazaar by Calera High School and Elementary School PTA's.

Registrar charge unsettled

No settlement has yet been reached in the $8,330 overcharge by county registrars. However, District Attorney Billy Hill thinks a talk last week with attorneys for the charged officials was productive.

"We didn't have any definite comments (on settlements)," Hill told the Reporter. "But we had a productive talk."

"We hope to either have a settlement, or a civil suit filed within two weeks," he said.

According to Hill, the civil suit will probably be filed against former registrars Doris Turner and S.M. Mahan, registrar J.T. Spates, and Shelby County Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden, if for no other reason than to provide a vehicle for collecting the settlements.

The registrars were charged in a recent state audit with improperly charging the county for supposedly working holidays, and for days worked while Turner was in the hospital.

Snowden, who did not receive any of the money, is being held responsible for payment, because the bills were paid through his of-

SMC expands ambulance service in county

A quick response time when medical help is needed means fewer deaths in Shelby County. And with two new ambulances purchased by Shelby Medical Center in service since Friday, hospital officials say that response time to most locations in the county should not exceed 10-15 minutes.

One of the new ambulances will be based in north Shelby, the other in Columbiana. Prior to this, ambulances were based only in Harpersville and Pelham/Alabaster - leaving long response times to other parts of the county.

Vincent Council passes dog control law

It is not a leash law. But any and do not necessarily have to be dog not on a leash, behind a fence or at least on its owner's property, can now be impounded in the Town of Vincent.

Last week the Vincent Council finally approved -- unanimously -- to accept a dog control law, as opposed to a dog leash law.

The action came about nine months after 100 residents presented a petition requesting the action.

"This is not a leash law in any sense of the word," emphasized Vincent Mayor Don Green, noting that dogs have the freedom of their owner's yards, tied up.

Green said that the law gives the police chief or the city council the authority to go on property to get a dog if it is a nuisance and there are complaints.

The new law also provides the council with the authority to establish dog detention days for the purpose of identifying strays. However, no such days have yet

In other action, the council awarded Wilson Brothers Construction Company of Childersburg a contract to resurface or patch all streets in Vincent in need of repair.

Contracts with ambulance services to operate the new vehicles were signed at SMC Friday morning as hospital board members, staff, city and county officials, and the media looked on.

The hospital purchased the vehicles with money from a special projects fund after the county commission said their budget would not permit any financial assistance. The hospital will subsidize the cost of operating the vehicles until the contractors show a profit, and the estimated cost of the project is expected to be in the neighborhood of Both vehicles were purchased for $47,293 with the life support equipment costing around $10,000.

While SMC administrator R. Roland Bradford said he would perfer that the hospital stay out of the business, the people of Shelby County had expressed a need for better ambulance service, and their appeal could not be ignored.

"I've thought this was something we badly needed since I've been on the board," remarked Calvin Smith, who was on the ad hoc committee that worked on the project. "You can't put a value on a life, and if we can save even one life. . . the cost of the project will have been worth it."

Herman Moore chaired the committee which consisted of board members Pete Raughley, Jerome Turner and Smith.

Prior to the addition of the two new units, it has taken an ambulance 45 minutes to an hour to reach some places in the county. Also, once this summer while local ambulances were on other calls, an ambulance from another county got lost on back roads while responding to a river accident.

The two ambulances services in charge of the new vehicles are Harpersville Ambulance Service, operated by Jimmy Gill, and Central Ambulance Service, operated by Billy Price.

Gill's ambulance will be based on Main Street in Columbiana: Price's will be on Caldwell Mill Road close to the North Shelby Fire

"This is great day for the citizens of Shelby County," said SMC Chairman of the Board C.E. 'Bull' Carter.

Juries bring in guilty verdicts

Gerald Wayne Lawley's name wasn't on the trial docket in Shelby County's Circuit Court this

Because of the extensive preparation necessary for the case, the prosecution and defense agreed during preliminary court proceedings in October, to schedule the trial in January.

Lawley is accused of murdering Birmingham art dealer Malcolm McRae, whose body was found near the Cahaba River in Helena last April.

However, juries had no trouble in making a decision in the two trials that were held this week. It took less than 20 minutes Monday for jurors to find Charles Prantl guilty of burglary 3rd

Tuesday the jury was out a mere four minutes before returning with a guilty verdict against

Michael Skinner for escape 1st degree. Prantl and two accomplices were allegedly caught in the act of burglarizing a house on Lay Lake. Prantl's ex-wife Karen, and Sam Boacle had previously entered guilty pleas.

Skinner, who was serving a 20-year sentence for robbery when he escaped from the Shelby County jail, was recaptured within hours.

According to a spokesman for the district attorney's office, Skinner is looking at a mandatory sentence of life imprisonment.

The spokesman said Skinner has three prior robbery convictions and one prior burglary con-

Three jailed on drug charges

Three persons have been jailed in Shelby Coun-bond of $250,000. According to chief deputy James Jones, the arrest came after a search was conducted at the Kizalow residence at 609 Inverness Lane.

The status of Kizalow's wife Kathern R. Kizalow, believed to be in her 20's, was not known as of Monday afternoon. Neither suspect was at home at the time of the search.

The search was conducted by a representative of Act needs improving but press must be free

The military does not like the way television covers the news, so in the Grenada affair, the whole world had to suffer for it.

In an unprecedented move, the President and Secretary of Defense gave the military the right to exclude all press coverage of the Grenada invasion, and they apparently did so with glee.

As a result, the world was denied onthe-spot coverage of what is apparently one of the U.S. military's biggest success stories in recent years. Wiping out a Soviet power base is a major accomplishment, and clearly the vast majority of Americans -- (including this newspaper) -- are glad it was done. But the victory was diluted by the fallout over press coverage.

Would the television cameras have shown only the blood and the dead, and not focused on the Russian arms and ammunition?

That must be what the military

Television news has much to answer for. Mob scenes, carnage, and wreckage are vivid pictures and legitimate news, but do the television editors emphasize that type of news and omit or give scant attention to other sides of a story? Many people at the highest levels think so.

But, if television news has given news in general such a bad name that the US military believes it can override the First Amendment, then the country is in deep trouble. An informed public is absolutely necessary to the preservation of democracy.

We believe the military was wrong in excluding the press, but we hope television will improve its act so that we will not be brought to such a close call again.

Press freedom is fragile and is being impinged upon all around the globe. We Americans have the freest press in the world, but this episode is clearly a sign of danger to that free press.

It must not happen again.

Tires can't crush pride

Letter to the Editor:

Last night my husband and I trudged around Shelby County under the stars, hammering, nailing and stapling signs for our candidate for the House of Representatives.

We were warned to wait until after midnight because the op-. position might tear the signs would be so petty. But dutifully, about 1 a.m., we pounded our "Thank you" signs into the ground. We discussed at each stop how tacky it was to see fifteen signs where one or two would suffice. But we also agreed that it really took a lack of character and morals to tear someone elses signs down.

Later in the morning our area Being people of integrity, we chairman called and said our couldn't believe that others signs had been knocked down.

My husband went out and salvaged those he could. With PRIDE we displayed the signs with tire tracks across the front. And to this destruction - not only of property, but of freedom -- we say, "We will not be defeated, stepped on, or run over. For signs can be taken down, but Reputation stands on its own."

Open Letter to Hon. Richard Shelby,

In response to the "win or leave" letter appearing in the October 27, 1983 edition of the Reporter, I must admit that I am a bit disappointed and extremely dismayed over the position taken by the more passive segment of our society.

First of all, it seems to me that our government would be illadvised to become involved in a full-fledged war in Lebanon, due to the fact that such extensive involvement would be much more likely to give rise to direct Soviet intervention, and thus, develop into world-wide conflict. There would also exist the probability of greater destruction and loss of innocent lives. On the other hand, our present involvement in Lebanon, and our more recent activities in Grenada, appear to be the only viable solution available to us. Our presence and function in Lebanon is for the purpose of aiding in the restoration of a democratic society - and not necessarily to destroy the opposition, but to convince them that we will not stand by, while the communists continue to practice their policy of expansionism, at the cost of innocent human lives and freedom.

Grenada is the most recent revelation of communistic theory - step 1 is to send aid in conjunction with "advisors". Step 2 is to arrange a coup; step 3 is overthrow and complete domination.

Unfortunately, along with maintaining the position of being the most stable and powerful democracy in the world, comes the correlative duty of helping the smaller, weaker democratic societies to maintain freedom and independence. Certainly, if we allow the communists to obtain a substantial stronghold in this hemisphere, history serves notice of the foreseeable and inevitable consequences.

Of course, there are a number of those among us who would send out cries of passivism as the Soviets were beaching U.S. shores. Thank God that President Reagan, and the more responsible among us, are currently in control of foreign policy.

Letter to the Editor: Veterans Day is the anniversary of the signing of the Armistice of Compiegne by the Allies and Germans in 1918, thus ending World War I.

Our European allies danced and cheered that the "war to end all wars" had finally come to an end. In remembrance of this dream we have celebrated November 11 ever since; first as Armistice Day to recognize the courage of those who fought World War I and later as Veterans Day to honor all Americans who have been called

On this Veterans Day, I want to recognize the thousands of veterans in Alabama's 7th Congressional District and throughout America who have honorably and bravely served our country in the armed services. We need to honor those who gave their lives in pursuit and protection of our most cherished national asset--our freedom. This day especially marks our nation's immense gratitude to those who fought and those who died to preserve our freedoms. It is a day which evokes thoughts of sacrifices, courgage, dignity and honor--words which aptly distinguish our veterans of national service.

As a member of the House of Representatives Veterans' Affairs Committee, it gives me the utmost pleasure to initiate legislation for veterans in recognition of their contributions to the national interest through their military service. I am honored to serve in Congress on this committee and will continue to work for legislation designed to benefit all veterans as a member of the 98th Congress.

It is befitting for all of us on Veterans Day to speak our praise and gratitude loudly to commemorate those soldiers who have sacrificed so much for this great nation. I welcome this opportunity to honor these valiant Americans who have served this country with such dignity.

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

A message from Grady Garner, an old Montevallo boy, by way of Ehney Addison Camp. Grady, who lives in Connecticut, and Ehney and Lance Hubbard were telegraphers years ago when every town had a depot and telegraphs were the going things. They worked at Wilton and Montevallo and Gurney Junction and Columbiana and other places over 50 years ago. This is to say hello to Grady, who reads my stuff every week, half a world away, and who still keeps up with the folks back home.

An unanswered letter from Betsy Barber Bancroft. A fine poet who still finds time to keep up with an old friend. You should be here today, Betsy, and walk through the woods with Amy and me, out past Mount Dixie, where the wild maples and red oaks and sweetgums have painted the whole mountain red and gold and lavender. Maybe, being a poet, you could tell me who mixed the paint to do this marvelous tree, some of them among the very best, but we are still a family with love up to our ears. It had always been that way. The first reunion, somewhere around 1930, was at Old Shelby Springs. There were more than a hundred present. Today there were maybe forty, counting the very old and the very young and all the others in between. But it's always a pleasure to attend. Because, anyway you figure it, love is about the nicest thing around. And we have never short-changed ourselves on food. Boy! Did we have good things to eat.

They are still slipping away, leaving their names behind. Brinton Owen and Simon Blackerby and Lorraine Fulton and Mrs. John Green and Zera Walton and Ed Glass and John Thornburg. All of them good friends and all of them gone. But life was good to them, and to us who knew and loved them.

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member FDIC.

Fred's Corner

by Fred Guarino

Cough, cough... Hello Shelby County. The time has come to dust off Fred's Corner once

Most of you know me as that bearded sports editor for the Reporter. Or maybe you know me as that fellow with the dubious honor of covering the Calera Council and Shelby County Commission, among other things.

A few of you -- especially in Vincent, Harpersville and Wilsonville -- may remember me as the editor of the Childersburg Star. That paper and this column circulated in your area a few years ago... At any rate, it seems that fellow reporter/columnist Bert Seaman has decided that she has taken up enough space with 'Scrambled Eggs.' Of course I disagree enthusiastically. But she now wants to share her Page 4 spot (and responsibility) with the rest of us at the Reporter on a rotating basis. So, out comes 'Fred's Corner' dust and all. Thanks Bert... I think...

Sports and governing bodies are, at times, great to cover. But there are times in which they drive me CRAZY!

But there is something about the two which give them a common bond that I have never been able to get used to. That is, anytime something really worth writing about comes along -- anytime I get a story I can really sink my teeth into -- something inevitably happens to throw me a curve.

That something is the famous "no comment!"

Yes, when some disciplinary action happens on a football team that would make for some informative sports writing... or some new offensive formation is run that I have never seen before... the coaches never want to talk about

It's as if thousands of people did not see the formation, including scouts from other opposition teams. It's as if rumors of the disciplinary problem have not already spread countywide, and no one cares about getting the facts straight.

In politics, when some controversial issue comes up and there is someone who can give the straight and narrow of it, they either won't talk or I can't use their names,

It's almost enough to make a reporter wish there was no such thing as journalistic ethics or

We are the watchdogs of the world. Yet we must ride a white horse and we must honor "no comments" or the "don't use my names" to

It's not fair!

Take for example Gene Bartow's recent visit to the Alabaster/Pelham Rotary Club. Everyone knows Bartow, the former mentor of the UCLA basketball team and now the head coach of the University of Alabama in Birmingham (UAB) Blazers.

Everyone also knows -- or at least believes -that UAB has had trouble with my old alma mater, the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa, regarding recruiting...

Everyone knows -- or at least believes -- that the University of Alabama will not play UAB in Well, when Bartow came to Alabaster, I was ready to ask him about it. I could almost taste the information I was going to get.

How serious is the trouble? Can Bartow confirm what is reportedly going on? What does Bartow feel? When will UAB and the University square off on the courts?

My fingers were itching to write.

Bartow did, in fact, talk about these things to Rotarians. But at the same time, he stabbed me

"I'm off the record Mr. Newspaper man," he said before he ever began. Grrrrrr...

All of that great information about UAB's recruiting efforts and the University in Tuscaloosa, hushed. When will UAB and Alabama ever play? -- the answer was shot down before I could even get pen in hand.

Don't get me wrong. Bartow is a fine fellow. He gave me some good reasons for not wanting to go public with the info. But dang it, I can't even print his reasons for keeping quiet!

So much for a free press. Honor -- sometimes -- doesn't seem worth it.

The Alabama Scene

by Bob Ingram

It was way back in 1901 when Alabama last adopted a new State Constitution. Since that time more than a few efforts have been made to draft a new Constitution, but none of these efforts got off the ground.

Former Gov. Fob James talked a lot about a "reform" Constitution, one that would make drastic changes in the state's organic law, but he swiftly found out that he was beating his head against the wall.

Maybe this was the reason Lt. Gov. Bill Baxley decided that he wanted a shot at the same goal. Perhaps he concluded that he would like to achieve what no one else had achieved. Perhaps he even concluded that if he, Bill Bakley, could get a new Constitution approved that it would propel him into the governor's office in 1986.

Whatever the motivation, Baxley went after the new Constitution like he goes after everything -- all out. Full blast. As presiding officer of the Senate, he established the ground rules early in the 1983, regular session -- pass the constitution first, then you can consider other legislation.

The power of the lieut nant governor's gavel being what it was, Baxle, had his way. The senators did as they were told, most of them apparently not bothering to ever read the document. Some have even questioned whether Baxley ever read it.

No matter, once it passed the Legislature, once it was put on the ballot, some other folks did read it. What they saw they didn't like.

Meanwhile, a suit was filed charging that the way the document was being presented to the people was unconstitutional. The new constitution was being offered as an amendment, and a lower court judge ruled that this was improper. Last week the final blow was struck when the Supreme Court of Alabama agreed with the lower court. The only way Alabama can get a new Constitution is through a constitutional convention, ruled the Supreme Court.

What had started out to be a glorious moment for Bill Baxley -- a political coup of considerable proportions -- had turned into a costly disaster for the lieutenant governor. It was also costly for the taxpayers, although just how costly can never be accurately calculated. If time is money -- and that's the sign you will find in many lawyers' offices - then the cost of the time wasted on this exercise would be astronomical, not to mention the $400,000-plus which was spent in publishing the proposal in

During his many years in public service, Baxley has hit his share of home runs... but this time he went down swinging.

Home director injured in auto crash

Attention Home Director Brenda Lee Rice is recuperating at Brookwood Hospital following an automobile accident October 31.

Although she was cut and bruised in the head-on collision near Leeds, her most serious injury was to her right leg.

Bones were broken and the leg is in a cast extending from toes to hip.

She will have to undergo physical therapy and doctors have told Rice she won't be able to drive for at least three months.

The A-Home Director was on her way to her home in Leeds around 6:30 p.m when the accident occurred approximately three miles this side of Leeds on Hwy. 119.

A fellow worker at the Attention Home told the Reporter that Rice had tried to avoid the accident by pulling off the road.

Teacher Talk

by Dr. Tommie Harrison

Years ago when we had an agarian economy young people were "experience-rich," for they lived and worked on farms. Today our students are "experience-poor," for they spend much of their time watching tv and being entertained. As parents and educators, we need to help provide our young people with experiences that will enrich their learning. Summer work experiences and after-school jobs are good if they do not demand too long hours. Other kinds of experience can be gained in the classroom and community.

As some of you know, I have involved my students in researching, writing, and publishing several local history books, which were special projects structured within the established curriculum. These projects provided many types of learning experiences, including learning the tools of both traditional research and oral history. In addition, students learned the processes of writing, layout, and photography. Most important of all, they learned about their local heritage.

During our study of real estate in the economics class, students got interested in local architecture. One young man took a great deal of pride in constructing a replica of his grandfather's old home. What was so remarkable about this project was that the replica was built entirely from viewing an old photograph and from talking to his grandparents.

Oftentimes learning at school can be enriched by the use of community resources, including people, artifacts, old photographs, sites, and events. Community resource persons can really "liven-up" the classroom, and valuable learning can be gained vicariously from the experiences of others. Numerous community resource persons have visited my classes over the seventeen years I've been teaching. (One of the purposes of this article is to say "thank. you" to them.)

Currently, my government classes are involved in projects relating to government and political issues. The following persons have visited the government class: Mayor Burk Dunaway of Pelham; Mayor 'Doc' Rubin of Alabaster; Probate Judge Tommy Snowden; Sheriff Buddy Glassgow; City Councilman Jack Reagin; Fire Chief John Cochran; Legislator Jabo Waggoner; Policewoman Jean Dawkins; lawyers Pat Fuhrmeister, Dick Bell, and Jim Pino; political candidates Ed Gentry, Al Knight, John Tanner, Frank Ellis, Don Murphy, and Jim Entrekin; jailers Wayne Lucas and David Wolfe; military personnel Lt. Col. Crenshaw, Sgt. Scott, and Col. Charles Knowles; and the Director of the Attention Home, Brenda Lee.

The opportunities to use resource persons in the classroom are numerous. Do you have a special interest, experience, or talent? If you can make a contribution which is applicable to the classroom, contact your local school and volunteer your services as a resource person.

Real-life experiences are the best teachers; however, classroom experiences can be informative and meaningful. John Dewey summarized it very well when he said. "an ounce of experience is worth a ton of theory."

Youth aid officer says,

'Children may be alcoholic'

by Bert Seaman

Her message to parents, says Columbiana Youth Aid Officer Judy Gilbert, is, "Wake up -your children may be alcoholics before you know it!"

In working with young people that are referred to her, Gilbert said that four out of five have a problem with alcohol.

She told members of the Columbiana Council last week that she believes the reason young people are turning to drink more than drugs, is because alcohol is "more socially acceptable."

Gilbert is asked to speak to school groups on the subject. Tuesday she told Wilsonville parents about the problem at a PTO gathering.

She also spoke to a student group at Elvin Hill Elementary School recently on how to deal with strangers.

"I was impressed with the questions the youngsters asked," she reported.

In giving her monthly report to the Columbiana Council last Thursday, the youth aid officer said she has seven new cases.

With 23 cases closed, six inactive and 41 carried over from last month. Gilbert has handled a total of 77 cases since assuming her duties in Columbiana.

With victory over Chelsea

'Jackets win battle of east Shelby County

by Fred Guarino

It was billed as the battle of east Shelby County -- and that's exactly how the players on both sides viewed last Friday night's Vincent/Chelsea game.

The contest, played in Vincent, saw the Yellow Jackets reap a sweet 28-6 revenge over a 14-10 loss to Chelsea last year. But as lopsided as results may seem, it was a fight to the finish -- both physically

To put the game into perspective, the Reporter interviewed senior players on both sides prior to

"As a senior it means a lot," said 'Jacket quarterback Eddie Reynolds. "It means pride... Like we've been saying, this is our championship...'

The fact that Vincent went into the contest with a 2-8 record and Chelsea waded in with a 2-7 mark seemed to matter little.

"It's my last year (and game). I'll miss the guys, Coach Harold Garrett and his staff a lot," Reynolds added.

"This means a fight... I would like to get some revenge. We lost to Chelsea last year," quipped Vincent's Thomas Turner.

"We ain't had a good season I want this last one for memories," added teammate Otis Kidd.

Vincent Senior Stacy Garrett said, "It is just like we were in the state playoffs. I would like to go out winning this one.'

Chelsea seniors also wanted to win.

"It means more than any game we've played this year and I want to beat them," said running star Mike Gragg.

"It's the whole year," said quarterback Jason

"I'll think back on this game 20 years from now... how I played and how my teammates played," concluded Johnny Sands.

To bring the whole thing full circle, Vincent Coach Harold Garrett credited emotions and memory of last year's loss to Chelsea for his team's whopping performance.

"The fact that they beat us last year was our biggest motivation," he said with a smile. "We got the trophy back on this end of the county. This may not mean anything to Calera, Thompson or Montevallo but it does to us."

If there were tears in the eyes of Chelsea players at the final horn, at least the Hornets didn't let

"In the first half they just out quicked us and made us look bad," was all a stoic Chelsea Coach Gene Husley had to say as he left the field.

"Out quicked" is an accurate - if not grammatically proper - description of what Vincent did to the Hornets.

To the victor belong the smiles

Happy faces in the Vincent High School gym meant only one thing last Friday night... the Yellow Jackets had avenged last season's 14-10 loss to Chelsea by winning the "Battle of East Shelby County." It was a game Vincent wanted to win badly and the victory pulled the team close together for a full blown celebration. (Photo by Fred Guarino)

Jimmy White started things in good fashion with a kick return to the Vincent 34. From that point Cedric Riggins exploded for 56 yards to the Hornet ten, and Robert Pouge finished the twoplay drive by scoring from there. Reynolds added the PAT and Vincent led 7-0.

If Chelsea was shaken on that opening burst, they had to be wondering who turned the lights out just minutes later.

Following a Chelsea punt, the Yellow Jackets marched 73 yards in ten plays for a 14-0 lead.

With a fourth-and-one situation at the Hornet 31 yard line, Pouge ripped a 30-yard run. A oneyard dance later, Riggins scored. Reynolds booted the PAT.

Both sides got down to some serious defensive effort after that, and it looked as if Vincent had gotten all it would get through the half.

But as fate and a good punt return by Gary Peterson would have it, the Yellow Jackets got all the incentive they needed to score again late in the second quarter. After taking over at the Chelsea 26-yard line, Vincent used only three plays to hit . paydirt.

Reynolds threw one pass incomplete and then hit Bruce Hamilton at the Hornet one-yard line. From there Reynolds sneaked into the endzone, added the PAT and gave his squad a 21-0 lead.

All of this came with only 21 seconds left in the half.

A third quarter Vincent fumble lead to at least some glory for the visitors. Jason Wiggins mixed runs by Mike Gragg with passes to Gragg, Johnny Sands and Kerry Shaw to move the Hornets in a 71-yard scoring drive.

A 14-yard Wiggins pass to Shaw set Chelsea up for the score at the Vincent one. From there, Wiggins bulled into the endzone. The point after was blocked but it was now a 15-point game.

However, Vincent apparently wanted the contest too much to let Chelsea come back. Following an onsides Hornet kick, it took the Yellow Jackets only six plays to go 50 yards.

Riggins and Pouge teamed up to carry the ball into Hornet territory, then Reynolds completed a pass to Otis Kidd at the Chelsea four. Riggins

The Mustangs needed a twopoint conversion to put the game into overtime. Thompson Warriors record outstanding year

This year was supposed to be a rebuilding year for the powerful Thompson Warriors.

It was supposed to be... but with a 42-12 home victory over West Point last Friday, the Warriors ended 1983 with an impressive 9-2 record. Not only that, but seniors Max Brown, Luvell

With a little help from...

posed year of rebuilding, the Warriors surprised a lot of folks with their strong running, blocking and team play. (Photo by Jerome Bannister)

record with the 1982 senior class -- 33 wins against only five losses. "I am happy for the seniors," was about all

Thompson Coach Douglas Wheeler had to say about his team's last win. But that's alright... Thompson coaches have always been known to favor action more than words. Last Friday night Wheeler's team spoke well enough for itself on the field. The Warriors put together a total of 434 yards offense while holding West Point to just 122 yards. They struck almost anytime they wanted through the air and on the ground. Thompson struck first with a 25-yard pass from Kenney to Smith. Hawkins added the PAT. The Warrior defense also added to the lead with a safety forced by Bivins. Too, Bivins and Brown would not be denied touchdowns in their last outing. Thompson struck on a 24-yard Bivins run and Hawkins PAT, before West Point reached pay dirt on a 90-yard kick return.

Then it was Brown for an 11-yard TD romp, Bivins on a nine-yard burst and Brown again on a 44-yard point explosion. Hawkins was good on two of the three PAT attempts which followed those scores.

Thompson completed its flood of scoring on a 22-yard pass from Kenney to Smith.

The best West Point could manage was one last three-yard TD run and a muffed extra point try. So much for 1983... But what about Thomp-

According to Wheeler 52 players will return for next season's action, including standouts David Grill, Homer Threatt, Russell Worrell, Stevie Hawkins and Kevin Ballard.

Grill is a center and defensive lineman, Threatt is an offensive and defensive lineman, Worrell is an offensive and defensive lineman, Stevie Hawkins is a noseguard and fullback, and Ballard is a center and linebacker.

However, Wheeler used caution when talking about next year's expectations.

"I really don't know," he said when asked about winning potential. "I think we can field a good team, but that depends on what other teams

The coach noted that Brown and Bivins will be gone as well as quarterback Kenney, for whom there are no obvious replacements.

For the record Brown finished his career with 1,000 yards this year, while Bivins wheeled off 1,100 yards.

Coosa Valley stuns Raiders in season finale

As strange as it may seem, two almost identical gridiron battles were going on in Shelby County last Friday night. But as much as they were the same, they were very different.

While 2-8 Vincent was fighting 2-7 Chelsea in Vincent, 2-8 Shelby Academy was battling 1-7 Coosa Valley Academy near Columbiana.

Both games saw arch rivals going after each other, both were emotional and, both ended within three points of being identical scores.

Smooth move

Coosa Valley's Brett Strickland (18) puts a smooth move on Shelby Academy's Robert Thomas (7) in a battle of arch rivals. The Rebels reaped sweet revenge against the Raiders in winning the last regular season football contest played by both schools last Friday night. (Photo by Bert Seaman) The Rebels beat the Raiders 25-6 while the Yellow Jackets beat the Hornets 28-6.

Both also saw sweet revenge. While the Yellow Jackets bounced back from a 14-10 loss to Chelsea, the Rebels rebounded from last year's 28-13 loss to the Raiders.

But for all the sameness, there was one noncomparable aspect of the private school match.

Vincent's win over Chelsea may have been expected. Heck, the Yellow Jackets had played 3A Pelham to a one-point, double-overtime game. Pelham was a squad that had almost whipped powerful Thompson.

But Coosa Valley's dominance over the Raiders had to rank as something of a surprise. The only win they had all year was one over Minor Christian. The Raiders had at least won twice and were generally favored.

If anyone wasn't suprised over the outcome, it was Rebel Coach Bruce Breland.

"We were ready to play," Breland said. "We had decided to make this game the beginning of our next season, and we have a lot of goals for next year."

Breland said his team gained confidence over the year and it knows it can be good. He also predicted earlier this year that his Rebels would surprise someone.

The goals that inspired CVA to last Friday's surprise?

""We have dedicated ourselves to work together as a team," Breland said. "Instead of two thirds of a team working, we will have 100% working."

And what else?

"We want to reach the state playoffs."

On the other side of the coin, Raider Coach Dewayne Kervin is wondering what to do with his team next year.

"After we lost to Southern, it kind of took the air out of us and we had a bad week of practice," he said, noting his team's obvious lack of motivation. Too, Kervin also admitted a physical superiority owned by the Rebels.

superiority owned by the Rebels.

But Kervin's wondering goes much deeper than last Friday night. While Breland is building for next year, Kervin finds himself with more pro-

The Rebels lose only six seniors and return 14 players -- all of whom have seen action and -- all of whom are ready to play.

By Kervin's own admission, the Raiders lose just two players, but he is going to have to make some serious decisions regarding which of his returnees will play next year.

"Some of our players have hurt us game after game, and I'm going to have to replace them. Some just didn't come through," Kervin said.

He pointed out that his club's backfield is questionable, with kicker Vince Pickett being the leading scorer.

The Raider coach said that he started making substitutions as soon as he knew his team was getting beat last Friday.

"I thought it was time to start looking," he concluded.

The Rebels scored on six and two-yard runs by Brett Strickland, and eight and one-yard runs by Ricky Sprouce.

Strickland also added the only Rebel PAT.

The Raiders reached paydirt just one time on a 27-yard Doug Thomas run in the second quarter. The Raiders wrap-up 1983 at 2-9, while the Rebels finish the year at 2-7.

If Coach Billy Tohill could have written a script for the final game of this season, things couldn't have turned out better for Pelham than they did Friday night.

"It left a good taste in the mouths of our coaches, players, mommas and daddies," Tohill said of the win in words heavy with meaning. Considering that he has been struggling to build a respectable football program at Pelham, that meaning was not hard to fathom.

ball program around, the first thing you need to do is build confidence. Winning the last game of the season last year helped Tohill turn this year's squad into a harder, tougher bunch, he indicated.

Too, Tohill saw something he has been wanting to see all year: team unity in effort.

"Guard Mike Filkens had a fine game... Tailback Bobby Gignilliat had his best game of the year," Tohill started to say.

In the midst of naming names such guard Danny Turner and center Mike Bramblett, the Panther Coach stopped, then stressed proudly, "It was just us (as a team) instead of who it was."

Pelham's Panthers played together as a team long enough to take a 16-0 lead. That was accounted for by a Gary Howard field goal, a pass from quarterback Ricky Hayes to Jackie Johnson, a Howard PAT, and a Tony Jeffers fumble recovery.

They also played together long enough to stop a comeback by Chilton County at 14 points.

But do all these positive things really mean Pelham will be a winner next year?

While Tohill was very pleased with his team's last effort, he wasn't making any predictions when we went to press. That could well have been because he had actually expected the Panthers to do better this season than they did.

"I really don't know," Tohill said of the future, obviously wanting to be conservative.

He only allowed himself to name outstanding returnees such as Darryl Johnson and Jackie Johnson, Gignilliat, Jeffers and Toby Scott before he put on the brakes.

"These people have played a lot for us, but we will have to mix them with our junior varsity, get them on a weight program, make them stronger and evaluate them before we know what we've got."

In addition to seeing a fine football game, Pelham fans also saw a fine man honored last Friday night.

Ned Bearden, who donated the land on which Pelham High School and its football field are located, was honored with the school's football field being named in his honor.

Bulldogs are ready

The health status of the Montevallo Bulldogs may be questionable... but that won't stop them from going after Hokes Bluff in the first round of state 2A football playoffs this Friday night.

The Bulldogs will be biting at the bit for the 7:30 p.m. road game against a team they have met in playoff competition three times before.

Friday's encounter will also mark the fifth time Montevallo has reached state playoff competition. The last time they went was in 1978.

Five years ago the Bulldogs beat Ohatchee 24-0 before losing to eventual state champion Eclectic.

In their three previous first round matches, the Bulldogs lost to Hokes Bluff twice -- 21-12 and 12-6 -- and beat them once 35-16.

This year Area 8 champion Hokes Bluff (located just east of Gadsden) is posting an 8-2 record with both losses coming against 3A opponents. The Bulldogs, Area 7 champs, are 9-1, falling only to 3-A Thompson.

The Bulldogs' health problems center around linebackers Barry Worthy and Dwayne Jackson. Both were expected to practice Tuesday morning to determine their playing status.

Both Jeff and Andy Chism have been fully restored to the team and should see action.

A motorcade will be leaving the high school at 4 p.m. to make the special trip. The Reporter will be along for all the excitement, naturally.

Head Coach Danny Alverson was quick to return the compliments. "I haven't been around a harder working bunch than this one. It has been a real privilege to be their coach. And they'll never know how much they mean to-

Even though the Eagles failed to make the playoffs, they did succeed in contributing to some rather impressive records. By going undefeated at home this year Calera now has a 46-9-1 record at Ricky M. Cairns Memorial Stadium, the home of Eagle football since 1973.

Also, this year's winning record gave the Eagles their thirteenth consecutive winning season. And, last but not least, Coach Danny Alverson's career coaching record at Calera stands at 42-13 in five years of coaching, a winning percentage of 76%.

As one senior noted, "Our tradition demands that we be winners and I'm sure next year's team will carry on. They always have."

scored from there, Reynolds added the PAT and Vincent led 28-6.

The Hornets did not give up the fight but the score never changed, leaving Chelsea with a tough, 2-6 ending to a long season.

"We've just got to get mentally and physically tougher if we are ever going to compete in football at Chelsea," commented a dejected coach Hulsey. What about Chelsea's future?

While the Hornets lose ten seniors from this year's squad, they will return 15 sophomore and junior players.

"I think our sophomores and juniors have been working hard all year and I believe with enough hard work, we can turn things around," was about all Hulsey would say to that.

The Vincent Yellow Jackets will lose only five seniors from this year's team, Kidd, Turner, Reynolds, White and Garrett.

Among the returnees from a 29-man roster will be none other than Pouge, a tenth grader and Riggins a junior.

Coach Garrett also would not say too much about next year, but he commented of the two returning standouts, "Both are good runners and they have come a long way."

With the win Vincent concluded 1983 with a record of 3-8.

Tree-top walk to provide bird's-eye nature trail for Oak Mt

Within one year's time, visitors to Oak Mountain State Park should be able to enjoy a rare treat - the opportunity to see hawks, owls, and other birds of prey in their natural habitats.

U.S. Senator Jeremiah Denton has announced the approval of a $15,000 grant from the U.S. Department of the Interior to construct a facility for housing permanently disabled or healing birds of prey at the park.

In addition, a 300-foot long, tree-top level walkway, fully accessible to handicapped persons, will allow an up close view.

According to Phil Easterwood, Oak Mountain Park superintendent, a handicapped parking area will be constructed and a gradual incline will provide access. Fully enclosed cages up to tree-top level will house the birds.

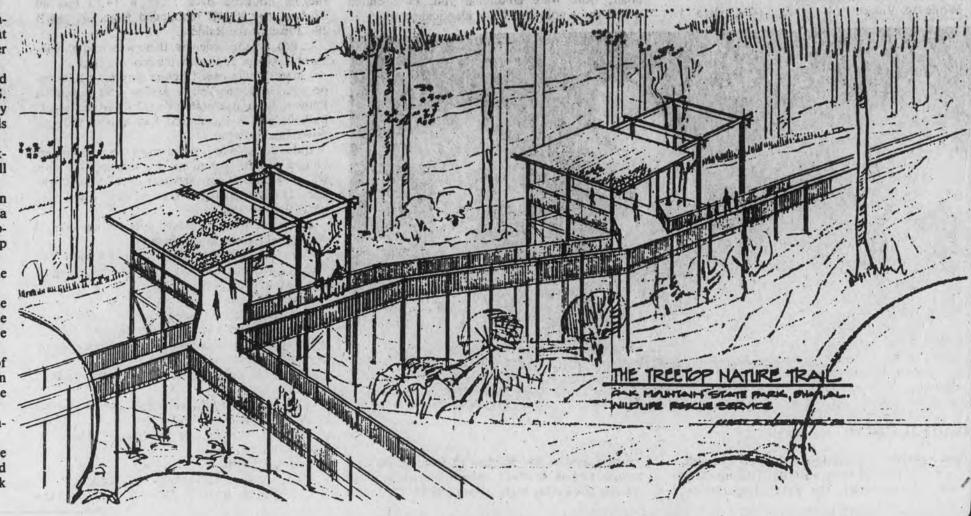

That's not all. A second phase will extend the day use area walk to 1,000 feet.

The project will be a joint venture between the State Department of Conservation and the Wildlife Rescue Program. Its ultimate cost will be $30,000.

According to Jim Strickland, supervisor of recreation planning and grants, the $15,000 in federal funds will be adminstered by the State Department of Conservation.

Strickland expects the entire project to be completed in one year's time.

Not only will the permanently disabled birds be kept on display, but injured birds which are healed will be released back into the wild on the park grounds.

Young Pelham Panthers go for second Super Bowl trip

A second straight Super Bowl

If anyone thought that was too much for the 95-pound Pelham Panthers to ask of this season -think again!

The young Panthers blasted Fultondale 38-0 last Saturday in the opening round of playoff action, proving their goals are justly founded.

Quarterback Jimmy Hicks linked with Scott Busby for a 27-yard TD strike, and later George Golliday swept around the end for a TD and a 12 point

To make their intentions even more apparent, the young Panthers broke the game wide open with 26 second half points.

After Busby swept for a 37-yard TD trot to make it 18-0, Hicks went to the air and found Brian Chambers for a 50-yard strike. Golliday added the conversion and Pelham led 26-0.

Robbie McCary capped the last drive of the day with a three-yard run for a 32 point lead.

The final points came on a super defensive effort. John Fant stripped the ball loose from a Fultondale ball carrier in the endzone to make it 38-0.

Offensively, the Panthers rolled on to victory behind the blocking of Sean Lee, Jimbo Doyle. Derek Shroyer, Wade Evans, Dominic Baldone, Chris Caldwell and David Sanders.

The defense was led by Evans, Caldwell, Shroyer, J. D. Charlton, McCary, Brandon Callahan, Busby, Golliday, Jeff Sciacia, Slade Holladay, Mike Jeffers, Nathan Ingram, John Paul Church, Chambers, Fant and Eric Horton.

Highway worker retires

Billy E. Farmer said good-bye to the Shelby County Highway Department October 31 amid a shower of praise and affection.

Farmer has worked for the county for over 31 years, his most recent assignment being that of maintenance superintendent for the highway system.

His co-worker's gathered at the highway building for a brief ceremony, where County Engineer Gary Ray said it was "One of the saddest days I've faced." You cannot underestimate or replace the value of experience."

Ray also read a commendation from the county commission which praised Farmer for "long hours of service, far beyond the call of duty," in reference to times when natural disasters created critical highway problems.

The mood lightened up when Kenneth Walton and others roasted Farmer for his reputation as a high-speed driver.

His co-workers presented him with an outdoorsman's jacket.

Farmer told the Reporter the most enjoyable part of his career was the 20 years he spent running the survey crew, where he met a lot of people, in the process acquiring county right-of-way deeds.

He said health was a reason behind his retirement. He will retire to his farm at Four Mile.

DID YOU KNOW?

Alabama Power's powerful connections help serve you better.

That's right. Alabama Power is electrically interconnected with Georgia, Mississippi, and Gulf Power Companies, as well as other southeast utilities. Because we all help each other, we all benefit from lower operating costs. And that means lower costs for our customers. It also means that we can call on one another during emergencies. And that's good for everyone.

UM names seminar aides

In an effort to help new students adjust to University life, 86 juniors and seniors at the University of Montevallo have been selected as peer advisers and supervisors for the Freshman Seminar Program.

The Freshman Seminar Program offers freshmen a balanced overview of University life, provides them with role models and provides a means for new students to learn about the artistic, academic and recreational opportunities on campus.

Student advisers and supervisors from Shelby County are:
Paul Barber, Martha Crocker,
Linda Davis, Ralph Dobbins,
Beth Wilkinson, and David Zavdil, all of Montevallo; Katherine Bradford of Chelsea; Jeannie Dill and Jennifer Milner, both of Columbiana; Micky Ferguson of Helena; Melody Lake, Nancy
Noble, and Cindy Walters of Cahaba Heights; and Evette
Pearson of Calera.

Top Helena wheels

At Pelham-Alabaster Rotary Club

Bartow pumps Blazers for fifth UAB season

by Fred Guarino

"Gene Bartow's record at the University of Alabama in Birmingham (UAB) is nothing short of miraculous... it could be compared to what Lee Iacocca has done for Chrysler."

That's the way Ken Williams of the Pelham-Alabaster Rotary Club introduced his guest speaker and personal friend last Thursday.

The intro is, indeed, an accurate description.

Consider the numbers. Five Blazer teams in five years without a loser in the bunch, and an average of 20 wins per season.

But that isn't all. Under Bartow the Blazers went to the National Invitational Tournament (NIT) his second year and then three straight times to the NCAA national basketball championship

In 1982 the Blazers beat Indiana and Virginia and came within three minutes of dumping Louisville for a berth in the final four -- a feat that would have made Bartow the first coach in NCAA history to take three different teams to the final four.

Too, all of this happened at a school that didn't even have a basketball program five years ago.

So much for credentials. Why did the UAB mentor come to Alabaster? Bartow made no bones about his trip. He said simply and without apology that it takes big money to have big time basketball.

"I brought bumper stickers and schedules," the coach smiled. "I'm promoting today. We are in a most interesting season. Football is grabbing the headlines... the Birmingham Stallions are getting whole pages of ink, and here I am trying to sell tickets."

But that was all right with Rotarians, who listened eagerly as he promoted the Golden 100 Club in which members contribute $1,500 per year. They laughed as he said he even gave his wife's season tickets away to get members.

With Tuscaloosa about an hour and a half away and Auburn even further, the men were anxious to hear about the closest national basketball power to Shelby County.

At least one member bought some of Bartow's tickets.

Bartow made it clear that he wasn't "trying to rock the boat" for Alabama and Auburn athletics. But he stressed that UAB is moving fiercely to build a fine athletic program of its own.

"I can't prove that the dream of Jerry Hill (UAB athletics) has made Birmingham a better place," the coach said, "but I have to feel our students have better identity because of it."

The coach went on to stagger the minds of Rotarians with talk of the kind of money big time basketball takes and brings to UAB.

Reaching the first round of the NCAA tournament alone pays $300,000. Games with teams such as Auburn draw 10,000 to 11,000 people at as much as six dollars per person. In addition, national televisions appearances bring $75,000 each.

Of no small consequence is the fact that UAB is slated to appear on the "boob tube" at least eight times in 1983, including ESPN broadcasts. One televised game this year will pit the Blazers against DePaul.

Even with all of this income, Bartow explained that it takes about $500,000 a year to field a big time team. But the coach really caught the Rotary Club's attention when he touched upon recruiting woes which were of obvious interest to supporters of athletics in this area.

"Last year we didn't recruit a single player from Alabama. We had to recruit instead in Florida, Georgia and Tennessee," the coach said on the verge of some great information. But when asked by the eager Rotarians Bartow answered "off the

Jaycees crank up Xmas drive

With a little help from their friends, the north Shelby Jaycees hope to make this Christmas bright for 20 needy children.

Donations from Shelby County businesses and individuals will allow the group to not only provide these special children with brightly wrapped gifts, but with a Christmas tree and Santa Claus as well. According to Jaycee Rick Jones the children will be selected from a list provided by elementary schools, the county department of pensions and security and area churches if necessary.

The club's management and development vice president reported that $1,250 were spent on such special youngsters last year.

"We spent $50 per child and that was pretty nice because they usually don't have much," he said. "We tried to get them jackets, a pair or two of pants, toys, shoes and books."

But this year the club needs $1,000 which it does not have, Jones told the Reporter. That's because lack of a location prevented the club from holding its annually successful haunted house fundraiser this Halloween.

Helping raise the $1,000 is where Jones said individuals and businesses come in. The Jaycee group is also soliciting local grocery stores this year for dried or canned goods.

David Fields, community development vice president, is officially in charge of this project with Ray Kirby serving as his project chairman. Jim Busbin is the organization's president.

Anyone interested in helping this cause should call either 664-0238 or 663-1826 for information. Further information will be published at

Looks doubtful

North Shelby water hike headed off?

If you live in north Shelby County and get your water through the Birmingham Waterworks Board, you won't have your rates increased,

But a series of legal maneuvers is going on that could change those Recently, the state Supreme Court ruled that the Birmingham Waterworks Board could set rates higher in some areas it serves, than in others. But north Shelby citizens have already filed for a re-hearing of this ruling. Until the Supreme Court decides whether to re-hear the case or not, there will be no changes in rates.

The court, however, was unanimous in its recent ruling, and observers do not think it will agree to re-hear the case.

The situation came up because the Birmingham board decided some years ago to require users in north Shelby-and certain other areas-to pay higher rates than users in Birmingham. A cry of 'discrimination' went up, and the rates case came to court.

A lower court ruled that the Birmingham board had to be consistent, and charge the same rates to everyone it served. That is the ruling the Supreme Court reversed recently.

C.D. Colee, an official with the Birmingham Waterworks Board told the Reporter he could make no comment on the matter since it is

UM cheerleaders

The University of Montevallo recently selected 12 young women as cheerleaders for the 1983-84 school year. Among them are (from left) Jemison graduate Regina Emfinger of Montevallo, and Celeste Melton of Sterrett, and Pam Moore of Wilsonville, both graduates of

Bartow dodges recruiting issue

"This year we feel there are six to ten players to choose from in the Birmingham area," he said cautiously. "I would like to think we'd get one or two but we will recruit Florida hard in any case."

the fact that the Tuscaloosa based squad won't take the challenge of playing his team.

Bartow also stopped short of commenting on

GENE BARTOW

"It's too controversial," was the only thing he would tell the Reporter.

He simply said that contests with teams such as Auburn would be great for both schools regardless of how they turnout.

What about the 1983-84 Blazers? Bartow was

"We will be pretty good. This will be the quickest, most entertaining team I have had with four sophomores in the middle, Steve Mitchell, Jack Gordon, Jerome Mincey and Archie Johson."

He predicted that the young Blazers will probably be a top 20 team when those guys reach their junior and senior years.

He further excited them with a report on big man Lou Foster. "He will be a senior and in 17 practices, he is better than he every played last year."

When Rotarians asked which conferences Bartow rates among the top five, the Southeastern Conference didn't make the cut.

The coach would only name the Atlantic Coast Conference, the Big East, the Big Ten, the Metro and the Southwest. He was quick to add that the Sunbelt is also big time."

What about teams that hold the ball, such as Samford did to his Blazers last year?

"Anytime I see a team holding the ball I gripe at my players to keep them excited. I next go to the referees to be sure they enforce the five second rule. After that I go after anyone who gets close," Bartow laughed.

He said he would never tell his team it wasn't as good as another or that holding the ball is the only

"I just couldn't do that," he said. He added that he was a little miffed that other coaches have a habit of playing that dull style of basketball on his court, instead of their own. Finally, the club members wanted to know what brought Bartow from UCLA to Birmingham?

"It takes a special personality to follow someone like John Woodin, Adolph Rupp... or a Bear Bryant," the coach said without reservation. "I didn't have that personality. To me it wasn't worth it." Bartow further explained that he had been assisting UAB in its search for a coach until he came to Birmingham himself. "I was shocked. Most city campuses are concrete. I had not envisioned the beauty. So I decided, gee, I can escape here."

Helena rides for CF

Helena youngsters rode 334 miles to raise a grand total of $546.59 for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

As a reward for his pedaling efforts, one of the youngsters in the Helena Jaycee sponsored bike-athon received a ten speed bike.

The winner of that prize was a happy Jason Mantooth, who rode his younger brother's small bike in the money raising event bécause his had a flat tire.

Ten year old Jason rode a total of 30 miles and collected $69.23 for the cause.

Mike Coyle, 11, also rode 30 miles and was awarded a $25 gift certificate for raising $61.

Nine year old Jeffrey Jackson pedaled his bike 28 miles, earning $38 for Cystic Fibrosis.

The leading money raiser in the event was Jeff's 13 year old brother Bryan who lead the field of riders with 34 miles which brought in $80.60.

Since Bryan's dad, Grover Jackson, chaired the bike-a-thon event, it was decided the grand prize should go to the number two money raiser.

Test soil now for next year's garden

You may be wasting money by putting uneeded ingredients on your soil.

For that reason, the County Extension Service urges gardeners and farmers to have their soil tested.

Samples will be taken to Auburn at no cost if they are delivered to the following locations prior to Nov. 28: Westover

New lawmakers hit Montgomery on the run

County delegates named to posts

by David F. Moore

Things are moving fast in Montgomery.

Even before 'thank-you voter' advertisements had gone to press in the Reporter, Shelby County's new delegation had already met and been adjourned from day one of Governor George Wallace's special session of the legislature.

During the Tuesday afternoon meeting of the house and senate, important committee appointments were made. According to Montgomery sources:

Senator Frank 'Butch' Ellis -- one of four senators without prior experience -- was named to the powerful Finance and Taxation Committee. He is one of 11 senators on the education subcommittee (the other subcommittee to Finance and Taxation is a general one).

Ellis was appointed vice-chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and a member of the Constitutional Revision Committee.

Incumbent Sonny Moore, representing the eastern part of Shelby County in the Alabama House of Representatives, was re-appointed for his third term to the powerful Ways and Means Committee where he has served a total of five years.

Moore was also named to the Business and Labor Committee. District 40 Representative John Tanner was named vice-chairman of the Highway Safety Committee. Tanner was also appointed to the Judiciary Committee and Commerce and Industrial Development

Tanner is one of 20 representatives without prior house experience. "Our delegation is in an excellent position to be very effective for Shelby County in the next three years," commented Joe Brindley, a former Boaz legislator who now represents the University of Montevallo in state matters. The senate and house opened the special session Tuesday with organizational meetings at 4 p.m. Wallace addressed a joint session of the lawmakers at 6 p.m., pointing out bills -- such as prison construction, improvements to the Capitol building, and others -- that he wants the legislature to pass before Thanksgiving.

The house was expected to reconvene at 10 a.m. Wednesday, and the senate was slated to meet at noon.

Haitians' bus flips off I-65

by Bert Seaman

Rescue services, ambulances and police were called out Saturday morning when a busload of Haitian fruit pickers overturned near the Shelby County Airport exit on I-65.

"I expected to see dead bodies," said Thomas Smith, a Chilton County man who was in charge of the Haitians and had been driving behind the Florida bound bus when it flipped over.

Much to his relief, Smith found that most of the passengers appeared only to have been shaken up and bruised in the accident.

After Calera and Shelco Rescue squads treated the 35 bus passengers, ambulances transported them to Shelby Medical Center. With the exception of one man, whose name was not available, the Haitians were treated and released. SMC Nursing Administrator Brenda Carter reported Monday that the man who was admitted was in stable condition.

She said additional hospital personnel were called in Saturday to handle the emergency, but the most serious difficulty turned out to be the language barrier. Most of the Haitians did not speak English.

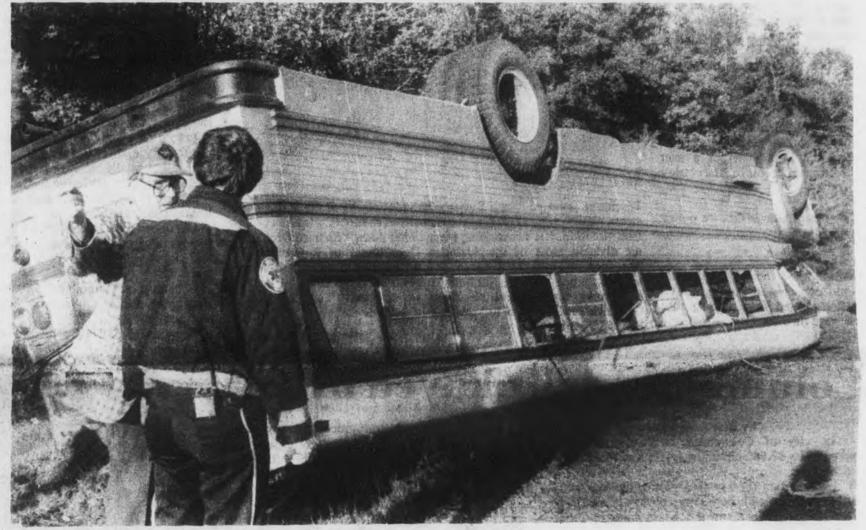

Since the group had not eaten before the 6 a.m. bus wreck, the hospital served them breakfast in the cafeteria before they were taken to the Salvation Army shelter in Birmingham to spend the night.

The hospital's social services department made the arrangements for their lodging, Carter reported, adding that the Columbiana Baptist Church sent their bus to transport the Haitians to Birmingham. On Sunday, the Florida based firm that employs the Haitians sent a bus to take them to Winterhaven. According to Smith, the Haitians had just fulfilled a contract for a fruit grower in Albion, NY.

The cause of the accident is unknown. However, bus driver Hubert Jean said the bus started shaking and he was unable to control the steering just before the 1973 vehicle overturned on the shoulder of the interstate north of Calera.

No serious injuries

Thomas Smith talks to Shelco Rescue squad member Lonnie Thompson about the bus accident on I-65 north of Calera which sent 35 Haitian passengers to the hospital. Fortunately, all but one were treated and released following the early morning accident Saturday. Smith was in charge of the group of fruit pickers who were traveling from New York to Florida. (Photo by Bert Seaman)

Food crowd

The crowd showed up long before the 10 a.m. food distribution Monday in Columbians, and the butter and cheese didn't start arriving until 10:30. Some people sang and joked to pass the wait, other jostled, cursed and broke in line. Food distributions were scheduled again for Wednesday, and for Thursday starting at 12:30 p.m. (Photo by David

A month ago the commission agreed to give airport opposition representative Bill Knowles, 30 days notice before taking action on the airport. Monday, November 14, that notification period expired and Tucker expected the commission to go ahead and give control of the airport to the authority.

Knowles -- nor any other airport opposition -- showed up to oppose the measure, despite the fact that the commission held up discussion of the matter until 11 a.m. because someone had gotten the idea that it would be discussed at that time.

"I don't think the commission is ready to blindly turn over authority," Commissioner John Ames commented.

He moved that the county attorney only draw up an airport lease for the authority, and that it be studied by the commission before approved.

The lease would specify the following revenue sources for the authority: One thousand dollars on which to operate, added to $1,000 already appropriated for equipment

•Six thousand dollars to be refunded to the county from the FAA for the set up of a non-directional beacon •Rent received from operators' of the airport who currently lease it. Ames said that once the lease is drawn and the commission has a chance to study it, a definite vote could be taken.

He indicated that the le stipulate that the airport authoris encumber the county with any hu without consulting the commission

Education board names trustees

With one exception, the Shelby County Board of Education approved all the school trustees recommended by Superintendent of Education Ellie Glasscox Tuesday night.

The exception was Jim King, one of the three trustees Glasscox named as a trustee at Pelham High School.

When no one on the board moved to accept his recommendation, the superintendent submitted Mike Campbell's name in place of King's, and Campbell met with the boards approval.

A board member later told the Reporter that some board members and Pelham patrons were opposed to King being a Rather than create a controversy, he said the board decided not to accept King's nomination.

He said he did not know the reason for some not wanting King as a trustee.

Besides Campbell, the other Pelham trustees are Robert Gardner and Bill Martin. At other county schools, the board approved the following trustees:

Jake Morris and Harold Davenport will represent the Shelby County Commission in its request for $250,000 from Shelby Medical Center.

Since Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden has officially requested the money in a letter to the SMC finance board, it will now be up to the two commissioners to set up a meeting date.

If received, the money will be used to help fund the county's mosquito control program, mental health program and the county health department.

Commissioners also agreed at their meeting Monday that the county highway department may work 800 feet of old Crow's Cove Road off Cahaba Valley Road.

The unpaved street, now known as Cahaba Road, is used as a mail route and serves seven families.

The county attorney attorney said he has no doubt that the road is public, but pointed out the county's long standing policy of not working any road over oppostion.

Since the first section of the road is owned by a person who does not want it worked, it was suggested that work be done only on that part serving the seven families.

The commission approved an approiation of $1,000 to complete the installation of a non directional beacon for the county airport.

A new dental insurance policy with Blue Cross was approved.

Bids for a memory typewriter and a copier for the tax assessor's office proved so confusing that all were thrown out.

Blowing soot

Discharge from Alabama Power's 750-foot stacks at the Wilsonville steam plant -- such as that seen as recently as Saturday -- is not a pollution violation. "It's something every boiler does," Richard Grusnick, air division chief of the Alabama Department of Environmental Management, told the Reporter. What happens, he said, is that soot sometimes gets so heavy on boiler tubes, that it has to be blown out the stacks for efficient electricity production. "Soot blowing," Grusnick said, "is not in violation of our regulations." (Photo by David F. Moore)

Voting map submitted

by Bert Seaman

A map dividing the city of Montevallo into five voting districts was presented at Monday night's council meeting.

However, the council won't vote on whether to make the map official until the next meeting, November 28.

The black community was satisfied with the map, but University of Montevallo Executive Vice-President Joe Brindley took exception to the way students were divided into four of the different yoting districts.

It was the university's view, Brindley explained, that one district should be composed of a majority of students to ensure them representation on the council.

Council members adjusted one district map line where it crossed the campus, because they felt the Justice Department would have construed it as gerrymandering.

After the adjustment, Brindley still thought that the students would not, in reality, be able to elect a represenative to the city council, even though the adjustment put a majority of students in two districts instead of four. The elections will be in July when students are not in the dorms, Brindley explained.

The council's reason for changing the system of voting from at large to districts, was the insistence of black leaders that there was no other way for them to have representation on the council.

Using the 1980 census figures, black community leader George Dailey and City Administrator Don Hughes came up with the map which puts a majority of black voters in District 2 -- the area around Montevallo Middle School.

Mayor Ralph Sears said that an effort was made to put approximately 800 people in each of the voting districts. He pointed out that the lines had to be drawn along natural boundaries such as streets, railroads and rivers.

If the new voting procedure is approved, each candidate for a council seat will run from a district and only residents of that district will be able to vote for that person. Only the mayor will still run at large.

In other business, the council voted to change

Montevallo hears money requests

The city of Montevallo expects to get $54,971 in revenue sharing funds. But requests made at a public hearing Monday amounted to $123,545.

During the next two weeks the finance committee will study the requests and make their recommendation at a November 28 council meeting.

Before the hearing began, Mayor Ralph Sears said that it was not for certain that the money would come, because the general revenue sharing bill hasn't yet received congressional approval. However, he said he had been informally assured the money would be forthcoming.

Before requests were made, Sears also pointed out the city's policy of funding one time only purchases -- "usually capital expense items."

Requests were made for the following: •Library: $6,000 for copy machine, books, library construction

•Athletic Boosters: $10,000 for Fisher stadium to replace hazardous power poles, fencing, expand rest rooms, extend pipes for irrigation and install a track base

•Chamber of Commerce: $1,000 to advertise in state and national publications to attract industry

•Committee of Six (formed to improve education): $10,000 for an Apple IIe computer for the elementary, middle, and high schools, black-out shades, projectors, art supplies, science equipment, 25 dictionaries, and library books

•Police Department: $8,645 to paint, rebuild engines and transmissions on two patrol cars, and purchase a radio and booster, an IBM typewriter

•Rescue squad: $20,000 to build two story addition on fire station to house equipment, plus $2,400 to pay for life pak that has already been purchased

•Park and Recreation: $8,500 for mower, fencing at middle school playground and playground equipment, gymnastics, exercise and weight equip-

•Street Department: $25,000 to be used toward the purchase of a dump truck, garbage truck and to purchase a chipper

•Councilman Grady Parker: $5,000 to get Montevallo ready for Prepared City status

Other requests were: $4,000 for a public health nurse and family planner to visit the city on a weekly basis; $7,000 for new mower for the cemetery baord; the city administrator asked fir $15,000 to pay for part of a computer to be used in gas and water billing and general business; and $1.000 was asked for the Attention Home.

Columbiana bill okayed by AG

by Bert Seaman

The city of Columbiana was unexpectedly presented a $7,680 bill a few weeks ago for crushed rock.

It wasn't that the city didn't know the rock was being used beneath new sewer pipe -- it was just that no one realized how much was going into the trenches.

"We got into this without realizing it," explained Mayor Buck Falkner.

He said that water seeping through leaks in the old lines caused the ground under the new pipe to sink, so additional crushed rock was put in.

When the hauler presented his bill to the city and the Mayor realized it exceeded the bid law, an attorney general's opinion was sought.

Since the gravel was ordered by a city employee and the price charged was in line, Charles Graddick's office ruled that it was proper for the city to

It was noted however, that the city should establish purchasing procedures to prevent the recurrence of a similar situation.

official votes posted

Things happened fast after the election last week. A court determined the newly elected legislators would take office immediately, instead of on January 1, as expected. Then Governor George Wallace called a special session of the legislature, and put them to work in their first

The accompanying chart shows the election results by beat and box in Shelby County, and includes the totals of the beats in Bibb and St. Clair Counties that were involved in the same districts.

Because of the new district lines, the county had to set up 10 new boxes to accommodate voters. The official totals show that Frank Ellis, Jr., a Democrat, won the race for district 14 of the state senate with 8,354 votes. His opponent, Republican Don Murphy had 4,934 votes.

In the house race in District 40, Democrat John

Tanner found himself in the unusual position of having come in second in both the Bibb and Shelby County portions of the district, yet he won when the total number of votes were counted. Republican Al Knight was Shelby County's favorite, and Independent Ed Gentry, whose early years were spent at Pea Ridge, had a commanding lead in Bibb County. But Tanner totaled up 106 votes more than Knight, his closest opponent, in squeaking through to win.

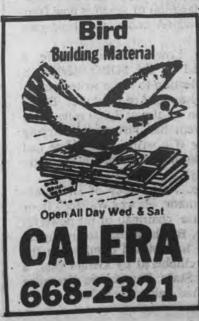

In house district 41, Democrat Sonny Moore defeated his Republican opponent, Jim Entrekin, Snowden fills new po

by Fred Guarino

A law which provides for the establishment of a one-stop tag purchase system in Shelby County has also created three new courthouse positions.

The county now has an assistant or deputy probate judge, a revenue department chief clerk in the probate office, and a branch office chief clerk in Pelham.

Tommy Snowden, in order to set up a one-stop system a separate revenue department had to be created.

He said Pat Sewell has assumed the position as assistant probate judge to help him oversee the new department. The title carries a pay scale of $625 biweekly.

"She has the authority to do almost everything I can do with the probate office, but commit a person," Snowden said of his former chief clerk.

Judy Stephens has become chief clerk of the new revenue department in Columbiana at a pay scale of $558 bi-weekly. "She was handling my books," Snowden said of the former Snowden also explained that a chief clerk was needed for the Pelham license branch and Carol Shubert was his choice. She formerly served as his deputy chief clerk in Columbiana.

Shubert also receives a pay of $558 bi-weekly and under the new set up, she and Stephens are considered of equal rank among courthouse personnel.

The new positions became effective with the passage of the 1983-84 budget.

"You can see from the crowd (buying tags) where the responsiblity lies," Snowden said concerning the need for the posi-

Before the new system, tag sales were shared with the tax offices.

To dispel theories that Sewell could become probate judge in the event of his death, Snowden said that would not happen and the replacement would be the choice of the governor.

"This is nothing new. She has always been able to handle things in my absence," the probate judge further stated.

The new positions were included in Snowden's 1983-84 budget and the personnel selections were left entirely up to him.

County Commissioner John Ames said that Snowden was within the law in making the appointments and that the commission did not try to dictate who to pick.

Ames stressed that Sewell hasbeen granted no authority which she did not already have.

Spradco industrial park According to Probate Judge goes back to court again

Gaither Spradling is back in circuit court, seeking approval to build an industrial park.

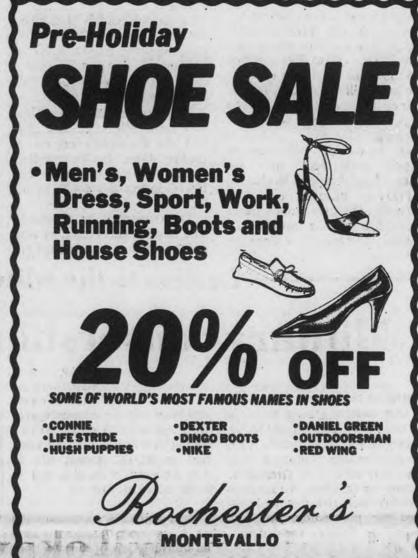

His proposed park, called 'Spradco' has been the subject of various court decisions, all involving the zoning situation in Beat 12.

The location is on Highway 119, about 11/2 miles from 280. Persons who live in the area do not want the park to be built. The area is now zoned for residences

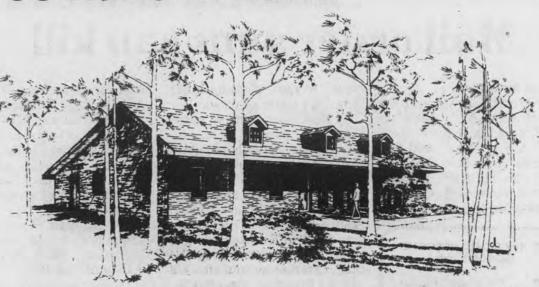

But Spradling is not seeking rezoning for his 50-60 acres. He is appealing earlier decisions. At one time, he was given a year to start building his park, but he did not proceed with it.

He is claiming now that he never had a full year free from court actions.

At a meeting of the county planning commission on March 15, 1982, plans for a warehouse and office space were outlined for the property.

Missile issue hits Europe

by Marcia M. Sears

Pershing II and cruise missiles: The plan to place these U.S. made missiles in Europe is the topic of intense discussions, not only at the Geneva peace talks between western governments and the USSR, but also in the streets of major cities.

In an attempt to get a better insight into this and other problems facing the western alliance, the National Newspaper Association sponsored a European tour in October. Thirty publishers and editors from various parts of the United States talked with government leaders in London, Brussels, Bonn, Luxembourg, Paris, and Rome. Alabamians participating were Ralph and Marcia Sears, Shelby County Reporter, and Ed and Catherine Reed, Arab Tribune.

Nearly all the spokesmen asked that they not be quoted by name; that our interviews be considered "background". They had no objection to our printing their names in a list with others who spoke to our group. By the end of the tour, that list was so long, we probably will not print it, but the names are available at the Reporter for anyone who is interested.

On the subject of the proposed missile deployment, here are some of the things we heard:

Sixteen months ago the Kremlin said they would freeze their SS-20 missile installations, but they did not. Now there are 351 SS-20s in all of Russia, with over 200 positioned so they could hit European cities.

The Russian SS-20 is a theatre weapon of less than 3,000 miles. Each one has three warheads. It's powerful and extremely accurate. That means first strike capability to destroy missile sites in Europe.

The SS-20s can be moved about easily. The Russians install them on trucks, planes or on railroad cars.

Some Europeans don't like the Pershing II because it's so fast, but the SS-20 has the same speed. The Pershing has only one warhead.

The reason the Geneva talks are going badly is that the USSR is arguing from 351 installed missiles against zero NATO missiles.

Large majorities of the people in each country of the NATO alliance are willing to support missiles.

In the announced U.S. plan, depending on the Geneva talks, 96 missiles are scheduled for installation in England. The other two sites on the schedule are Italy and Germany.

The French and the British each have missiles of their own, and the Russians insist on including these in the numbers game they are arguing in Geneva. NATO insists they not be includ-

The German point of view is: The English and French systems don't provide a deterrent for me. ourselves.

In the end, it's the perception the USSR gets of American strength, and the will to use that strength that counts. If the U.S. withdraws troops from Western Europe or backs down on the missile deployment, Russia will perceive it as a weakness in the NATO alliance as a whole, and speed up its aggressive policies.

The anti-nuclear demonstrations in Europe are carefully There's scheduled. "Rent-a-Crowd" group that goes from one military base to another to demonstrate. The same people seem to show up as leaders of these demonstrations.

At Ramstein Air Base (U.S.) in Germany, demonstrators closed the western entrance for about 10 minutes on each of three days just before we arrived. The German police - not U.S troops quickly dispersed the crowd.

The biggest problem is to keep the German population off the demonstrators.

When the U.S had the superiority of atomic power before 1953, we in Western Europe knew we were completely protected. But then the USSR got bombs and missiles. Now Europe doesn't believe the U.S. will use nuclear weapons if the Russians attack Western Europe with conventional warfare weapons. The reason? The Russians could wipe out the Boston to Washington corridor within minutes. That's why we have to protect

The singing at New Bethesda was in full swing when Amy and I got there. Folks were there from here to yonder and the Heavenly Echoes were filling the air with songs. They have a singing every first Sunday and we try to be there.

The Echoes took a breathing spell and somebody asked Rev. Lee Davis to lead a song. Lee has led a thousand songs in his life, some of them before a lot of these folks were born, but he got up and went to the front and put his glasses on the piano so he could see through the tears that swelled up in his eyes.

"I'll do my best," he said, turning the pages in his songbook. "I can't see too good and I have about 40% of my lung power and I have a heart condition" -- he wiped at his eyes with his handkerchief -- "and I'm past 80."

Before he started to sing, he added: "If you don't feel good inside you don't have what I've got." And they sang the first verse.

Then he said: "I heard about a mansion and I'm about ready to move in -- " and they sang

Lee wiped at his eyes and picked up his glasses and crippled back to his seat. Some guy in the crowd, who had known him for close to sixty years, said: "Bless his heart."

And then I found it and carried it up front where the ladies were waiting. Amy had sent an empty package along so I would know it when I saw it. I handed Peggy Horton the package I had bought and handed the other package to Pam Mitchell.

"Fifty-one cents," Peggy cooed, "and tax." That seemed fair enough. And I suppose it would have been, except Pam found something on the old package package that took her breath.

"You mean you bought this for a dime," she

"When did you buy it?" Peggy asked. "And where?" Pam added.

Notes from the Kingdom

...being the ramblings of a newspaperman who lives in the Kingdom Community...

by David F. Moore

Shoveling through the mail at work recently, I came upon a large envelope from Venice,

It was from Maxine Gordon. She is a writer, and probably a fine person, but I do not know this Maxine person.

Inside the envelope was a copy of the Venice Community Magazine. I do not know this magazine, either.

Inside this magazine I don't know is an article by this writer I don't know. But when I see the headline on Page 18, it grabs my attention like a flashing neon light on the desert at night: Family Reunions In The "Kingdom."

That's what most people say when I tell them I live in The Kingdom. "What?" is also high on the list. Around Wilsonville and Columbiana, of course, more people know where -- and what -you're talking about if you tell them you live in "The Kingdom Community" -- or, for short, "The Kingdom."

Up in Pelham and north Shelby people think The Kingdom has something to do with that weird magic place Mr. Rogers (can you say that?) likes to visit on his television show. Over in Pea Ridge people think you're being sacrilegious if you tell them you have a nice little place in the Kingdom. Out in Sterrett they hoot, "You trying to be funny or something, boy?"

Sometimes I bump into friends from Birmingham days gone by. With enthusiasm I tell them Dee, and our cats (Chelsea and Vandiver) and I, now live in The Kingdom.

"Sure. A condo, no doubt ... " They eye me like maybe I've been in Bryce's,

The Kingdom Community consists of a couple of dairy farms and cotton fields, several goat families, a block store with boarded windows, chipped paint and a sign that no longer says anything, three churches, two creeks, four or five paved "highways" and a dozen dirt roads. There are pecan trees -- and I do know of at least one loose nut -- but the place isn't

A condo? The house we live in -- owned by family friend Don Klasing -- was a log cabin back in 1833. In the winter it's air condition-

Such is The Kingdom. Most people truly know very little about it. That's why I was surprised when I saw the Florida magazine.

Son of a gun, I thought while reading Maxine's story. Sometimes this old world is a downright dinky place.

Maxine -- who used to be a Duncan -- writes about the ingredients of these reunions in the Kingdom: "...long board tables loaded with delectable food - lots of hugging and kissing old men pitching horseshoes or discussing politics, religion, the crops, or the steel mills women chattering furiously to catch up on the latest gossip and news - children joyfully playing ball or tag with their cousins and babies crying ... "

In the article she includes several family pictures (vintage 1936) of folks at attention in front of a camera. No doubt some of them have since taken up in "Kingdoms elsewhere.

She identifies these people as Rileys, Nivens, Martins, Richards, Williams, and Duncans. They could just as easily be Moores, Abercrombies, Smithermans, Rascos...

Makes me realize that the Kingdom -anybody's Kingdom -- isn't so much a "where?" or "what?" but a "who" instead.

Now, the National Rifle

This bill must be stopped. Our Congress should not enact legislation which only invites mail-order murder.

The Alabama Scene

by Bob Ingram

Picking up the pieces from what was truly a historic Alabama election...

It was historic for a lot of reasons, one being that the voters elected a record (at least since the Reconstruction) number of Republicans and Independents to the Legislature. The final count shows 16 Republicans in the Legislature, nine independents. Democrats saw their number shrink from 129 seats to 115...

Why did this happen? Why the rejection of so many Democrats? Without question, the decision by the State Democratic Executive Committee to handpick that party's nominees was the key factor. There was strong voter resentment to that decision. Even the Democrats that won had far tougher fights than they had expected...

Who were the biggest losers on Nov. 8? Again, the evidence is clear that the AEA and the ADC and their two man men -- Paul Hubbert and Joe Reed -- were blamed for the handpicking, since their groups control the State Committee. In fact, many of the GOP and Independent candidates spent more of their time in the campaign attacking Hubbert and Reed than they did in attacking their opponents.

Example: One independent Senate candidate used the line, "My opponent is walking for Paul, I'm running for y'all." He was elected. For what it's worth, even a last-minute pitch by

Gov. Wallace for the Democrats appeared to do no good. Wallace cut a radio spot urging Alabamians to vote the straight Democratic ticket. Not many did...

Do the results of the Nov. 8 election change the philosophy of the Legislature? Not really, because the AEA/ADC still has a firm grip. However, the close calls some of the Democrats had last week may make them a little less hawkish than in the past...

Some election oddities... Montgomery County's legislative delegation of seven is now four Republicans (all white) and three Democrats (all black)...

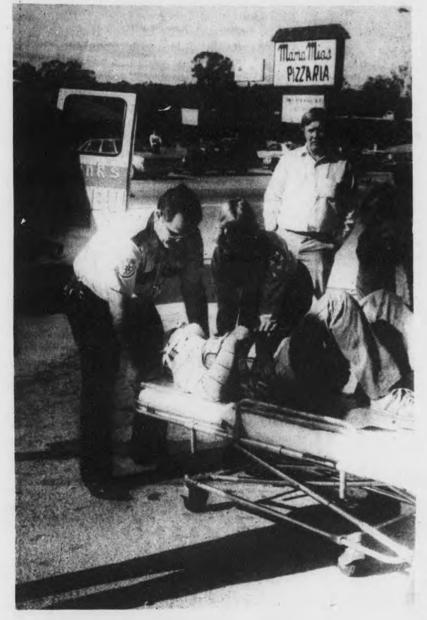

Incumbent Sen. Lowell Barron of Fyffe, a Democrat snubbed by the SDEC, decided a week before the election to run a write-in campaign against the handpicked candidate, David Stout. Barron won by almost 2,000 votes. This unprecedented event had historians scurrying to the files to see if a write-in candidate had ever won a legislative race before. Apparently Incumbent Rep. John Casey of Heflin appeared to have it made. He was Wallace's floor leader in the House, chairman of the powerful Rules Committee. But he agreed to give up all of that to be the handpicked nominee for the Senate. He was clobbered by Gerald Dial, a member of the State Democratic Executive Committee that had handpicked Casey.

TMS honors veterans

More than 200 Thompson Middle School students wore name tags to Thursday's Annual Veteran's Day Assembly. But the names written on the tags were not their own -- they belonged to men and women who had died in the service of their country.

One of the most recent deaths was that of a serviceman from a neighboring county who was killed in the Beirut bombing.

As a gesture of sympathy from the school to the family of hospital corpsman Jimmy Ra Cain of Gardendale, the patrioic flower arrangement that lad been prepared for the occaion was sent to them.

Richard DiMarzo, the only veteran on the TMS staf, was among those honored at the patriot event.

Members of the school's Patriots Club conducted a candle lighting ceremony and period of meditation for Aabama servicemen.

An expression of appreciation for those who served in each war and conflict in which this country has been engaged, was also included in the grogram.

Music for the occasion was provided by he Thompson High School corcert band and the Thompson Middle School chorus.

Arranements for the program were mide by the school's social studiesdepartment.

THANK

Wisincere appreciation to all the good people of Shelby County who had the courage to cast their vote for me in the race for State Representative, House District 41.

I remain very concerned about the future of our county and state. If our state government continues its present course, I predict that by 1986 we will find Alabama with (1) the highest unemployment in the South, (2) the lowest per capita income, and (3) still last in education while our sister states are enjoying the most prosperous times of their history.

Worst of all, we will not have the hope for the future that we had this year. Most of the Industries moving to the South from the North will have already located in other states. Alabama will stop growing as many of us are forced to move to other states to find jobs and business opportunities. Those that remain will be taxed heavier and heavier just to maintain present levels of funding for education, roads, etc.

I hope that those who control most of our legislators, the Alabama Labor Council, AEA (Paul Hubbert), Alabama Democratic Conference (Joe Reed) and Trial

I hope that those who control most of our legislators, the Alabama Labor Council, AEA (Paul Hubbert), Alabama Democratic Conference (Joe Reed) and Trial Lawyers (Jimmy Knight), will realize that the selfish things they are asking for will result in their own doom, and ours.

You, the people, have been taken advantage of by the Democrats because they know most of the people will vote Democrat regardless of who is running or what their record has been. They don't care if what they do is what the people want or not. They have the vote anyway. The only way to keep any politician honest is to vote for the man, not the party. Your vote for me has begun to send that message.

Thank you again for voting for me. I care about this county... all of it.

'Awesome' Montevallo roars to victory

by Mark C. Jones

Montevallo roared into the opening round of state 2A playoffs last Friday night with a 42-13 thrashing of Hokes Bluff.

To say the Bulldogs were 'impressive' in their demolition of the Eagles would be a gross understatement. 'Awesome' is more like it.

The 'Dogs dominated from the opening whistle to the final horn in winning the Region 4 championship. That victory now sets the stage for a quarterfinal showdown between the Bulldogs and Region 3 champ Handley (10-1) in Montevallo Friday night.

While the Hokes Bluff contest may have been the season's coldest, weatherwise, it found the Bulldogs red-hot.

The offense, under the direction of a talented Taylor Balckwell, sliced, punctured and riddled the Eagles' defense for 424 yards.

Virtually unstoppable Jeff Chism did most of the damage with 234 yards rushing on 25 trots.

Defensively, the 'Dogs were just as impressive -awesome -- holding the Eagles' rushing to 55 yards. Hokes Bluff's vaunted air attack managed only 136 yards and most of that came long after the game was in a blue and orange bag.

It was a night to behold for Montevallo's faithful. A playoff win by any margin is a delight... But a victory of such magnitude? Suffice it to say the Bulldogs were in true championship Montevallo took the opening kickoff and started its assault from its own 34 yard line. Three yards later, with a third and seven situation. Chism began his destruction.

He reeled off 28 yards to the Eagle 35. He rolled up two more first downs and the Bulldogs were pounding at the door.

Quarterback Blackwell barked the signals, rolled right and promptly lost control of the football at the eight. But what happened from there set the tempo for the rest of the night.

The Eagle defenders -- seemingly oblivious to the fumble -- scrambled for Blackwell while the football meandered into the endzone alone. Blackwell waded through the defenders, made a six-point rendezvous and the scoreboard flashed the results.

Paul Bush added the extra point and Montevallo led 7-0 with 6:14 to go in the first The Bulleg defense came on strong and fast, setting a patern for the Eagle offense to follow Three playsand a punt to Montevallo became the almost rouine way of things.

The second fulldog possession began at the Montevallo 31. Qism charged for first down after first down and Montevallo threatened at the Hokes Bluff 39.

Four plays later, was Chism again... bulling over the goal line from five yards out with 10:56 left in the second period.

Bush simply flexed hakicking foot for a second time and it was 14-0, Montevallo.

One... Two... Three... Punt for Hokes Bluff. Montevallo had the ball again.

But this time, the 'Dogs showed people in the Gadsden area that they were really flesh and blood, not phantoms. They punted and Hokes Bluff took over at the Eagle 35.

One Eagle first down later (the first coming halfway into the second period) the Hokes Bluff eleven punted back to Montevallo at its 31.

Keith Moore charged four yards on first down, which gave Chism a moment to catch his breath. Rested and ready, Chism then set sail on a 65-yard dash for Montevallo's TD. Blackwell charged over and around a sea of green jerseys for the two-point conversion and it was 22-0.

The Eagles made their deepest penetration of the first half by reaching the Bulldog 37. But a fourth down pass fell incomplete and Montevallo took over with 30 seconds left in the half.

While many of the fans scrambled for the concession stand, the Bulldogs dished out one last -at least for the first half -- punch.

Three plays, 63 yards and 27 seconds later Montevallo had scored again. Chism squirted the final yard with three seconds to go for the touchdown.

Anthony Prentice set up the score with a 46-yard run to the Eagle 17 and Bush added the PAT for a 29-0 lead.

Eagle coaches tried to devise a plan to control the line of scrimmage which thus far had belonged to Montevallo's Clyde Sailes, Kevin Staffney, Lonnie Layton, Andy Brindley, James Lucas and Rick Dobson. It didn't work.

The Bulldog defense kept the Eagles in cheek. But Montevallo didn't score again until 2:25 remained in the third period. Chism burst 'the Eagles' defensive seams and scored on a 22-yard power punch. Bush kicked and it was 36-0.

Now it was time for the reserves. Showing the same lack of respect for Hokes Bluff the starters had shown, the second team mounted a 73-yard drive of its own. The score was set up by a Barry Worthy fumble recovery at Montevallo's own 27. Substitute Ricky Gaddis connected with another new face, Freeman

Rutledge, on a 25-yard TD strike. With 10:38 left in the game, it was Montevallo in an unbelievable 42-0 lead. The extra point attempt failed but that mattered little. The 'Dogs had all they needed. Hokes Bluff salvaged two late scores but the effort was too little, too, too late. The Eagles exit the playoffs with an 8-3 mark while the Bulldogs continue down the state championship road at The next stop will be a Friday night contest with Region 3 champion Handley having to make the

Crystal ball shines true for round one

by Fred Guarino

"We have to be at our best," said Taylor Blackwell nervously, as he waited in the locker room at Hokes Bluff. "We can't be sloppy. We've seen the films. They've been behind and have come back.

"They have a good quarterback and our front four will have to press him so he won't have time to look. I think we can shut down their running game..."

That's what the Montevallo quarterback thought would be the key to victory last Friday night.

The 'Dogs did exactly what Blackwell said, and came away with an unbelievable 42-13 win. Even better... they did it to a tough bunch of Hokes Bluff Eagles -- 8-2 on the year -- and it gave Montevallo the Region 4, 2A championship.

Not only was Blackwell's pre-game plan correct, it was carried out to perfection. The proof:

Proof of Pierson's accuracy:

The Bulldogs, definitely not sloppy, amassed 449 yards total offense, mostly on the ground. •Hokes Bluff's running attack was shut down. It got just 50 yards on the ground. •The pass rushing of the Bulldog front four helped hold the Eagles to nine completions on 20 attempts for 198 yards. "It was not only pressure from our front four but our front eight that accounted for the win," said assistant coach Kurt Pnazek. The contest was Montevallo's first post-season stop in its search for a state title, and it came on a long road trip to a field just east of

To make the feat even more memorable, 9-1 Montevallo had faced Hokes Bluff in similar situations three times before. The 'Dogs, who hadn't been to the playoffs since 1978, had only once before beaten

But quarterback Blackwell wasn't the only prognosticator who proved right last Friday.

Beardless assistant coach Bobby Pierson knew that his team would breeze to victory. (Fans may remember Pierson as the guy who put his whiskers on the line when Montevallo played and defeated Jemison.)

•The Bulldogs led by as much as 42 breezy points before Hokes

Bluff ever saw the endzone. However, Pierson and Blackwell were also not alone in the prophet category. Enter statistician Cindy Holsombeck. "We have to score first," she predicted prior to the opening kick. "Every game we scored first in, we've won."

Sure enough: Montevallo scored the opening touchdown on a nine yard sprint by Blackwell.

More predictions? Big Rick Dobson also predicted the 'Dogs would

"We came down here to win. If we had that attitude (thoughts of losing) there would be no use in being here. We came down with a positive attitude and I think we'll take them."

Proof of his accuracy: •42-13.

The list of accurate crystal ball gazings doesn't stop yet. Substitute quarterback and tailback Ricky Gaddis would prove the best prognosticator of them all.

Gaddis said prior to the game that Montevallo was not a one man team, and that it would win with both team effort and "a lot of backup."

The proof of his predictions makes a long list:

 Standout Jeff Chism gained an impressive 258 yards, coupled with a superb effort on the part of quarterback Blackwell.

 Power running by big Keith Moore and receptions by Dobson kept the the Eagle defense off balance. Paul Bush's foot contributed four extra point conversions.

•Gaddis even got to see quarterbacking duty, givingto Moore who set Chism up for killing blows. Anthony Prentice also lot into the act with a 43-yard run that set Chism up for a 20-yard run aid a one-yard •Too, while the 'Dogs were rolling on offense, the stingy defense was helping to earn the team win. Prentice caught a HokesBluff fumble in the air, Barry Worthy got a quarterback sack, and in injured Dewayne Jackson did an outstanding job as middle linebacker.

•A tiny but surprising number nine, Antonio Devould also ripped

"I believe..."

Injured Bulldog tailback and middle linebacker Dwayne Jackson may have been in agony after Montevallo whipped Hokes Bluff 42-13. But that didn't stop him from predicting a state championship for his squad. "I believe we will go all the way," Jackson said optimistically as he nursed his fractured ankle. (Photo by Fred Guarino) for a state title? The Montevallo players wasted no time in answering those questions in a state of post-game delirium. "It means we've come a long way since the Thompson loss. I'm proud of everybody. I love everybody," said Johnny Holsombeck. "We are going to do it. We ain't going to slack up now. Ain't nothing going to stop us... unless it is ourselves."

"It means we got a couple of more games before we win the state championship," said Trey Hughes, answering both questions at once.

"It means a big victory," smiled Keith Moore. "We're going all the way!"

"It means the world to me," said Dwayne Jackson, who reinjured a hairline ankle fracture. "I feel that we will go all the way."

And Montevallo Coach Richard Gilliam?

"It was a tremendous job," Gilliam beamed to his team in a post game talk. "I am proud of you."

"Now the competition gets ten times tougher. The next game will be easily as tough as Thompson," he said.

But Gilliam did not end on a somber note. He told his team. "Remember perfect practice means a great game."

Hopes on the run

Hopes for a second straight Super Bowl trip ended for the 95-pound Pelham Panthers last Saturday afternoon behind the running of this Huffman player. He helped Huffman hand Pelham only its second loss in three years but one which came in a critical playoff contest. (Photo by Fred Guarino)

Young Panthers fall in playoff and the 95-pound Pelham Panthers at the Huffman ten-yard line, it looked as if a second straight 'Super Bowl' trip was assured.

The young AFYL Conference Champion Panthers needed only to cash in to win a hard fought contest that had been tied 6-6 at the half.

But a first down pass by Jimmy Hicks was picked off by Huffman's Chris Davis. Number 22 raced all the way for a touchdown, a 20-14 lead and the

The Panthers did have one last shot at saving the game, but a fumble with 15 seconds on the clock spelled defeat.

The crushing loss means that now 10-1 Huffman will go to the Super Bowl while previously undefeated and now 11-1 Pelham stavs home.

Coach Bill Fant explained that an undefeated record meant

With the score tied at 14-14 nothing in playoff action where all teams are considered even.

"This is probably the best team I've ever coached," he said of the squad that has lost only two games in three years. "I don't know what went wrong. The cold might have had something to do with it."

Huffman scored first to take a 6-0 lead before speedster Scott Busby ran the ensuing kick all the way back for a tying six points. The contest proved a defensive battle from there and the score did not change through the half.

In the third period Pelham's defense continued to play hard, holding Huffman on a long third down play.

Brian Chambers returned the following punt all the way to the visitor's 25-yard line to break the ice. Hicks senaked later for a first down and George Golliday ran the final 16 yards.

Bull Sanders added the twopoint conversion for a 14-6

The score did not change again until the fourth period when a controversial call helped Huffman tie things up.

A Pelham youngster was called for a face mask after he apparently grabbed the top of a Huffman runner's helmet.

The young Panthers protested, but Coach Fant quietly told them to cool down. "He called it the way he saw it," he said.

Moments later Huffman scored and made a two-point conversion.

Pelham moved impressively following that turn of events but the disasterous pass interception took the game away.

Still Pelham's Panthers have nothing to be ashamed of. They are the AFYL Comference Champions for 1983 and an undefeated regular season is much to be proud of.

Pride flows in Warrior mascot's blood

14-year-old Eugene Byrd. A freshman at THS, Byrd is the son of Ginger and Alan Large. He is half Navaho with Apache background. Both he and his mother . came to Alabaster from Arizona seven years ago.

In the Indian way, a person is considered to be whatever lineage his mother is. Ginger Large's grandmother Lucile Yazzie was Navaho, which accounts for her blood line.

"Because the mother carries the child nine months, the children are more a part of the mother than the father," Mrs. Large explained. With the Indian blood and with two chiefs -- Naiche and Nartena -listed among his ancestors; Byrd was a natural choice by the school for its mascot. (Nartena, Byrd's great-grandfather, was the brother of the famous Apache warrior Cochise.) So Thompson had a warrior this year.

"I enjoyed it," the young man told the Reporter of his part in Thompson's football season. "I got to see the games free, and I am proud of my Indian heritage."

But now that the first season as a mascot is over for her son, she said, "I am proud of Eugene." The clothes Byrd wore this season were authentic, if not technically grandparents upon his 15th birthday. At that time Byrd will become an adult in the Indian world, and he will receive real deerskin pants (instead of elk), and other clothes made by his grandparents. But again, he will not wear those clothes on the football field in respect for his grandparents wishes.

To help both Byrd and his family learn more about their heritage, the Larges plan to travel to Arizona this summer to trace their family's blood line, lea the language of their ancestors, and learn the way true Indians liv.d.

So... when you think about about the Thompson football, or next year if Eugene is on the sidelines again as planned, you will know that the spirit behind the Warrior's image is based upon the true spirit of

SCHS reunion for classes of '40, '41 brings back memories

It was the first reunion for the Shelby County High School Classes of 1940 and 1941. They got together on November 5 at the 4-H Center near Columbiana and, according to all reports, had a 'wonderful time.'

In all, 60 people attended the affair, counting class members and their guests. There was no formal program, but each one told about their families, their occupations and their retirement

They talked about the tornado that destroyed the school in the 1930's, and how they had to go to classes in churches, in the old courthouse, and in the Masonic Hall while the new school was built.

Then, the new school burned down -- denying the Class of 1940 their expected treat of being the first class to graduate in the new building.

But happy memories exceeded the bad, and the groups are reportedly planning to get together

UM Elderhostel participants see historic homes of Central Alabama

A retired elementary school teacher from Chelsea recently returned to classes at her alma mater -- but only for one week.

The learning experience that Mrs. Theron Holcombe attended was the recent Elderhostel program at the University of Montevallo, which offered participants three non-credit courses revolving around the theme of "The Old South."

No homework, no exams. But there were classes, and outside of the classes, a day-long tour of historic homes in central Alabama was offered. Also, UM president Dr. James F. Vickery Jr. presented a showing of "Gone with the Wind."

Joining Mrs. Holcombe -- a 1958 UM graduate -- at Montevallo's eighth Elderhostel were 44 other adults, aged 60 and above, from across the United

The program is now offered three times a year, and is one of more than 600 Elderhostels at colleges and universities in the US, Canada and Europe.

"Everything is so well planned. I have enjoyed everything very much," said Mrs. Holcombe of her fifth Elderhostel at Montevallo.

Chelsea PTO hears drug program

The IRS wants to bring taxpayer assistance to Alabama.

Members of Chelsea's PTO learned about a program on alcohol-drug education at their Monday night meeting.

The speaker was Joe Heilig, a member of a group that deals with alcohol and drug related problems. The organization also serves as a resource center for other moral issues which concern Americans.

The school was also presented a check of $6,300 at Monday's meeting for winning the county wide energy conservation award. Half of the money saved through the conservation effort was returned to the school.

Twenty-seven to vie for Junior Miss title

Bert Seaman

A girl who wants to compete in the Junior Miss competition doesn't have to be the most. beautiful girl in her class.

Overall appearance, poise, fitness and scholastic achievement are what count with the judges of the annual event.

This year, 27 seniors from nine high schools are competing in the Junior Miss contest for Shelby County.

Besides choosing a winner who can serve as an able spokesman for her generation, the nationwide scholarship program will also give hundreds of girls the opportunity to further their education at the college of their choice.

The tenth annual contest to choose a representative from this county will be held Nov. 18 and 19 at Riverchase Middle School.

On Friday night the program will begin at 7:30 with the finals beginning at 8 the following night.

Contestants will be judged on youth fitness, scholastic achievement, poise and appearance, creative and performing arts and a judges' interview. Awards will be given to winners in each category.

A board made up of former Cahaba Valley Jaycees formed a corporation to put on the annual pageant.

Only the funds necessary to produce the program each year are kept in the treasury with the rest of the money going back to the girls who participate.

The girl chosen as Shelby County's Junior Miss will compete in the state event in Montgomery.

Dunnavant Baptists take hike to aid denominational orphanage

Every year or so Dunnavant's Mt. Olive congregation gets an offering request from the Free Will Baptist Children's Home. Usually, the members send what they can to the orphanage in Eldridge.

"This time the young people wanted to do something different to help out," said Libby Kelly, one of some 58 regular members of the church.

That something different -- which was apparently a lot of fun - took the form of several special offerings and projects that added up to $427.25 so far.

For the past two Sundays members of church --42 in all -- have made the eight mile loop walk around County 101 and 41 north. Member Alma Danner pledged $5 to each person that finished.

Among the hikers were 69-year olds Thurman Voyd Isbell and Aunt "Bill" Henson, and twoyear olds Steve Danner and Chris Gulledge. Rev. A.D. Lynn, sporting an anti-sunburn deer hat, also joined the hikers.

"We've got some pretty sore people," Kelly said after the puffing was done. "But people made (additional) donations to us on the way."

One of the special collections for the home was a penny per pound offering in which everybody at church gave one cent for each pound they weigh. The weighty effort reportedly raised $54, although several members were accused of cheating by donating only $2...

After another offering was taken up, members agreed to chip in a nickel for every penny that was collected.

Special food offerings were also collected to send to the orphans.

By this Sunday the congregation hopes to have collected a total of $600 to send to the home.

Camellia Manor

Group plans home for terminally ill

by Bert Seaman

"Please, don't let it hurt."

"Please, don't let me die alone."

Alabaster physician Frank Abernathy hears these painful pleas from terminally ill patients over and over again - which is one of the reasons that he began thinking about establishing a facility where patients with fatal illnesses could come to

His idea -- conceived along the lines of a hospice -- would provide for a comfortable room, an easing of pain, someone to be there.

Missing, would be the machines designed to sustain life... a life without meaning for the terminal-

Abernathy has the site for the facility picked out. It's a wooded knoll situated on ten wooded acres in Maylene. He owns the land and is donating it for the facility, which he believes is desperately needed.

The name has been chosen -- Camellia Manor, after the state flower -- and an executive committee and board of directors is already functioning. In a letter that is being sent out to solicit funds, Advisory Board Chairman John Stahlhut explains that the facility will be a non-profit, non-sectarian home for the incurably ill.

He says that the people it will serve may be those who have used up government benefits or insurance benefits, or who can't qualify for either. "Patients will be asked to pay only according to their ability," Stahlhut stresses.

In the letter he observes that "life must have dignity to it; especially in its final moments."

"Have you ever seen a patient in a hospital intensive care unit?" Stahlhut asks. "The plumbing," he observes, "is the patient."

During his 18 years of practice, Dr. Abernathy has witnessed just about the entire spectrum of emotional reactions from dying patients and their

He compares the difference in the situations of two such terminally ill patients who were neighbors:

One chose to be at home. She died peacefully, in her own bed... a smile on her face and her family by her side. The other wanted to be in a hospital, where his family watched his suffering with anguish, Abernathy says.

Some of the terminally ill who would use the facility, the doctor points out, are those without anyone to care for them. There would be others, he says, whose family could not shoulder the weighty burden of caring for them.

Camellia Manor would have a staff specially trained in the care of the dying, and which would be at the facility fulltime.

"They would provide support for the dying and give instruction and assistance to family members who might be there," Abernathy explains.

His concept is to have a building of quality construction, relatively small, with approximately 12 suites -- depending on the amount of donations. The cost of such a facility is estimated to be about $750,000.

"I hope we can get the building underway by next summer," Abernathy says.

Alabaster Police Chief C.E. 'Bull' Carter is president of the corporation formed to administer the facility; Roger Grubbs is vice-president; Harry Harrison, secretary-treasurer.

Directors include businessmen, educators and medical personnel. They are: Earl Standifer, Ray Smith, Tilman Davis, B. Stanley Bruce, Earl Shannon, Jr., Becky Robinson, Don Lathem, Ken Weed, Terrell Guthrie, Rebecca Nail, Dr. Tom Nolen, Curtis Gwathney, Jimmy Fulton.

Pelham Optimists appreciate youth

Four Shelby County students had a first hand look at business, industry and city government Thursday.

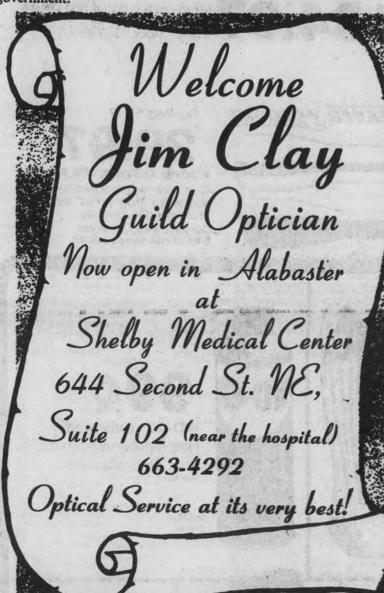

The students were chosen by the faculties of Pelham and Thompson High Schools to participate in Youth Appreciation Week.

According to Ray Hamilton, chairman of the event for the North Shelby Optimist Club, the students were chosen on the basis of "all-round" involvement at their schools.

Superintendent of Education Ellie Glasscox accompanied the group on the tour, which began at 8:15 a.m. at Pelham City Hall. The students were also shown through Alabaster City Hall and from there they went to Specification Rubber.

Shelby Medical Center hosted the group for lunch, then gave them a tour of the hospital. Stops during the afternoon included First American Bank and Marvins Building Material Center.

The event, Hamilton explained, gives students an idea of the workings of business -- banking, retail and manufacturing -- as well as city

The First Southern Family. Because now at 1st Southern, "CD" will stand for "Customer Designed" as well as "Certificate of Deposit." As a member of the First Southern Family, you're the one who decides not only how much you want to invest (from $1,000 on up), but also which combination of interest rate and term (in monthly steps from 32 days to 126 months) you want. The high interest you get is made even higher by daily compounding. You even decide how you want to receive your interest— monthly or quarterly, coming out to you in cash, to build more interest, transfering directly to your 1st Southern checking or money market account. So if you're already a member of the First Southern Family, drop in to open your new Customer-Designed CD Account. And if not, there's no better time to become one. 1st Southern may be Alabama's biggest savings and loan. But no matter how big we grow, we'll always treat vou like

Thanksgiving plans

Ministers Roy Griggs (left) and Terry Maynard are expecting a big turnout for this year's annual Community Thanksgiving service in the Alabaster area. Griggs' church, Siluria Baptist, will host the Nov. 23 service at which Maynard will preach. The Siluria Baptist choir will provide special music at the 7:30 service. (Photo by Bert Seaman)

Farmers invited to view erosion 'facelift'

A new farm facelift conservation program will be demonstrated Saturday, Nov. 19 at the Allen Bragg Farm near Huntsville. Interested Shelby County farmers are invited to attend.

Called Operation SOIL (Save Our Important Land), the program provides a system for controlling erosion problems farmers that will be installed at the Bragg Farm demonstration will reduce cropland erosion losses there from 24 tons per acre per year, to three tons per acre a year, according to Shelby County conservationist Lawrence Garrett.

The day long demonstration will include exhibits, music and other entertainment, and will begin at 8:30 a.m.

Drawing contest set for submarine insignia

Do you like to draw? According to Capt. William Diffley, executive director of USS Alabama Battleship Memorial Park, cash prizes and trips are being offered in the insignia design contest for the new Trident-class submarine, USS Alabama.

The contest is being conducted by the US Navy, in cooperation with the state Department of County high school, junior college and university students.

Cash prizes will be awarded to district finalists, and the winner and his or her parents will fly to Connecticut for the commissioning of the new submarine.

The winner will be decided by the crew members of the sub. Deadline for entries is January 15, 1984. For complete contest rules and more information contact you local Navy recruiters of-

Local bill will change zoning

Representative Sonny Moore would like to change the law on calling for zoning elections.

This week started the mandatory four weeks of legal advertising on a measure that would require at least a one-year interval between zoning elections in a beat.

As the law now stands, citizens of any beat of Shelby County can ask for a zoning election with only 25 names on a petition. If the election fails to confirm zoning, another election can be called after 30 days.

Moore's proposed bill would increase the time period between elections from 30 days to one year.

Beat 12 is the only beat in Shelby County to have zoning, and come under the county planning commission.

Several elections were held before a majority there voted in favor of coming under the county planning commission a few

This year, in Beat 13, after the first zoning election failed, residents petitioned for another one a few months later. The second election failed by two votes.

Moore said that he had received calls from people in the beat, asking him to change the law, and that is why he is proposing his

Pay hike 'greased'

The first thing the legislators did in their special session was to vote themselves a pay raise.

But none of the three men in the Shelby County delegation say they voted for it.

"I didn't vote for it, and neither did John Tanner," representative Sonny Moore of Sterrett told the Reporter. "We were sitting right next to each other when it came up. The position of the general fund budget is why I didn't vote for it -- it's in prora-

"These things are planned on a higher level," he said, adding, with a smile, "It was greased to go, and it went."

He predicts the governor will sign the bill without changes. Senator Frank Ellis, Jr. said he was also in the dark about the plan. "I didn't know it was coming till the House passed it," he told the Reporter. He said he did not vote for it, adding, "I think a raise to start next session might have been more suppor-table." The lawmakers gave themselves a $30 per day increase in their daily allowance, and they raised their monthly allowance by $300 per month.

This means they will get $95 per day every day they are in legislative session, and $700 per month year round.

If the legislature should meet only the 105 days prescribed by law, each lawmaker would draw $18,375 per year. But when the governor calls special sessions, the legislators will qualify for the new rate of $95 per day.

The raise passed was by voice vote, and no record was kept on how individual legislators voted.

Following Tanner's recent election to state house seat 40, Mayor Burk Dunaway and Pelham council members have been contacted by Nancy Bell, Beverly Hall, Peggy Meister, Karyl Rice, and Roy Jowers -- all of whom want Tanner's job.

Rice, an 11-year Pelham resident, is a former teacher active in community organizations. Jowers is a former member of the city council and is chairman of the Park Board.

To qualify for consideration, a candidate must have lived in Pelham at least 90 days, must be a registered voter, and must remain a resident of the city through his or her term of office.

According to Mayor Dunaway, the city council has had to appoint members only twice during the past 20 years to complete terms of office. Neither of those appointments proved to be a problem, and it is not expected that this selection will be any different.

Shelby County ranks at top in growth, income

by David F. Moore

When it comes to numbers, Shelby County stacks up quite favorably against the other counties in Alabama. This is especially true when it comes to population growth and in-

It is an often asserted claim that Shelby County is the fastest growing area in Alabama, the South and even the nation. Recently released figures by the Auburn University in Montgomery Center for Demographic and Cultural Research, neither support nor disprove the wilder of these three claims, but it definitely shows Shelby County way out in front in population growth among Alabama's 67 coun-

From 1978-1980 -- the 'boom' years -- the county's population jumped 74.3%, from 38,037 to 66,298. Neighboring St. Clair County ranked a distant second in growth during that period at 47.4%.

Even taking in the recession, Shelby County's growth from 1970 through July 1, 1983 nearly doubled at 97%. Comparing the present population of 74,900 to 1950's census figures of 30,362, the county's population rocketed a whopping 147%.

Shelby County's growth should continue into 1990, according to figures from the state's Center for Business and Economic Research. By then it will have surpassed Talladega County to become the 13th largest county with an estimated population of 90,000. AUM figures this continued growth at 35.8%. St. Clair will follow at 33.5% growth. In 1970 the 'average' Shelby County resident had 47.5 neighbors within a square mile radius.

After the ten-year boom neighbors had increased to an average of 82.9 per square mile. Where did these people live? In 1980 -- contrary to what many might think -- only 1% of the population lived on farms that generated at least $1,000/year in production sales. Only 35.4% lived in urban or town areas with populations in excess of 2,500. That leaves 63.6% of the people living on either non-producing farms -- or in the sprawl-

When it comes to income Shelby County is in the bucks.

The latest figures (1979) show the median family income at $20,514 -- the largest in Alabama. Madison County (Huntsville) boasts the second highest income at $19,350, Lowndes has the lowest at $9,766, and the state median is $16,353.

On the other end of that scale, Shelby County has the lowest percent of families living below the poverty level -- 12.4%. (This, AUM notes, is based on 1979 figures, such as $7,412 for a family of four.)

Residents who were 28.2 years old in 1980 were on the verge of going 'over the hill' -because that was the median age of Shelby County residents then.

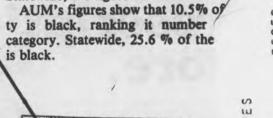

On both sides of that, 8% of the population was 65 years or older that year, and the crude birth rate (in 1982, as figured by number of births per 1,000) was 15.2.

Live and let live could be a theme in Shelby County, as it claims the lowest death rate in the state -- 6.3 per thousand.

This compares to 8.8 for the state and 9.7 for Jefferson County where most of the hospitals and nursing homes are located. Residents in Wilcox County (down Camden way) have it rough with a 12.4 per thousand annual death

Alabaster church plans new $6 million complex to meet 1990 needs

by Fred Guarino

Alabaster's Westwood Baptist Church has announced construction plans for what reportedly will be the largest church in Shelby County.

The ambitious 81,650 square feet, $6 million project will take ten years to complete and will be financed by contributions, according to pastor Dr. Charles S. Inman.

The facility will feature a prayer center with a library, administrative and counselor's space, an education building, and a worship sanctuary to seat 1,500 persons.

A distinctive, 100 foot tall cross will stand outside. The facility will also feature an entrance plaza, an exterior courtyard, covered pick-up, landscaped earth berm, and a retention pond.

The existing church will be used for redcreation and educational purposes.

"There is a tremendous growth projected for the area," Dr. Inman explained. "By 1990, 25,000 people will live within ten minutes of the church and we feel there is a need for that type metro

Can the church really raise the kind of money needed for such a goal? According to church member Aaron Sherer, in July of 1981 the congregation purchased the existing facility by raising $145,000 - in five weeks.

Construction on the new facilities is slated to begin by July 1984 with the first phase completed by October 1985. That phase will include a temporary auditorium seating 500 people, with classrooms for 600. The structure will be 28,290

Phase two will see the temporary auditorium become a fellowship hall with additional classes for 300 people. Phase three will be the addition of classrooms for a total of 1,200 worshippers. According to Inman, $5.2 million will be spent on construction alone, with up to $800,000 being spent on furnishings. How soon it will all be paid for "depends upon the generosity of the people," Inman smiled.

In addition to the facility, plans also call for a road to connect 7th Avenue to County 264 for greater access by the public.

Montevallo is Shelby County's 1983-84 Junior Miss.

Hardin was chosen from a field of 28 contestants in a two-night event (last Friday and Saturday) at Riverchase School.

First alternate is Jennifer Joiner of Columbiana. Second alternate is Melissa King of Pelham:

The new Junior Miss also won the academic achievement award, and Joiner won the poise and appearance competition.

Sharon Prince of Shelby won the creative and performing arts category, and Caroline Day of Montevallo won in youth fitness.

Each category winner received a $540 cash prize.

Johanna Ward of Helena was selected "Spirit of Junior Miss." Hardin is the daughter of Nolan and Marjorie Hardin of Montevallo. She attends Montevallo High School and plans to become an engineer.

She has a choice of various scholarships to Livingston University, Huntingdon College, University of Montevallo, or Judson or Troy State.

Nursing home workers claim dismissal unfair

Two women who had worked as nurses' aides at Briarcliff Nursing Home claim their dismissal was unfair.

Last week, Kay Gibson and Linda Laughter marched up and down in front of the Alabaster facility carrying signs to protest the action of administrators.

Gibson said she had been off due to family problems and when she called in to check on her schedule, was told that she was no longer needed.

She was told she mistreated a patient, Laughter explained. But she said she had only been shouting at one of the residents because the woman was hard of hearing.

Nursing Home Administrator Mary Alice Edmonds said Gibson was terminated because she had failed to call in and could not be reached when she was needed for duty.

All she would say about Laughter was the fact she would not come in and talk to her supervisor about a problem.

Gibson's employment was terminated two months ago. Laughter was dismissed last week.

Jail stymies corporation

With its major stockholder jailed on cocaine charges, one recently formed Shelby County corporation has been put on hold.

Jack Hoback, 47, who controls 9.500 shares of Filing Methods, Inc., remains in an Arkansas jail in lieu of $500,000 bond. He was arrested October 14 on charges of trafficking cocaine.

Alabaster attorney John Medaris is listed in probate records as holding the remaining 500 shares of Filing Methods

"The whole status of the corporation depends on what hap-pens to Jack Hoback," Medaris said. "I think his company is definitely on hold for right now."

The incorporation papers were certified October 3. Medaris said there hadn't been enough time between the formation of the company and Hoback's arrest for the business to become fully operational.

Medaris, who is also Hoback's attorney of record, said he does not have a license to practice law in Arkansas, and is not representing Hoback in the drug charges there.

Filing Methods has no number listed with the telephone company. The corporation's address is listed as the address of Medaris' law practice.

Helena passes zoning for new apartments

The Helena Council Monday night approved a zoning change to clear the way for ah apartment development on County 17.

Landowner Betty Cox and Houston South developers Billy Hill and David Nichols (see story on new corporations), sought the zoning change from R-1 to R-2.

The change will allow the construction of the Breckenridge Apartments, which are expected to be built in several stages on the eight acre site near Acton

We plan to build "something you can be proud of," said Hill, who is also the district attorney. He told the council that Breckenridge would complement the city.

Three councilmen voted for the rezoing. Jim Kwater abstained, raising the question of who are the immediate neighbors to the site, since it is surrounded by more of Cox's land.

Cox's land, Kwater pointed out, borders Fox Haven subdivision and he said landowners there had not been notified of the Pre-empt problems

Sunday night, like many other Shelby County television viewers, I was concerned with the ever serious issue of pre-emption. In my case -- and perhaps others -- there were actually two issues at stake that dealt with pre-emption.

The first one was nuclear war. Whatever else one thought of the story -- the cinematography, propaganda, 'psychological' fallout, and media hype -- 'The Day After' was food for thought. Very unpleasant thought, too, because what was depicted could actually happen.

Just as Shelby County has caught the population overflow, the dash from Birmingham to the suburbs, so will it catch the fallout if either the US or USSR pre-empts -- decides to push the button first. And no, it wouldn't matter worth a hill of radioactive beans which country went first. As sure as you're reading this newspaper, the other side would fire back.

With Shelby County reduced to fields, hills and streams full of radiation, somehow some of the charm of living here would disappear. In fact, a good argument could be made for hoping some Russian technician had one shot of vodka too many while setting Birmingham's target coordinates, and the missile missed, ending up in Alabaster or Columbiana.

In all seriousness, nuclear war would be a story with no happy ending.

It is ironically unfortunate that -- as Secretary of State George Schultz noted about nuclear deterrants -- the very policy that prevents an atomic holocaust also makes one possible. And what will we do when everbody in the Mid-East gets a few nuclear warheads? Maybe I shouldn't ask...

The US can't, of course, simply pull the plug on its nuclear arsenal. Nor can we afford -- in more ways than one -- to keep building it up. What do we do?

I for one do not pretend to have a solution. If I did, I would have Schultz's job. Maybe Reagan's.

Still, the questions haunts: what do we do if someone pre-empts? It is, I fear, a quandary from which there is no

As I mentioned, there were two cases of pre-emption that troubled me Sunday night. The other was when Channel 6 pre-empted the network's discussion with Carl Sagan, Henry Kissinger, Robert McNamara, William F. Buckley, Jr., et al -- just so we could hear some dumb questions asked to Mr. and Mrs. Typical Household.

The only thing comforting about this act of pre-empting, was that I could do something about it. The television has a button I can push.

Eighteen don't have to die

Eighteen people will die in automobile accidents this Thanksgiving Holiday, according to estimates by the Alabama Department of Public Safety.

Apart from encouraging the public to drive defensively and to observe the speed limit, Alabama State Troopers will be doing more this year to prevent these deaths from happen-

The holiday officially covers the 102 hours beginning at 6 p.m. Wedensday, November 23, and closing at midnight Sunday, November 27.

This year the troopers will be using a $497,568 federal grant to enforce the 55 mile-per-hour speed limit.

The grant will be used between November 10 and July 4 to pay overtime salaries and subsistence funds to off duty troopers who have been called in to beef-up patrolling the highways.

According to state public safety director Col. Bryon Prescott, Alabama has witnessed a dramatic increase in the number of people exceeding the speed

He says that almost 91 percent of the drivers exceed 55 miles-per-hour and 28 percent of those drive in excess of 65 miles-per-hour.

"While our first concern is the safety of Alabama motorist, we must effect a decrease in the number of motorist exceeding the speed limit to continue receiving federal highway funds," Prescott said.

Letters to the editor Abernathy finds support

I plan to give a donation to this worthy cause and out of necessity realize just what a blessing we all it will have to be a small donation but let me tell you just as a Christmas gift is supposed to be... it is from the heart.

Right now I am adding this Camellia Manor to my personal prayer list and will ask God to give His guidance to this project and Dr. Abernathy, as well as each and everyone connected with the project.

Knowing that a little bit here and there makes a big stack it is hoped the entire community will

We need more doctors like Frank Abernathy.

How many men do you know who quit their jobs, closed in carports, etc. for more room and staved home to take care of their terminally ill parents? Some are right around us all.

I really appreciated the way our county officials went to work the first day on their new jobs. We the people elected them to the office to do a good job, not to worry about their salary.

Mr. Joe Brindley commended Butch Ellis, Sonny Moore, John Tanner on their jobs. But listen to this! Maybe nobody knows what they did the first day. They voted themselves approximately $300 a month raise before they did anything else. I'm not saying these three men did it all, but they helped do it.

My wife and I live on $305.00 a month. They knew what the job paid before they ran for this office. Why didn't they do what they were sent to do, instead of wanting more money, before they did any work? Gov. George Wallace has not signed the papers yet and I hope he has enough sense not to do it.

Jim King thanked for service

Letter to the Editor:

Last week's Shelby County Board of Education action in the appointment of school trustees prompts this letter. We understand that the parents and teachers of Pelham High School voted overwhelmingly for Jim King to serve as Trustee, but our school board chose to ignore the wishes of the people.

The purpose of this letter, however, is not to question the board members' motives. It is to express during this Thanksgiving season public appreciation to Jim King and his family for the many years of tireless and thankless work he has done for the Shelby County Public Schools.

Only Jim and his family have full knowledge of the amount of time he has devoted to working for better education for Shelby County children, but those of us who have been involved in some of his many endeavors are awed by his energy and generosity.

Our county is fortunate to have such a capable native son who seems to express his appreciation for his blessings by giving so much of his time, talents and money to serve his community, help improve education for Shelby County students and, point the way for the political process and governmental bodies to be the servants -- not the masters - of the people.

For this and much more we want to thank Jim King and his family. These two residents of Shelby County appreciate you!

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

I've seen folks sell a lot of things in my day. A lot of things. There was Otis Sparks, working for Jim White on Main fifty years ago, pumping gas for twenty cents a gallon. And half a dozen places on Main today selling gas for around a buck and a quarter a gallon.

There was Mrs. Emma Blackerby, in the old courthouse on the south end of Main, peddling three vegetables and a choice of chicken or steak and ice tea or coffee for twenty-five cents a plate.

There was W. W. Carter, in his meat market halfway between the new courthouse and the old courthouse, offering good round steak for twenty cents a pound. And Max Lefkovits, across the street, selling shoes for three dollars

There was Charlie Niven when the democrats were in the Whitehouse and Frank Baker when the republicans were there, peddling stamps for three cents each and postal cards for a copper, in the old post office on the south end of Main.

W. L. Farley. fixing medicine in the back of the Drug Store for anywhere from a quarter to seventy-five cents a bottle, and Neal Stinson and Wesley Duran selling ice cream for a nickel

Dr. Joel Chandler, in his buggy and later in his coupe with his dog in the back seat, making housecalls for two bucks each.

Perry McGhee selling tickets to see William S. Hart in a shoot-'em-up and The Perils of Pauline afterward, for fifteen cents at his picture show across the street from Jones' auto

But today at Frank and Ralph McEwen's Coosa Valley Milling Company in Wilsonville, Glenda Bird saw something that tickled her funny-bone. They had a dozen cockleburs in a jar and a sign that read: "Porcupine eggs for sale--three for a quarter."

Many look forward to this feastful day which marks the beginning of the ever eventful 'holiday season'.

By this I mean the mad Christmas rush... It begins the morning after Nov. 24th, when you wake up and realize that Christmas is only 31 days away and you haven't bought the first gift from your Christmas list -- as a matter of fact, you haven't even made a list yet. You pull yourself out of the bed and head for the kitchen for the 'go-juice' (otherwise known as coffee), grab a pencil and a piece of paper, and the race is on...

Mom, dad, grandparents, and the list goes on. Now the fun part begins... what do you buy these people who have absolutely everything?

In our family we prepare a 'family Christmas list' -- that is we get together and everyone makes a list of items they would like to have 'Santa' bring them for Christmas. Then a member of the family (you got it, usually me) compiles the list and mails each family member

Our family has found this idea to work rather nicely.

There are, however, some problems with the system... For example, you could end up with two Slim Whitman albums, five pairs of kelly green kneesocks, three red polka-dotted neckties, which I can imagine would be no problem to some people, but really... just how many times do you have an occasion for the neckties? Communication might solve this pro-

Last weekend, while our family was together we began the task of the second annual 'Operation Fannie Claus' list, and although the afternoon began with several comments like, 'Gee, I just can't think of anything', everyone managed to come up with more than enough gift ideas. My 12-year old nephew will be the least hardest to buy for this year, since he contributed three pages worth of gift ideas to buy for him...

Can't close without congratulating the Montevallo Bulldogs on their season this year. Some will no doubt say that they lost, so why do they deserve the praise?

In the words of a high school teacher of mine at MHS, 'Losers never win, and winners never quit'. If you weren't at the ball game last Friday night take my word for it... the Bulldogs NEVER quit!

We feel sort of like the mosquito at a nudist camp... there are so many targets this week we don't know where to begin.

By the time you read this, Gov. Wallace will have taken some action on the controversial legislative pay raise. He has three alternatives -reject the raise, approve it, or recommend a raise of a lesser amount. Whatever his decision, the legislators have taken a fearful beating for the manner in which they voted themselves the huge increase. They were no doubt betting that by the time another election rolls around in three years, the voters would not remember anything about the pay raise.

The Alabama Ethics Commission can't seem to make up its mind on the propriety of Lt. Gov. Bill Baxley serving as legal counsel for the Alabama Education Association in a highly politicized law suit. The Ethics Commission members took yet another look at the matter last week, then decided to put it off for another month. Comes to mind an old truth --- if you have to ask yourself whether you should or should not do something, then you best not do

All sorts of trivia has come from the newly elected Legislature. For the first time in memory, we have legislative brothers --- Rep. James Buskey of Mobile, an incumbent, has been joined by his brother, Rep. John Buskey of Montgomery. Rep. Phil Poole of Moundville, who at 24 was the youngest of the lawmakers had to give up that title last week when Rep. Ralph Burke of Fort Payne was sworn in. Rep. Burke, a school teacher, is only

And how about Montgomery County's delegation? It is made up of four Republicans, all white, and three Democrats, all black. And finally in the trivia department, educators continue as the leading profession in the House and Senate -- 28 of the lawmakers are educators. Jim Folsom Jr. of the Public Service Commission has come as close as he can to announcing that he will run for the U.S. Senate in 1986, seeking the seat now held by Sen. Jeremiah Denton. In a recent interview Folsom said he had lived in the Governor's Mansion on two separate occasions and the thought of living there a third time didn't excite him. He added that living in Washington did appeal to him...

Officals of the Sugar Bowl are soon to discover that the old Auburn joke is a lie. The joke was that when an Auburn fan went to a bowl game he would take a $10 bill and a shirt, and not change either of them. The demand for tickets and hotel accommodations for the Sugar Bowl from Tiger fans in unprecedented.

Calera Elementary School was first in natural gas savings. Their check from the board amounted to $2,422.54 -- or half of the nearly $5,000 which was saved over its $27,700 utility budget.

Mistakes take Bulldogs out of state playoffs

by Mark C. Jones

The 1983 football season came to a frustrating and disappointing end for the Montevallo Bulldogs last Friday night: The Handley Tigers defeated the Region 4 champs 34-14.

It has been said time and again that when two championship caliber teams meet in a showdown, the team that is on the receiving end of the breaks will come out on top. Handley had its share, and then some.

Turnovers and miscues killed the 'Dogs.

Montevallo took the opening kickoff and immediately put its offensive machine in high gear from its own 25. Six plays later - with the aid of a five yard penalty -- the 'Dogs had bulled down to the Tiger 15.

Five snaps later Jeff Chism rocketed over the top for six points. Paul Bush kicked the extra point and it was Montevallo 7-0.

Running hard

Off and running, Montevallo's Taylor Blackwell (10) pulls a surprise on Handley's Paul Foster (64 in background) for a big Bulldog gain. Unfortunately, such was not to be the case enough of the time for the 'Dogs to continue playoff action. (Photo by Jerome Bannister)

Things looked bright.

As it turned out Montevallo scored first and last, but Handley filled the gap with enough points to breeze into the semi-finals of the state playoffs.

The first of Montevallo's four most costly mistakes came after it forced Handley to punt away its first possession, and the 'Dogs set up business at their own 39. A personal foul against the Tigers moved MHS inside Handley territory to

With the Bulldogs threatening again, anxiously pacing Handley Coach Bill Ragle called from the sidelines, "Make something happen!" And the Tigers did. Jeff Chism lost the handle on a Taylor Blackwell pitch-out and the Tigers recovered at the Handley 44.

Marching 56 yards in 11 plays, Handley scored on a 10-yard reverse by Leslie Hines that caught the Bulldogs by surprise. William Morris kicked the extra point and the game was tied with 20 seconds left in the quarter.

All too easily the Tigers stopped Montevallo on it next two possessions, then ended up with the football at their own 20 with 5:35 left in the half. From there the Tigers unleashed an offense that at times looked -- and was -- unstoppable.

After a first down at the Tiger 30, Handley QB Dennis Baker pitched out at the last possible moment to Stacey Brooks, who in turn raced to the Montevallo 49.

Enter runningback Jackie Tucker with his 4.5 speed in the forty yard dash. That's about what his speed was on the following 49-yard sprint that included four broken tackles and a touchdown. The PAT wandered wide, but Handley lead 13-7 with 3:53 to go in the half.

Racing against the clock the Bulldogs regained their offensive composure and pounded their way to the Tiger 21. Blackwell dashed to the Handley 11 with 20 seconds to go. A handoff to Chism pushed to the five.

Out of timeouts and scrambling for position Blackwell tossed a desparation pass into the endzone with two seconds left. The ball found no receiver and the half ended.

Montevallo's second costly mistake came when the Bulldogs forced Handley to punt away its first possession of the second half. However, an illegal Bulldog block on the punt returned the ball, new life, and first down to the Tigers at Montevallo's Six plays later, on fourth and one from the Bulldog seven, Handley's Tucker got the one -plus six more for the touchdown. At 5:52 in the third period, the PAT made it 20-7.

The Bulldogs were in trouble - and mistake number three wouldn't help at all.

After swapping punts, at 2:05 in the third quarter, Tiger Leslie Hines pounced on a Montevallo fumble at the Handley 28. The tur-Continued on next page

Finding the crowd

Bulldog power runner Keith Moore (99) finds the football field a little too crowded with Handley defenders to make much ground for his Montevallo teammates. Among those bringing him down are Handley's Rodney Heflin (34), Eric Phillips (19) and Paul Foster (64). (Photo by

Omens or not ... 'We just messed up'

Handley Tigers put stop to Montevallo title hopes

by Fred Guarino

"All good things must come to an end" -- so go the words of the old saying.

Unfortunately for Montevallo, that axiom applied to dreams for a first 2A state football title, and an unprecedented 11-game winning season.

The Area 7, Region 4 champion Bulldogs ran headlong into Handley last Friday night and came out on the short end of a 34-14 contest.

But the end did not arrive without its warnings. Like the rain clouds over Montevallo at game time, they appeared in the form of predictions, omens and circumstances.

The first warning came from Bulldog mentor Richard Gilliam. After the 'Dogs defeated Hokes Bluff two weeks ago, he immediately told his sqaud that Handley would be as tough as 3A Thompson -- the only team to defeat Montevallo in regular good, strong and powerful," Freeman Rutledge confided prior to the Handley confrontation.

Gilliam continued to warn his team all week in preparation for last Friday's battle.

"He said they are good and that it will come down to who makes the most mistakes," big tackle Lonnie Layton said.

"We must execute our game plan, come out hitting hard, persue and stay with them. Their linebackers are pretty mean and we must keep them out just to run," Jeff Chism recounted what Gilliam had said.

The first omen?... For the past eight years, the winner of Handley's area has always been in the finals of state play.

The second omen?... Montevallo had never won 11 games in a single season, and had never passed quarter-final com-

Then there was the prediction of a Roanoke radio announcer... "They will run you to death with the wishbone and will pass if necessary," Adam Slay said. "He's been telling us they are He also predicted that the Bulldogs would have to look out for fullback James Hamby and halfbacks Jackie Tucker and Stacey Brooks. How true it all proved to be!

Handley did out rush the Bulldogs and did win enough of the battle in the trenches to break Hamby, Tucker and Brooks free for the biggest runs of the night.

There was also the prediction of associate sports writer Mark Jones. "The final score will be 28-14 Handley," he said, missing by just six points.

What of the circumstances? Montevallo had the home field edge, they had defeated Hokes Bluff 42-13 on the road -- what could possibly go wrong?

For starters, Barry Worthy could not take his injured big toe out of a wooden shoe until last Thursday -- the day before the big game.

Dwayne Jackson's hairline ankle fracture was unchanged. He even said moments before kickoff that he would have to ignore pain to play. Too, Lonnie Layton and Ricky Dobson had both been sick and both had missed some practice.

More. Their was another discipline problem in the squad (but not involving Andy or Jeff Chism). An unamed player broke curfew. He was not in bed for eight hours on each of the two days preceeding the contest.

Yet another circumstance contributing to the loss was the fact that Montevallo had not been forced to play catch-up ball since the Thompson game - which hadn't panned out very well. Then agasint . Handley, Montevallo found itself trailing 13-7 at the half - catch-up football time.

So much for warnings...

terference penalty against Handley at the end of the first

At that point Montevallo trailed, but threatened at the Tiger five yard line to tie things up. A pass was thrown into the endzone. A Handley player appeared to be all over a Bulldog receiver ... No flag.

Terry Rutlege screamed. Jeff Chism showed his disgust. Still no flag, and still no tie game... Or was it when the score was 20-7 late in the third quarter, and Montevallo was moving to make a comeback?

With the ball deep in Handley territory, quarterback Taylor Blackwell tried to pitch out. The ball landed where no Bulldog stood. For a moment the state championship seemed to lay unclaimed on the ground until a Handley defender recovered.

Many fans felt that these things were the killing blows. The 'Dogs don't agree.

Gilliam said that the death toll could have come when Montevallo stopped Handley twice in their first drive of the second half, only to have two penalties keep the drive alive for a score. Montevallo was called for pass interference and a blocking below the waist.

"I don't know," a sad Dobson said. "The penalties killed us and some missed assignments that shouldn't have been done..."

"We just messed up is all I can say," said Ricky Moore.

Even quarterback Blackwell seemed a loss for words. He only shrugged his shoulders at the question and meekly agreed with Gilliam's point of view.

But for all the disappointment, Montevallo has much to be proud

They proved Gilliam right about their greatness this season, by winning area and regional

They fought a good fight, only being out rushed by the potent Handley Tigers 245 to 232 yards.

They did carry the battle into the trenches to free Jeff Chism for 114 yards on the night -- and 1,368 yards on the year.

So Montevallo concluded its 1983 season with an impressive 10-2 record.

There are also other reasons to be proud.

From a squad of 40 players, 30 experienced Bulldogs will return .. for another season.

Stars to look out for will include mighty mite runner An-:tonio Devould, big runner Anthony Prentice, fullbacks Sean Roberts and Quinton Chism, back-up quarterback Ricky Gaddis, wingback Andy Chism and big tackle Lonnie Layton.

However, the returnees will have some big shoes to fill.

Leaving the squad as Montevallo High School graduates will be Terry Rutledge, starting QB Taylor Blackwell, Jeff Chism, Rodney Tolbert, Dwayne Jackson, Jeff Gentry, Barry Worthy, Kevin Staffney, Jim Wade, Rick Dobson and Keith Moore.

Frustration

Last Friday's football action against Handley proved frustrating and hard to figure for Keith Moore (99) and Anthony Prentice (42). The 'Dogs had been able to dominate folks all year but the Tigers were a different story. (Photo by Fred Guarino)

But what was the turning point? Where did it all go sour?

Was it an uncalled pass in-Season dies hard

Football season died hard in Montevallo this year and much too soon for stoic Bary Worthy (47) and a teary-eyed Clyde Sailes (63). It came in the second round of state playoff action against

Hoopers take scene

With the undoing of the Montevallo Bulldogs last Friday night, high school football is officially over in Shelby County.

Enter basketball as the sport of the day.

The Reporter continues its look at county basketball teams this week with Chelsea, Vincent, Briarwood, Shelby Academy, and Calera.

(Pelham's schedule and roster will be run as soon as it's made available, to conclude these initial reports.)

CHELSEA

Coached by Mike Sims, Chelsea will go into action with a nine-man squad which will feature only three seniors and no freshmen. The remainder of the squad will include two juniors and a hustling bunch of sophomores.

Seniors are forward Jason Wiggins, guard Scottie Isbell, and forward Mike Gragg.

Juniors are guard Mike Fant, and center David Leher.

Sophomores are Steve Shelton and Stephen Guthrie in the forward position, Scott Vinsant at guard, and Keith Welch at center.

BRIARWOOD

Under the leadership of Steve Franklin, Briarwood will see action with 12 players, including only three seniors and no freshmen.

Lion seniors are David Jernigan at guard, Kenneth Preston at post, and Bobby Welch at wing.

Juniors are forward Steve Blake, post guard Craig Collier, wing forward Bob Farris, post John Kirkpatrick, wing Al Saunders, post Milton Seabolt, and post Mich Wilcutt.

Sophomores are Jimmy Collier at post guard and Victor Nichols at Wing.

Coached by Mark Lovett the Calera Eagles will also feature only three seniors and no freshmen.

Seniors are Chris Haynes at guard, Tony Piscitilli at guard, and Dewayne Harris at center.

Juniors are Scott McLendon at guard, Keith Dowdell at guard, Kenny Marsh at forward, and Kenny Wilson at forward.

Sophomores are Willie Taylor at forward, Mark

Jones at forward and Greg Haynes at center.

SHELBY ACADEMY

Under the direction of Dewayne Kervin, the Raiders of Shelby Academy will see action with three seniors, three juniors, three sophomores and no freshmen.

Seniors include Jim Lee at center, Doug Barrett at forward, and Lee Pickett at forward.

Juniors are Dennis Attaway at center forward, Robert Thomas at guard, and Allen Latimer at forward.

Sophomores are Doug Thomas at guard, Vince Pickett at guard forward, and Gordon Dawons at guard.

VINCENT

The Yellow Jackets of Vincent High School will again go into action under the leadership of coach Richard Crumpton.

The team will feature four seniors, five juniors and one sophomore.

Seniors are Fric Posev at guard Eddie Peynolds

Seniors are Eric Posey at guard, Eddie Reynolds at guard, Pat Kelley at guard, and Bennie Joe Keller at center.

Juniors are Bruce Hamilton at forward, Cedric Riggins at guard, Willie Woodall at forward, Craig Fair at center, and Tony Hamilton at forward.

The lone sophomore is Hugh Kidd at forward.

Mistakes kill Montevallo

keep the game within reach.

The Bulldog defense held for a while but Handley came knocking again with a drive that began at the Tiger 46. Tucker applied the pressure with rushes deeper and deeper into Montevallo

James Hamby finished off the drive -- and the Bulldogs -- with a 12-yard blast up the middle for Handley's fourth touchdown of the night with 5:21 left in the game. Morris' kick made it 27-7, and the game slipped away.

With time quickly running out on any remaining state championship hopes, the Bulldogs had to go to the air. But Handley was ready, and forced mistake number four.

With 5:07 left in the game William Morris intercepted a Blackwell pass at the Montevallo 17 and returned it all the way to the Bulldog one.

Tucker leaped over from there for the touchdown and it was celebration time for the Tigers -- and crying time for Montevallo. Morris added Handley's final point of the night making it 34-7.

The Bulldogs displayed the character and class that got them to the playoffs in the first place, by marching 53 yards for the night's final touchdown. Chism, Taylor, Moore and the offensive line that carried the Bulldogs to victory ten times this year did it once more -- for pride's sake.

With just ten seconds left in the season Chism took it in for the touchdown from one yard out. Bush kicked and the game, the year, and the dream went to Handley, 34-14.

The loss leaves Montevallo with a 10-2 mark for 1983, and area and region championships for the trophy case.

For Handley, now 11-1, the beat goes on. The Tigers host undefeated Cottonwood (12-0) Friday in Roanoke.

By beating Montevallo, Handley not only keeps intact its record, but also that of a Region 4 team never beating a Region 3 team in the state playoffs.

Track title is first for Vincent varsity boys

by Fred Guarino

Feb. 20 Area Region Tourn.

Step back Vincent girl track stars... this time its the boys who have claimed the limelight.

For the first time ever, the Vincent boys' varsity track team has won a state 1A-2A cross country title.

Not only that, but they added the three-mile win in Birmingham to victories at three invitational meets, as well as the Shelby County cross country championship.

The big win at the Highland Avenue Charlie Boswell Golf Course was based on the finishing position of each school's top five runners.

Too, all runners finishing in the top 15 spots were considred all-staters.

Securing the win over St. Paul's for the Yellow Jackets were certified all-staters, Earl Lawson who finished third, Jerome Mann who finished fourth, Thomas Turner who finished seventh, Craig Fair who finished 11th, and Philip Bruno who came in 12th.

Also against the field of 130 competitors, Cecil Keller ended up 28th, Donald O'Neal came in 69th and Elgie Johnson finished

Why are the Vincent boys winning now after so many past teams failed?

"It was our deterimination and wanting to win," said sophomore Lawson. "When the coach (Jim Barnes) told us to run so many laps, we did."

"This year we ran as a team instead of as individuals, which hurt us in the past," he continued. "We had pride for ourselves and to show those big schools that we can win and will be winning from now on."

"Of all the teams I've ever coached, I am more proud of this one because of its attitude toward working and winning," Coach Barnes was quick to say.

He was also quick to point out that the recently won state title was the first in any sport for Vincent's varsity boys.

So attitude and teamwork was the key. But... what does the victory mean for boys track at Vincent from now on?

"The win made you feel like you were number one, which you are," said Bruno, a junior. "We've been trying so many years for this title."

"I think it means we will be able to go on and establish ourselves in indoor competition," said senior Turner. "Last year we came close. This year our fellow runners enjoyed it so much, we'll have a big chance."

the rest of my life," senior Keller also noted.

Craig Fair, a junior, saw it this way: "I think we proved that a whole lot of people can depend on us. At first we didn't think the school was behind us. Then, when the big meets came, they began to wish us good luck. I want Shelby County to be recognized, even the small parts."

"It meant we won the respect of the big schools because people didn't think we had enough boys good enough to run and win," said junior O'Neal.

Juniors Mann and Johnson felt the win helped them to prove they could deliver on a promise to bring home trophies.

Can the Vincent varsity boys really win in indoor track now that they've proven themselves outside?

According to Coach Barnes, if a sprinter can step forward, and if the team will compete in every event -- it can.

In addition to the efforts of Vincent High School, Montevallo also managed to place two runners in the all-state cross country category, Lonnie and Lee Fulton.

In the 3A division, Pelham's Bryant Henderson and Steve McDonough finished high enough for all-state honors as Chelsea's Conkle is more than ready -chomping at bit

by Fred Guarino Richard Conkle is chomping at the bit to resume his position as head football coach at Chelsea High School.

Conkle led the Hornets to undefeated seasons in 1A football during 1973 and 1974. The program stumbled after that when Chelsea moved up to 2A classification. Its next best year came in 1976 with a 6-4 effort.

After 1979, Conkle stepped down under what was reported as 'pressure' from a group of Chelsea football supporters.

During the next four seasons, other coaches failed to produce better records and the latest, Gene Hulsey, has now resigned. The job was then given back to Conkle Tuesday, November 15.

Conkle, donning his old title again, told the Reporter that he is looking forward to seeing football action once more.

"I wouldn't have taken the job if I hadn't been looking forward to it, or if I didn't have something to offer," he said.

As to his earlier criticism, Conkle said, "People who were dissatisfied with my coaching were new in the area. I was the only coach Chelsea ever had up until that time, and they had nothing to compare me to." Conkle said he meant no criticism of his successors, but he felt he was running a good football program at the time he stepped down.

"I think we've got a young team and if we change their attitude and the seniors give us leadership, I think we'll prove contenders," he said of the Hornets' future.

The renewed coach said that the new statewide classification system going into effect next year will remove such powerhouse teams as Jemison, Montevallo, B. B. Comer and West Blocton from the Chelsea schedule.

"These is a difference here when you have to play big teams like that week in and week out, and we can pick up smaller schools," he said. "It's just good logic. I think we can be more competitive."

Chelsea will now be playing such teams as Marion Institute, Marbury, Brighton, Moody, Winterboro and St. Clair County in the place of the Montevallos and Jemisons. But the team will continue to face old rivals Calera, Billingsley and Vincent.

Since '79 Conkle has remained at Chelsea in a teaching capacity, and has also coached the girls basketball team.

According to one member, the project was so successful that the church is challenging other congregations to another project for the orphanage.

Going into the last week of its drive to collect $600 for the facility in Eldridge, the 58 members of the church had collected and raised $427 (see story in last week's Reporter).

Sunday, November 20, when the offering was counted, however, the figure had jumped to $701, according to member Libby Kelly. Furthermore, $400 in food was collected.

Kelly said 25 members of the church drove that afternoon to Eldridge to deliver the offerings.

"They (the 22 orphans aged 5-22) were just tickled to death," Kelly reported.

While the members were there, Rev. A.D. Lynn noticed that the rooms were badly underfurnished. He suggested that his congregation challange other Free Will churches in the association to each furnish

IN LOVING MEMORY OF DRUCILLA HARRIS HALE

Thank Mother on thatnight you left me, it was very quiet, but you helped me finish my Jacky Boy Quilt. And then

I will keep children in my But in your prayers I heard you say, 'Lord take care of my child.' I never used that quilt for it burned In 1971 and left less joy in my heart these past years. So many things i have learned, but we will meet again where around God's throne Daughter, Margaret Lacey

She smiled!

Pooling their collective talent with babies, Joyce and Robert Thomas and daughter Bethany manage to get a smile from the newest family member, Angela Marie. Even though Johnny Thomas doesn't join the family effort here, he's just as enthusiastic as the rest of the family about the adoption which took place six months ago.

Group 'talks up' adoption

by Bert Seaman

Word of mouth can do a whole lot to promote the cause of adoption.

At last week's meeting of the AFOA -- Alabama Friends of Adoption -- Sue Howe reminded the group to "talk it up when you're with other folks."

Sue follows her own advice, and has plenty to talk up when it comes to adoption. She and her husband Steve, who live in Wilsonville, had two children of their own when they adopted a four-year old Korean child three years ago.

This Thanksgiving will be especially meaningful for the Howes and their adopted daughter Mandy, now seven, who will become a naturalized

American citizen this week.

Besides being the week of Thanksgiving,
November 20-26 is is also National Adoption Week.

Although the state Department of Pensions and Security placed 251 children with adopted familes statewide this year, the demand for infants far exceeds the number available for adoption.

Clara Roberts, a DPS social worker in Shelby County, reported that six children were placed in adoptive homes here last year. However, the waiting list of prospective parents still contains about 25 names, Roberts said.

"Most people want a healthy, white infant," Roberts said. But she noted that there are sibling goups and children with special needs who also need homes.

In Alabama last year, 117 special needs children and thirty sibling groups were placed.

There is no charge to adopt through DPS. But even if a family meets all the state requirements for adoption, there is often a long -- and Continued on page X-2

Korean angel joins family in Pelham

by Bert Seaman

The transformation of an 'angel' began six months ago in the Atlanta airport. That's when a Korean baby named Kim Hea Im became Angela Marie Thomas -- Angel for short.

The arrival of the four-month old baby was the realization of a dream by Joyce and Robert Thomas -- the dream of adding a third child to their family.

The dream was made possible by adoption.

As soon as the Chandalar couple and their two children had each had a chance to hold their 'new' baby, Joyce Thomas wiped away her tears of happiness and put on the outfit she'd brought along for Angel.

"She was as clean as could be, but I wanted to dress her like an American baby," Mrs. Thomas explained.

Five years ago, when the Thomases first decided to adopt a child, they went through the Department of Pensions and Security -- first in Indiana where they were living at the time, then here in Shelby County.

After applying, they waited, and waited, but their dream was never fulfilled. Healthy Causasian babies just aren't readily available to a family with two children.

Then they heard about an adoption agency called Childrens' Services International, and filed an application with it.

Seven months later, the Thomases welcomed Angel into their home.

Their only regret is that it didn't happen sooner. "I wish we could have gotten her five years ago when our children were younger," Mrs. Thomas remarked. Their daughter Bethany is 19, their son Johnny, 16.

Along with their parents, both of the Thomas children dote on the new baby.

"The kids are always carrying her around," Mrs. Thomas said, adding that they also help out with Angel's care.

"It was funny the other day when Bethany was giving the baby a bath," Mrs. Thomas related, "she couldn't figure out how to get the shampoo out of her hair."

She explained with a laugh that her son intervened with his male resourcefulness, and carefully turned the baby upside down to obtain the desired result.

the desired result.

Whenever they take Angel anywhere, the Thomases report her to be an instant attention

"Everyone comes up to us and asks about her," Mrs. Thomas said, "and they usually want to hold her too."

Looking at her dark haired, brown eyed husband, Mrs. Thomas smiled as she told of one occasion in a restaurant when a man declared he knew Robert was the father -- because he could see the baby resembled him.

There may not be any blood ties between father and daughter, but anyone watching Thomas play with the baby could hardly miss the pride and affection he displays toward her.

"He thinks she's the greatest thing there is," Mrs. Thomas exclaimed.

"We all do."

Since Angel was the child of an unwed mother, there was little prospect of a bright future for her had she stayed in Korea.

Born Jan. 9 at Angel Maternity Home in Seoul, the baby was in a foster home before coming to this country.

"I want everyone to have one of these precious children," said Mrs. Thomas, adding that she and her husband are considering adopting another Korean child.

Thundering locomotive

If you're into trains, no one will have to twist your arm into taking the round trip excursion ride from Shelby County to Childersburg onboard No. 750. But you certainly don't have to be an avid train buff to catch the excitement of yesteryear's thundering locomotives. The trip is expected to be fun for all ages.

All aboard for trip on No. 750

All aboard... That famous 31 road crossing in Calera. conductor's cry will be heard once again in Shelby County on Saturday, December 10.

That's the day the Calera & Shelby Railroad and Museum is sponsoring two round trip train rides from Wilton and Calera to Childersburg. The train will be pulled by steam locomotive No. 750 from the Savannah & Atlanta

Passengers with tickets may board at the Norfolk Southern depot in Wilton or at the highway

World's Fair Library Reference Packet, a comprehensive tour guide assembled by the Louisiana

Pelham Library.

Tickets may be purchased in Montevallo at the Merchants & Planters Bank, or in Calera at Central State Bank.

They are also available by telephone and credit card at 252-2716, for $10 each.

Only 425 tickets are available for each trip. The trips are cosponsored by the Heart of Dixie Railroad Club, with the cooperation of the Norfolk Southern Railroad.

Enthusiasm is reportedly running high in Calera about the event and sponsors urge those interested to get their tickets early.

Valley plans for its support

"Of course, you've got to have a plan," says Valley Elementary principal Dr. Norma Rogers, of her school's community support program.

"And, when you do your homework, and then present your needs and goals to city hall and responsible business leaders... it's surprising what happens," she added. "Especially if you don't give up."

Testimony to this line of action is the kind of support being generated and enjoyed by Valley Elementary.

The City of Pelham has made cash donations of $7,500 during

'83, plus free garbage service, city water, and playground equipment. Pelham Mayor Dunaway recently funded the registration fees for over 100 teachers to attend the regional conference of International Reading Association.

"This would not have occurred had we not been told about the need, and asked to help," said Mayor Dunaway.

And now, according to Rogers, "Youth Law Day" is scheduled.

In the area of business helping, one activity is a cash contribution by a local insurance company of $500 to the teachers with the best attendance record during this school year.

Big Four to perform free gospel concert

The Shelby County Big Four will be in concert Sunday, December 4, from 3-4 p.m. at the Birmingham Museum of Art, located at 2000 Eighth Ave.

The group should be familiar to anyone who attended gospel programs in Bessemer during the 1940's.

Two members of the original quartet are still members of the new group.

The program is free and open to the public. For more information call 254-2571.

What could be called the more expected support is police and fire assistance, but Valley seems to get more than its share if comparison is fair. So far in 1983, the Pelham Police Department has provided over 200 man-hours for daily traffic control; 80 hours for special events; 130 hours to fingerprint over 900 students; and provided special programs for the Valley teachers and students.

Pelham's Fire Department has logged over 600 hours to date in '83. This includes a fireman (Lt. Miller) serving as escort, paramedic, and chaperone for a 5th grade student for a trip to Washington, D.C. and a 3-day overnite field trip to Camp Cosby.

Rogers admits that not all cities are as co-operative as Pelham. But, she is quick to add, "Help is there for a more comprehensive school program with local funds to assist if you map out a plan, demonstrate your willingness to execute the plan, and then ask for help... from city government, civic leaders, and progressive businesses."

Rogers has put a dollar value on Valley's Community Support Program at $40,000 plus the local PTO annual contributions totaling over $20,000.

The Saving Plat

When we say "WE'VE GOT IT GOOD IN SHELBY COUNTY" -- we mean it. We are one year old and we are going great guns thanks to a community that supports its local businesses. We take pride in being a part of the community and realize that we must provide our customers with friendly service, quality

You want results from your advertising, too...

Do you want to reach 21,000 Shelby County households with information about your goods and services? Want to run circulars? Inserts? Coupons? Need photographic work? Want a crisp black and white ad, or a big splash of color? When it comes to advertising, the Shelby County Reporter can do it all for you and your business -- and more. From designing a full advertising campaign, to writing a classified ad that will sell your car. You want results! You want service! And the Shelby County Reporter can give you both. It's one of the reasons we've been in business for nearly 141 years. Time is money.

Chelsea band rates superior

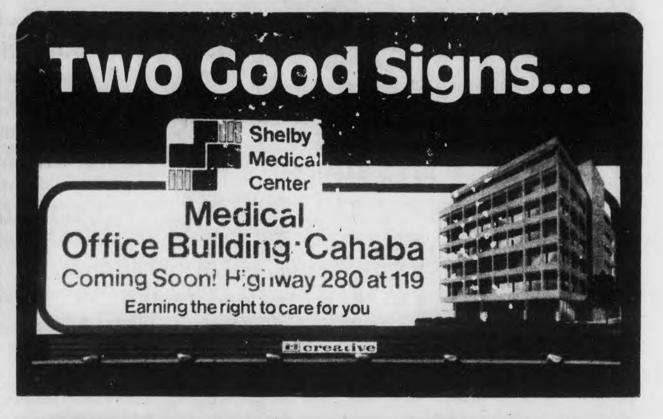

Chelsea High School's marching band has done it again!

The 63 member band recently took superior ratings at the Vestavia Hills Marching Band Festival. The band is under the direction of Dane Lawley. In 1978 Lawley began his teaching career at Chelsea, with a 12-member band and no band uniforms.

The CHS band has grown in the past six years to a 63 member team that has won

Alabaster library seeks books for memorials

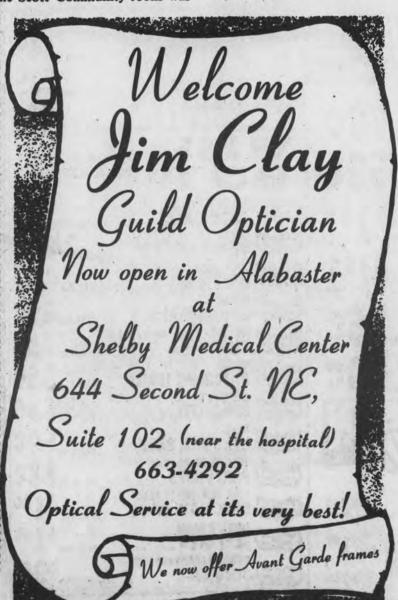

Alabaster residents are urged to place memorials of books and other items in the Albert L. Scott Library during the Christmas season. Interested donars can call the library at 664-2271, or Rita Newell at 663-6102.

Recently at a library board meeting, librarian Gail Smith teported that October's circulation was 2,150 books, and that the Scott Community room was the site of the Alabama Legislative Committee meeting in October.

In other business it was announced that the bulbs donated to the library recently will be planted this month. Plans were also made for a special Christmas tree project.

The new library is located at 100 9th Street and is open seven days a week.

Montevallo approves voting district lines for council representation

by Bert Seaman

In 1984, Montevallo residents in District 2 will go to the polls to elect the city's first black council member.

A map adopted at Monday night's council meeting divides the city into five voting districts, making black representation a reality.

The effort to change the city's election procedures from at-large voting, to voting by district, was spearheaded by black community leader George Dailey.

The unanimous decision of the four council members present Monday (Johnny Holsomback was absent), makes Montevallo the second municipality in Shelby County to adopt voting districts.

Alabaster adopted a similar system this year in order to get Justice Department approval for newly annexed territory.

With the district method, only mayoral candidates will still run at-large. Residents of each of the five districts will only be able to vote for candidates in their district. (See map.)

An ordinance establishing the new voting procedure will be drawn up by city attorney Jim Standridge and voted on by the council at its December 12 meeting.

Mayor Ralph Sears noted that the 1980 census had been used in establishing the district lines. He said that the city's population -- listed as 4,000 at the time -- puts approximately 800 residents in each district.

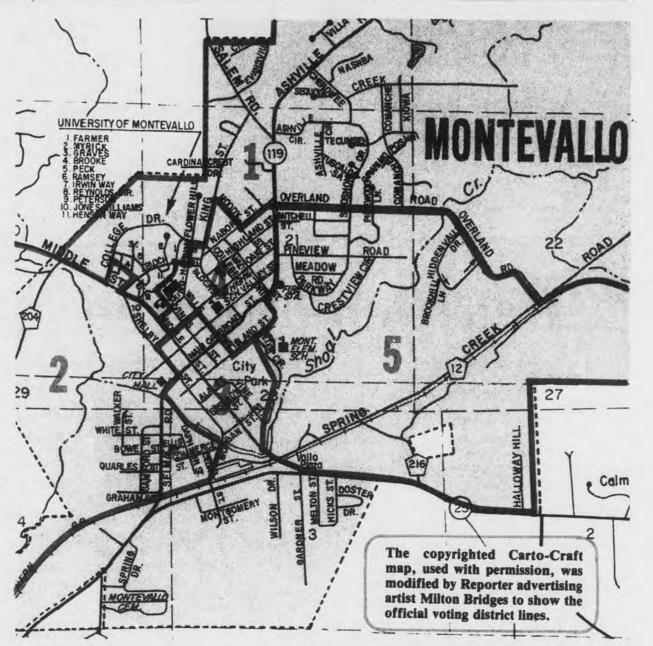

Although University of Montevallo officials were not entirely satisfied with the voting map when it was presented at the last meeting, no objection was voiced Monday.

It had been noted two weeks ago by Dr. Joe Brindley that the division of students into four districts allowed little chance of them having any representation on the council.

Even an adjustment of a line which would put a majority of students in two districts would not ensure them representation, Brindley said.

Now that the council has approved the map as presented, it will go to the Justice Department for final approval.

The mayor pointed out that the approval had to be obtained by January 1 if the new form of voting is to be used in city elections in July.

The planning commission ruled on November 21 that J.W. Parker had violated the county zoning regulations by expanding his business from its original space to an adjoining lot.

Parker's original business was in place before the zoning regulations were passed for Beat 12, and has the benefit of the 'grandfather' clause. But last week several citizens of the beat came to a planning commission meeting and complained that Parker's business had apparently expanded from repossessing autos to buying and storing junk-

Their largest complaint however, was for his expanding his business into an adjacent lot, which they claimed was a clear violation of the zoning regulations. Residents said he had from 75 to 100 autos on it, but Parker's attorney said the number was closer to 15.

Parker's attorney, Carl Chamblee, said he had advised Parker to expand his business, because Chamblee felt the planning commission had no authority to function. He noted a case that was being filed to challenge the constitutionality of the body. (See related story)

Parker sought permission for the move as long ago as February 1983, but the planning commission would not change the agricultural zoning on the adjoining lot to allow business, and told him to stop construction on a building he had started.

Parker feels he is being treated unfairly, and objects strongly to Continued on page 3

Sewerage hold up?

A new two and a half million dollar private enterprise sewerage system is fast nearing completion for the U.S. 280 corridor. 280 sewer system hits snag

by Fred Guarino

Cahaba Water Renovation Systems Incorporated (CWRSI) is well underway toward the construction of a private sewerage treatment system along US 280. But ... a nasty problem could prove to be an unwelcome delay or stumbling block for the opera-

Only one unsecured right of way from the county commission lies between the corporation and its plans to complete a 375,000 gallon per day system by the first of 1984.

According to Charles Bueltman, president of both C.B. Incorporated and CWRSI, the right of way requested on Riverview Road (County 384) would be used for the construction of a lift station.

The corporation originally wanted to locate the station on land owned by St. Vincent's Hospital. But while local clearance was granted months ago, final approval from the order of sisters which runs St. Vincent's has not come through.

Waiting for approval from the sisters could mean more months of delay, according to contractor Don Huff, a partner of Bueltman's.

So the corporation went to the Shelby County Commission last Monday for a county right of way to avoid the delay.

The problem?

"I have some serious doubts that we can convey private use of any right of way," said county attorney Frank 'Butch' Ellis at Monday's commission meeting. "The ground is still owned by some individual or corporation... If they could join in on the venture, the problem would be solv-

Huff and equipment supplier

J.E. Mulvaney told the commission that both Jefferson County and the state highway department have granted rights of way.

They said the state only required that no one be denied access to the privately operated sewerage system.

"We can give you permission as far as we are able," responded Ellis. "But I don't think we've got the authority in my judgement unless it is a public purpose. It would sure clear up any problem if the owner (St. Vincent's) would sign the right of way agreement."

Mulvaney pleaded his case. He said that several industries have already been promised that the project would be completed by the first of the year.

"We could also give a maintenance bond," he sug-

Ellis told Mulvaney that the corporation should get something in writing with the understanding there are no guaranteed rights.

Commissioner Jake Morris, suggesting that the attorney for CWRSI and Ellis work together, moved that the right of way be granted subject to approval by county engineer Gary Ray and the county attorney.

The motion was approved. In a later interview with the Reporter Bueltman said that all permits for operation of the plant have been received. In fact, he said, while the plant's first phase will be only 375,000 gallons per day, permission from the state department of Bueltman pointed out that 75 percent of the lines for the plant are in Shelby County, as well as the entire treatment plant and its planned lift station. The first phase of the project will cost about $2.5 million.

However, should the private nature of the planned sewerage system prove too much to overcome, there may yet be some light at the end of the drainpipe.

County Commissioner John Ames said Tuesday, "Highway 280 is of such imp if we (the county them in any way

Ex-Vincent resident gives land for park

by David F. Moore

It might have been an expensive decision, but it wasn't made suddenly or rashly. Clarence A. Gorman had been thinking a long time about giving the City of Vincent his 14 acres of river-front property for recreational use.

The thoughts turned literally to deed this November when Gorman and his wife, Dorothy, presented the Vincent Council with the papers to the property.

The property -- with seven acres on the banks of the deep flowing Coosa River just southeast of town -- is valued at some $31,000.

"We're pleased to do it," Gorman told the Reporter while talking about the gift. A retired pharmacist and former Vincent resident, Gorman now lives in Homewood.

"I've been thinking about giving them the land for a long time. I didn't have anyone I personally wanted to give it to, and I figured if I gave it to the City of Vincent, a lot of people could enjoy it."

Gorman's parents, Alfred and Gillie, were prominent Vincent citizens during the earlier part of the century, and ran a mercantile and cafe business there. Gorman grew up across the street from the high school, where he graduated in 1931.

He said that as a boy he never had a place to fish or play down by the river -- a desire he carried with him when he left for Alabama Polytechnical Institute (Auburn). A pharmacy graduate, he worked in private practice and at a VA hospital in Milwaukee, prior to taking a pharmacy job at the VA in Birmingham during the 1950's.

During this time Gorman said many of the people he knew in Vincent left, and others moved in. But the place was still home and he returned periodically to visit his mother.

Over a six or seven-year period starting in the late '50's, he began buying property off County 62 along the Coosa, fulfilling his desire for a place to

Whenever he wasn't fishing or just relaxing there, Gorman said he spent time clearing the underbrush, planting pines, so that the land is now in fairly good condition.

But "ever since I bought it, I planned to give it to the city," he said, noting that by selling it, he would have had to pay about half the price it brought, in taxes.

The land was donated under the stipulation "to ever use said real estate for the use of a free public park and recreation area for the people of Vin-

"We don't know what it will be right now," mayor Don Greene said. "Whatever it is, we want to show the town's appreciation to these fine folks for doing such a thing."

According to town clerk Frances Spates, Vincent plans to annex the land into the city limits in the near future. Other short term projects will probably include trash cans and picnic tables, but no large scale plans are currently in the making; Spates said.

Gorman said he hopes the city is able to get the road paved back to the property -- something he was never able to get the county commission to act

Former Circuit Judge James H. Sharbutt, who went to Vincent High with Gorman, is planning to have a marble and brick monument erected on the land, noting that it was donated as Vincent Park. by Clarence and Dorothy Gorman on November.

Bearden honored

by Marcia M. Sears

Friends came from near and far to honor J.E. "Ned" Bearden Monday night.

The trustees of Pelham High School, in cooperation with the Pelham Lions Club and the community, sponsored an appreciation dinner in Bearden's honor at the high school.

One person after another came to the podium to praise the widely-beloved Bearden, and to relate amusing ancedotes from his past.

Dr. Ed Belue, principal of the high school, was master of ceremonies, and said Bearden had "helped make Shelby County the most prosperous in Alabama."

Belue outlined Bearden's accomplishments since he started a dairy in the county in 1929: 12 years on the board of education; 12 years on the county commission; president and chairman of First Bank of Alabaster; president of the county Farm Bureau for 20 years; and 20 years as a director of the state dairymen's association.

Jim King presented the honoree with a bronze plaque which noted that the high school stadium was named "Ned Bearden Stadium." King expressed appreciation for the 20 acres of land Bearden donated for the athletic area, as well as his earlier gifts of land to the school.

Former Probate Judge Conrad Fowler came from Lanett for the occasion and said, "Serving on the county commission with Ned for 12 years was a great experience."

Others who spoke were Dr. Harvey Coker, president of the Pelham Lions Club; Elvin Hill; Frank Ellis, Jr.; and Karl Harrison.

"I feel very humble," Bearden said when he took the stand. "I didn't give the land with this in mind. Having the stadium named after me is the greatest honor I've received."

He and his wife, Irene, then presented the school with a check, "from the Bearden family", which Dr. Belue called, "The largest donation ever given to this school from one family."

So a special meeting was called for November 29.

But prior to the meeting, the problem was resolved at an administrative hearing conducted by Board of Education staff member George Dailey.

City defers divvying dollars

After carefully pondering the requests for revenue sharing money, Montevallo City Council's finance committee was ready Monday to announce who would get the funds.

But those who came to the meeting to weep or rejoice, will have to wait a little longer.

Some members of the fin committee said they were not aware of an offer from University of Montevallo President Jim Vickrey on matching funds.

There was also some uncertainty about the exact nature of Vickrey's offer.

In order to clarify Vickrey's offer -- which was made at the last council meeting -- and to give the finance committee time to reconsider the division of the money, the matter was put off until December 12.

County merchants are merry over Christmas

by Fred Guarino

Chistmas is just around the corner. In fact only 24 shopping days will remain as of Thursday!

But that last minute Christmas shopping spree may not prove too crowded in Shelby County this year.

According to the county merchants the Reporter contacted Tuesday, many shoppers started early this year and sales are on a definite upswing over the last holiday season.

Are the prospects for Christmas sales good this year? Are more people shopping than last year? Has it all started happening yet? What are people buying?

Those were the questions we response from Pelham Kmart's Frank Kirk to the first three.

"It started earlier than usual and this should be the biggest toy Christmas ever," he said. "The computers and electronics are still selling, but not like last year. The people are taking their money and putting it into toys."

Kirk could not quote any percentages for how many more people are shopping his store this season, but said things have improved.

David Gullion of the Alabaster/Pelham Walmart was equally optimistic.

Not only have Christmas shoppers invaded his store early but "more sales are being made and

"Yes. Yes. Yes!," was the people are going for better quali-sponse from Pelham Kmart's ty merchandise," he said.

Gullion noted that name brand toys are selling strongly.

"We don't have a whole lot of experience, but I'd say we had a very good November," said Barry Brubaker at Hoover's Mole Hole. "November sales doubled the previous month's and I expect December to double November."

Brubaker said that Christmas shoppers hit his store about two weeks earlier than he expected, and his first Christmas sales are well underway. "They are going for anything we've got," he laughed.

After a car hit their niece on Simmsville Road, James and John Henry Cohill asked for warning signs to be erected there.

There used to be signs along the road in Alabaster to warn motorists to go slow and to watch for children, resident John Cohill said, but sometime in the past the signs were taken down.

The driver of the car that struck Demisha was apparently unable to avoid the accident. Cohill reported that the youngster had stopped and looked for traffic before crossing.

He said his niece darted across the road when a car turned off, but was hit by a car she didn't see that was behind it.

John Cohill and Demisha's father later drove through the area with Mayor H.A. "Doc" Rubin to convince him that signs are needed.

Lowering the speed from its present 30 mph probably wouldn't do much good, Cohill observed, but he thought signs warning motorists of children playing in the area could help prevent other accidents.

The Mayor told the Reporter that in view of the heavy traffic and number of children playing in the area, he believes signs should be put up.

Councilman Glen Naish is also in favor of the move, noting that whatever the cost of putting up the signs might be, it would be worth it if another child could be saved from injury.

Native son gives back part of life to Vincent

It was Tom Wolfe who wrote that you can never go home. Maybe that's true, maybe not. But either way it would appear that you can at least take some of 'home' with you if you ever go off seeking your place in the world.

Likewise, it would appear that you can later give back some of that which you took. Case in point: Clarence A. Gorman and his hometown of Vincent.

Gorman left Vincent in 1931 for college and a career. Although he eventually settled in Jefferson County, he never moved back 'home' and returned only to visit or fish. But over the years he apparently carried some little bit of Vincent with him -- what it was and wasn't to his boyhood days.

Recently, he gave back -- after a fashion -- what he carried with him when he left. He and his wife, Dorothy, donated 14 acres of land on the Coosa River to be used forevermore as a park for the people of Vincent.

Gorman didn't have to do this commendable act, but we think he got a kick out of it, as well as a sense of fulfillment. We know the people who have fun at the park will certainly get a kick out of his generosity.

Quiet change lauded

It's reassuring to know that in a world literally full of war and revolution, political changes can take place without bloodshed:

Although the districting of Montevallo will probably have little impact on the world at large and perhaps even Shelby County in particular, it will no doubt have an impact on the overall quality of American life in this small ci-

With the city council's approval of the districting lines this week, black residents in Montevallo should be assured of representation on the city's governing body.

This is not to say that city leaders in the past have not been aware or sensitive to the needs of the black community. Indeed, the willingness to both hear and act on the issue of a black council member reflects the prevailing attitude of the city leaders.

Also commendable is the spirit of involvement shown by leaders in the black community who are concerned that people there have access to an active voice in city matters.

Too, it's reassuring to know that leaders such as George Dailey and city administrator Don Hughes can work out solutions to political and racial problems -- without rancor.

The State Legislature this week reduced the amount of the raise it approved for its membership a week earlier.

The vote in the House of Representatives was once again a voice vote, and not recorded.

But the Senate went on record with the vote. Frank Ellis, Jr., Senator from Shelby County, voted "no."

Originally the legislators passed themselves large increases in expense allowance pay. After Governor Wallace sent the bills back with a suggestion that the raise be lowered slightly, the legislators agreed with him.

ticles (letters) in our county paper and let me say I really appreciate the opportunity to do so, not for my benefit but to let other people know how I feel in my small way. People have the same right as I do to put letters in the paper. I'm sure the paper would like to hear from you, too. I wish each and every family could receive one each and every week, just so they could see what is going on in politics and especially in our county seat (Court House). Lots of people do not realize the things they might get involved with. Do not sit back and do nothing. Unless you speak out, nobody knows how you feel about different things. Once something is passed, it is too late to do anything about it. This is a free country (so far) so come on and lets talk together.

Gun control laws may be too tight

Letter to the Editor:

It is my duty as a citizen to inform the public where there is insufficient information. I am responding to the editorial 'Mail order guns can kill' in the Nov. 17 edition of the Shelby County Reporter.

Under the current 1968 Gun Control Act a person that is engaged in the business of dealing in firearms has to have a license. However, the law does not give a clear definition of what 'engaged in the business' means. As a result, many citizens have been convicted under this law for the sale of as few as two guns to a friend. As it stands, a violation of the 1968 Gun Control Act is a felony. A citizen could lose his/her right to vote and the right to ever own a gun again. Furthermore, a gun owner could find his/her entire gun collection confiscated as a result of one unintentional violation of the 1968 Gun Control

Current anti-gun control legislation would protect the gun owner. It will stop the confiscation of guns due to one unintentional gun law violation. It will allow you to buy a gun in another state as long as there is no law against it in either state. Finally, it will stop future gun registration laws from coming into existence out of the 1968 Gun Control Act.

Sincerely yours, Keith Wortham P.O. Box 22 Westover, AL 35185

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member FDIC.

by Milton Bird

Things I'm Thankful For: Good singing, at New Bethesda Church and the 4-H clubhouse on the river... Fishing, in a good lake and on the river... A dove hunt with Bub Gordon and Herman Strong, maybe not quite like the old hunts with Jim Merrell and Jack Stone and Garvin Baker and Leon and Buddy Kelly, but a fine hunt anyhow with the birds still flying far Chasing bobwhites with George Foster and his boy, Earl, in a field a buzzard would hesitate to fly over... November, with every tree in a pretty dress and all of em' wanting to be noticed... Turnip greens and mustard and rape and all those folks who planted 'em and gave me grazing rights...

The Auburn and Alabama football teams and happiness for Hap Hatchett and gloom for Norman Lefkovits... The First National Bank of Columbiana that makes it possible for me to send these words to folks everywhere... All the good dinners we shared at family reunions and all-day singings...

Turkey and dressing and the turkey sandwiches afterward and the stew and the pot pie...

Christmas lights all over the county that slip in before Thanksgiving and stay until after New Years. The money folks give so every little child will have a Santa Claus... The shower that came in October, too late for my garden, but just right for the new grass from Elbert Gibson's pasture...

Okra, everywhere I found it... Johnny Mooney's birthday party... The Old Time Reunion in Wilsonville and the folks coming back and remembering... A mockingbird that sits in a tall post oak outside our window singing a gold-star tune... The bluebirds that nested in our box after three years of pretending...

All the friends who slipped away and left their names behind... The Shelby County Reporter which tolerates me and prints my stuff... So many good friends at Briarcliff Nursing Home and other good friends ill in Shelby Medical Center who let me spend a little time with them every week... And all those folks on my visiting list at Columbiana United Methodist Church... Everything good you want and everything good you need day after day after day.

This year I thought I had it licked --Thanksgiving, I mean.

Well, just because I didn't buy the bird -frozen, naturally -- until the day before Thanksgiving, doesn't mean I didn't have a firm grip on the situation. After all, how long does it take a turkey to thaw?

Oh sure, the directions say three or four days in the refrigerator. But they also point out that a 10-11 hour soak will bring the bird around to cooking readiness just as well.

My son's only suggestion for this year's event was to take the 'insides' out before putting the turkey in the oven. What a wise guy -- just because I've forgotten once or twice...

Anyhow, my first order of the day on Thanksgiving morn was to remove the bird from his bath and take those 'innards' out. It took a little tugging since the thaw hadn't penetrated that far, but on the whole, everything indicated a 'go' for roasting.

Grateful that others were coming to the feast bringing dressing and tasty and sundry casseroles, I went about buttering up the outside of the bird.

Then the phone rang.

Not having time to talk right then, I toyed with the idea of not answering. But assuming it had to be something important -- like someone wondering if they should bring one pie or two --I decided I'd better find out what was up.

As it turned out, what was up was a coyote -dead of course -- but needing to be photographed. At least the hunter that shot it thought it needed to be.

If it had been a turkey, I could have said, "Sorry. Thanksgiving will be over when the paper comes out, so we won't be able to use it."

Even if it had been a deer, I might have begged off. But what can you say to someone who has bagged something so rare -- in this region anyway -- as a coyote?

"I'll be right along," I said, hoping my lack of enthusiasm wasn't noticeable.

Hurriedly stuffing the main course in a roasting bag, I popped it in the oven and took While I understand the satisfaction some people must get from the hunt and the kill, it's hard for someone not taken with such pursuits to muster much enthusiasm over a carcass. I didn't exactly know how to pose the hunter and this particular type of prey either, so by the time I finished, I'd spent more time with the coyote than I had with my turkey. Knowing that old "Tom" was doing just what he was supposed to be doing though, I decided to make a quick trip to the store. Not that I'd forgotten anything essential, mind you, but I just thought I'd pick up a few things that might be nice -- as fill-ins, you Some stores, I'm sure, were open. However, couldn't find them and unfortunately spent too long trying.

When I finally got home, Tom was done. It really doesn't take any time at all in those little

And since my guests were family, they didn't hesitate to comment on his condition, which was "really dry," as one relation put it.

I don't know what happened to the well organized meal. No one seemed to know about bringing any vegetables, but one of the diners did show up with dressing and pie.

So at least no one went hungry, I can assure you. I know that for a fact because they all turned down seconds on turkey!

The Alabama Scene

by Bob Ingram

A betting man would have lost his shirt last week on what Gov. George Wallace would do with the controversial pay raise the legislators voted themselves.

The lawmakers, who had been sworn into office less than 90 minutes earlier, shouted through a resolution boosting their compensation by a whopping 63 percent. They upped their daily pay from $65 to $95 for each day in session, they raised their regular monthly expense allowance from $400 to $700.

The furore created by this unexpected action was unprecedented. Gov. Wallace received more than 2,000 phone calls in one day from irate taxpayers, urging him to reject the raise. The outcry was so loud and so fierce that there seemed little doubt what Wallace would do -either he would reject the raise outright, or at most, grant the legislators as increase of perhaps 10 percent.

The Wallace of old very likely would have done this, but the Wallace of '83 approved the raise almost intact. He cut the $700 a month to $600, but he left untouched the huge increase in the daily compensation during legislative ses-

That the governor did not use this opportunity to offer a plan for a major readjustment in legislative pay was also a surprise. There is no doubt that the present pay plan is grossly unfair --- legislators who live in Montgomery or close by receive the same amount of expense money as those who live in Florence, Scottsboro, Gulf Shores and Dothan. A plan whereby those who must pay for hotel-motel rooms and meals are compensated for this needs to be devised.

Another shortcoming is that the law allows the legislators to be paid mileage for only one roundtrip per session from their homes. This too is grossly unfair to those who live a great distance from Montgomery.

Many states have gone to a fixed-salary for lawmakers, plus actual expenses they incur in travel, lodging and food. A similar plan may be offered to the Alabama Legislature in the near future.

Almost lost in all the excitement over the pay raise was the success Gov. Wallace had in the one-week special session. He asked for and got approval of the spending of $9 million to build a new prison and to staff two others, and also okayed was a new work release program for inmates intended to ease prison overcrowding. The approval of this plan was a painful blow to Atty. Gen. Charles Graddick, who has strongly resisted a similar plan instituted by the Prison Department..

Former Gov. John Patterson was not at all pleased at the way he was portrayed in a recent NBC-TV miniseries on the life of President Kennedy. Patterson was portrayed as a short, cigar-smoking man (the actor looked more like Wallace than Patterson). Ironically, Patterson had been one of the few Southern governors to have supported Kennedy for President in 1960, and suffered politically because of it.

County basketball underway

Warriors, Lions are hot on hoops

Basketball is off to a sudden and frantic start in Shelby County. The young and inexperienced Briarwood Christian Lions are 2-0 and the now 3-0 Thompson Warriors began 1983 with a win over Shelby County and the championship crown of their own tournament.

Which way?

"Which way do I go coach?" That could be what the Thompson Warrior and the Bibb County player who seem a bit confused over the direction of the basketball might be asking. To help straighten the mess out, Thompson's Dana Washington (40) rushes to the rescue. (Photo by Jerome Bannister)

Briarwood opened the year with a 47-28 win over Hayden and a 58-55 victory over Fayetteville.

Against Hayden, Craig Collier hooped in ten points and John Kirkpatrick grabbed nine rebounds.

In action against Fayetteville, Bob Welch led the spree of scoring over eight fellow Lions with 13 points. He also pulled down nine rebounds. Coach Steve Franklin is pleasantly surprised with the team, to say

"We have an unusual group," Franklin said. "We lost six seniors, five of whom started... and most of our kids are even. There are no stars." So how are they winning?

"We play a lot of people, but everyone plays hard and plays together. The main thing I am proud of is our effort."

The Warriors began things with a blitz of Shelby County 96-60 which came on the scoring and rebounding of Chris Thomas. Thomas just hit for 28 points and took 20 rebounds off the boards.

But that was only for starters. The Warriors went on to beat Deshler 77-70 and Bibb County 65-63 to win their own tip-off affair. Shelby County was the other team involved.

Against Deshler, Thomas scored 31 points and grabbed 15 rebounds. Tony Hale hit for 13 points and Luvell Bivins hit good for

In action with Bibb County, Thomas hit 21 points and grabbed 14 rebounds. Hale and Bivins hit 15 and 11 points respectively.

The all-tournament team included Marvin Rivera and Terrance Ingram for Deshler; Wilson Kersh, Gary Anderson and Andra Tabb for Bibb County; David Wood for SCHS, Tony Hale, Luvell Bivins and MVP Christ Thomas for the Warriors.

Things haven't been so good for Shelby County. The Wildcats opened with a 97-76 loss to Childersburg, a 96-61 loss to Thompson and an 89-45 loss to Bibb County. However, the Wildcats managed a 70-60 win over Deshler for third place in the Thompson Tip-Off Tournament. Against Childersburg, Bibb County and Deshler, David Wood led his team with 24 points, 14 points and 22 points.

In action with Thompson, Kenneth Jones led with 15 points. Wood, O'Neal Williams and Terry Cottingham were leading rebounders against Deshler.

The Vincent Yellow Jackets opened things with a 66-61 win over B.B. Comer and then fell to powerful Banks High School of Birmingham, 50-58. In action with Comer, Bruce Hamilton led in both scoring and rebounding with 17 points and 12 boards.

Bennie Joe Keller led in scoring against Banks with 11 points, but Hamilton was also ever-present for ten points and ten rebounds.

The Pelham Panthers are seeing action this year with four seniors, four juniors and two sophomores.

The seniors are Bryan Hughes at forward, Eddie Reeves at guard and Kyle Hutchison at center.

Sophomores are John North at forward and Lee Snyder at guard. Details from coach Tony Taylor on Pelham's first outing of the season -- a loss to Childersburg -- were unavailable as the Reporter went to press.

Chelsea has begun 1983 with a loss but... at least one Hornet is already beginning to shine. In a 55-95 loss to Fayetteville, Steve Shelton scored 25 points.

Going up

Leaping and soaring shots like this one by Thompson's Richard Kidd (44) were a major factor in the Warriors' victory in their own tip-off tournament. Thompson defeated Deshler and Bibb County High Schools to win the event in which Shelby County High School finished third. (Photo by Jerome Bannister)

-'Cart Path' is a living legend

by Fred Guarino

Golf is a game that has produced its share of legends. Take Ben Hogan, Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Jack Nicholas to name just a few.

But while each of these men are originals who brought their own styles and characters to the game, they have nothing on one legend at Riverchase Country Club. Not only is this individual a rarity, but he is humble and loyal to his course. And he is winning the hearts of many of the golfers who play there.

"It's sure good to have him around. It's a lot of fun," says Clyde Howard.

"I don't like him," jokes Archie Sheffield. "He's smarter than the average duffer."

"I've never seen him get in the way. He seems to respect the golfers," says Houston Brown with an affectionate smile. "He never gets on the green and he stays in the woods when we tee off."

Wait a minute here! What kind of golf legend doesn't get on the green and stays in the woods when people tee off? Confession time... this legend isn't people. It's a dog named Cart Path!

"He just belongs to the club," explains 13-yearold Scott Geram, the son of Jim Geram who runs Riverchase Golf Course.

"We feed him and everything. He's out here every day," continues the young Geram who first won the heart of Cart Path.

So what makes this dog a legend?

You see, Cart Path was a stray who showed up at Riverchase one morning. But unlike other stray critters, Cart Path displayed such an expert knowledge of golf etiquette that the club members decided to keep him.

A dog knows golf etiquette? Yes.

A black and white hunting dog of some sort, he waits for the course to open every morning. No one knows where he sleeps.

He waits for a foursome to go off on the links. When he decides a group has come along to his liking, he accompanies them through the entire round.

Cart Path knows where all the tees are and he often runs ahead to wait on the golfers.

If he is running ahead and a group is about to hit in the fairway, he waits patiently in the woods. He will not move to disturb a soul.

He will never -- under any circumstances -- pick up a ball unless it is given to him, and he will not set paw on a green.

In fact, Cart Path is so mindful of the pressure to keep Riverchase beautiful, he stays well away from course superintendent Tommie Hill.

"He'll go through the woods and come out at the next tee when he sees Hill,' Jim German says. Geram is quick to add, however, that Hill loves Cart Path too.

But Cart Path's lot in life apparently hasn't always been the ease of country club living. According to the senior Geram, the club pet was a skinny thing when he first showed up with some pretty big problems.

"He had been caught in a trap with his leg nearly cut through," Geram recalls.

Too, club member Bruce Bogart had a rough first meeting with Cart Path. Bogart wanted to take the course's current celebrity to the veterinarian for his shots. He even gave the dog a collar that was worn by one of his pets which had died.

The good hearted club member, however, made the mistake of taking Cart Path in his brand new black Porsche... and of course Cart Path threw-up all over the new car during the ride.

ANNUAL REPORT CONSERVATION HIGHLIGHTS OF 1983

SHELBY COUNTY SOIL & WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT

TARGETING-

A NEW USDA CONCEPT "almed at" the wisest use of our tax dollars, but it needs to be looked at very carefully. There are national concerns as well as local concerns about this concept. In summary, the idea is to put money and people where the greatest rowcrop land erosion problem persist. In Alabama, the Wiregrass and the Tennessee Valley areas are the major target areas. While we agree that these areas need a lot of work, we District Supervisors in many of the Central and North Central Countles are concerned about this approach. Compared to the Wiregrass and Tennessee Valley we have very little rowcrop land. However, we feel that what we do have is just as important to us as these other areas of the State. Also, we have other land-use and natural resource concerns that are equally important as erosion of row-crop land. We are concerned about and will strive to continue a balanced soil and water conservation program that addresses all natural resource problems in Shelby County.

CONSERVATION TILLAGE
ATTRACTIVE SOLUTION TO SOIL EROSION

Farmers view a new no-till planter at a recent demonstration in Tuscaloosa County. To many, a conservation tillage practice such as no-till or minimum tillage is still not the prettiest site, but today many are viewing residue-littered fields as the mark of a smart farmer.

The rolling limestone valley soils of Shelby County are eroding at unbelievable rates of 20 tons per acre. Experts tell us that we have to turn this trend around or our production will begin to suffer. In the past few years we have seen hugh tractors and earth turning equipment plow over terraces, up and down hills and chisel the soil 8 to 14 inches deep. Also, improved varieties and more fertilizer has kept yields high. But!, how long can we keep this up and expect to produce? Not long, says many of our farmers and agricultural experts.

Conservation tillage seems to be the best solution. It has proven to be cheaper, time saving, and in most cases has out produced conservation tillage because it saves precious moisture. Also, it saves the nutrient rich top soil that is so vital to our production capability. At present, research is going on all over the country to develop facts about erosion, soil loss, and tillage practices, as they relate to production. In just ten years, 1972 to 1982, conservation tillage acres nationwide jumped from 30 million to over 100 million acres, or about 25% of all cropland in the U.S.

SPECIAL LAND USE PROBLEMS-SINKHOLES

Pictured here Geologist John Newton of the U.S. Geological Survey studies and records data to predict sinkhole activity. About ¼ of the land in Shelby County is subject to some degree of sinkhole activity. Sinkholes are a special land use problem to developers, homebuyers, farmers and horse breeders or boarders.

They are also of great concern to the County Health Department, Planning Commission and Highway Department.

"TAME FIRE" AN IMPORTANT TOOL IN TIMBER MANAGEMENT

"Ole Smokey the Bear" may have overdone his job in teaching us to prevent forest fires. Many people now think all fire is bad when it burns our woodlands. Not so! Prescribed burning is the best and most economical management tool the timber manager has. It also provides the best wildlife habitat as green succulant tender shoots and sprouts begin to grow in the spring. As pictured here, prescribed fire can eliminate weed tree competition, produce ground cover for wildlife, and reduce wild fire hazards. However, "I emphasize prescribed fire"-burning under controlled conditions for a desired purpose.

Mrs. Louise Haywood joins our District staff as Clerk. Mrs. Haywood replaces Mrs. Nora Gaskin as our District Clerk. Nora had been with us for four years and did an excellent job. She quit in September to pursue a college degree that she had been working on as a part time student for the past 3 years. We wish Nora the best of luck and we welcome Louise to our staff. Louise is a native of Wilsonville. She and her husband Bob now live only about a 1/4 of a mile from where she grew up-and picked cotton, she adds.

EROSION STRIPS 15 TO 20 TONS OF SOIL PER ACRE PER YEAR FROM OUR COTTON LAND

Protect your cropland from soil erosion this winter. Residues from corn, soybeans, and cotton increases water intake of the soil and protects the soil

Also, winter annuals such as small grain, clover, and vetch protect the soil from erosion and provide grazing.

A GOOD TOOL FOR LAND-USE PLANNING

Soil Scientist, left, Cleo Stubbs, right, Bob Stevens, gather information for a Soil Survey that is due out in the Spring of 1984. The Shelby County soil survey is at the printers and is due for distribution this coming spring. It will be complete with maps, locations and a description of the 44 different soils of Shelby County. Included also, will be interpretations and engineering information for most any land-use decision you might need to make from building a house or pond to growing a crop. We will inform everyone as soon as we receive copies of the survey report.

GOOD HAY AND PASTURE-A MUST FOR CATTLEMEN AND DAIRYMEN

If you are going to spend the time and energy to cut and bale hay, you should go for the best quality possible. This means you must lime and fertilize according to a soil test. Too many of our pastures are in need of lime and fertilizer. You may maintain a good stand of bahla or fescue for awhile, but if you don't fertilize and lime correctly you will lose quality the first year and begin to lose your stand the third year. Pictured here, Mr. Robershaw rakes good quality fescue hay for bailing on Mr. Royce Morris' Dairy Farm near Columbiana.

As a team, the Shelby County District Board, Soil Conservation Personnel, and the many landusers with whom we have worked have accomplished a great deal. Our goal is to conserve and improve our natural resource base through a carefully planned soil and water conservation program. A program which includes a wide range of activities from engineering surveys and designs of ponds, terrace and water disposal systems, waste lagoons, soils information for development projects, erosion control on urban and row-crop land to total landuse planning, just to name a few. In providing these services, we worked with 520 landowners, provided 1170 technical services, on over 94,000 acres of land during the 1983 program year. The articles above depict a few of these land use and resource management services. We mention these just to let you know that we are interested in Shelby County, its natural resources, and most of all, you, the landuser in

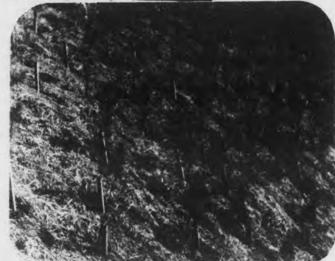

RC&D (RESOURCE CONSERVATION & DEVELOPMENT)
A COMMUNITY PROJECT

Shelby County is one of 5 counties situated in the CAWACO RC&D area. CAWACO is a name taken from the Cahaba, Warrior and Coosa River Basins. The five counties involved are Blount, Walker, Jefferson, Shelby and Chilton. There are 24 different projects in the making for these 5 counties in the overall CAWACO Plan. Construction is complete or underway on 3 projects at this time and plans are complete or underway on 8 other projects. Pictured here Extension Recreation Specialist Robert Clark on front of boat discusses the Beeswax Creek Park project with Rural Development Committee Chairman, J. Claude Smith, not shown; County Agent, Grant Gober, left and Mason Dollar, front right, Joe Spooner, rear right, of the Soil Conservation Watershed Planning Staff, Auburn, who will be doing the technical planning for the project. As soon as the County Commission and Alabama Power Company work out property details, a County Recreation Board will be formed to study the situation and submit needs to the planning team.

PLANNING FOR WILDLIFE
A PART OF TOTAL LAND-USE MANAGEMENT

Pictured here, left, Dr. Bayard Tynes and son, Norman, center, discuss planting of wildlife food plots with SCS biologist, Bob Waters. Planted food such as clovers, vetch, wheat, corn or oats are excellent deer foods. For turkey, some good foods are chufa, oats, corn, wheat, vetch and browntop millet. For quall and doves, some of the better foods are corn, millet, dove proso, lespedeza and wheat. All plots should be planned in conjunction with natural surroundings and food supplies.

TAKING CARE OF URBAN EROSION PROBLEMS

Erosion problems on developing areas such as road cuts, building sites and such contribute greatly to silt in our streams and lakes. Most developers are becoming very conscious of these problems and are doing a good job. Others are still leaving it to nature to heal the scars. Nature usually takes a long time. Pictured here a combination of grass, mulch and pine trees are placed on this steep cut to control erosion and beautify the development

PONDS COSTLY, STILL A GOOD INVESTMENT

Ponds are getting more costly to build, but most folks still contend that they still make a good investment. If you need stock water or just want a good place for you and your family to relax and enjoy an afternoon of fishing, they are still worth the money. Depending, of course, on the site, but usually a 2 acre pond will cost about $6,000.00 to build. Pictured here, SCS personnel check construction of a newly built pond that has begun to fill with water. Notice the top width, beautiful slopes, and the way the dam blends into the hills on both sides of the resevoir area.

We could not accomplish this without help and cooperation from everyone, especially our County Commissioners, Health Department, Highway Department, Planning Commission, ASCS Committee, Extension Service, Forestry Department, Rural Development Committee, Farmers Home Administration, Mayors, WBYE, the Shelby County Reporter and all of you landusers with whom we have worked. Alcohol linked to boat deaths Boating while drinking apparently causes problems.

The National Transportation Safety Board's "Safety Study: Recreational Boating Safety and Alcohol," has linked legally drunk boaters to as many as 38 percent of the annual recreational boating fatalities.

Marine Police Director William B. Garner said the study also identified and examined safety improvements to reduce accidents, due to the use of alcohol.

In 1982 Alabama experienced 155 boating accidents, resulting in 37 fatalities, 71 injuries and $319,654 in property damage. Since Jan. 1, 1983, the respective figures are: 132 accidents, 32 fatalities, 61 injuries and $171,069 in property damage.

Garner said, "The Department of Conservation, consistent with recommendations of the National Transportation Safety Board, has already contemplated and proposed draft legislation for the Alabama Legislature to con-

The proposed legislation will prohibit the operation or control of watercraft on any state waters by persons under the influence of alcohol or controlled substances or those considered mentally or physically incapable of operating the watercraft.

If enacted, the legislation will also provide for testing, admissability of the test results and presumptions to be derived from them, as well as for arrests.

Learning young

More than 80 youngsters, grades 1-5, signed up for the University of Montevallo Junior Falcon Basketball program. The program is under the direction of Terry Sellers, UM's men's assistant basketball coach, with members of the Falcons and the Lady Golden Falcons basketball teams serving as instructors. The purpose of the program is to present the game of basketball to children in a form they can enjoy and understand. The major emphasis of the program is to install sportsmanship, learn the value of teamwork as well as to familiarize the children with the fundamentals of basketball. The program runs

Fans are excited over Lady Falcons

The largest crowd ever for a Lady Falcon basketball game --950 strong -- looked on in Montevallo as Alabama Huntsville bit the dust 82-72.

The felling of the number four ranked team in the NAIA was "pivotal" according to UM coach Bud Childers.

That could be something of an understatement. The Lady Falcons had lost two games on the road to nationally ranked opponents before the win happen-

"It was essential that we play well against UAH in our home opener," Childers said. "Beating the number four ranked team in the nation as well as a conference and district opponent, was a big confidence builder for our young team."

Not only was the win a great one for the ladies, but the crowd was exciting for a team that has not enjoyed such rowdy support in the past.

"By the time we walked out on the floor we were inspired by the crowd," Childers said. "The students made so much noise that our players couldn't hear their names... the crowd was definitely our sixth man."

The Lady Falcons hit 61 percent in the first half in route to a 40-39 halftime lead. Montevallo cooled down a little in the second half, hitting 56 percent, but still led by as many as 18 points.

Scoring in double figures for UM were Karen Scott and Sharen Douglas with 21 points each, Judy Perkins with 14 points and former Montevallo High School star Ruth Perkins hit 12.

Douglas grabbed nine rebounds and Judy Perkins dished out 10 assists.

UM went on to even its record at 2-2 with a win over Fort Valley State, 68-54.

Scott led the team with 15 points. Ruth Perkins hit for 11 points and Judy Perkins was good for ten points. Scott also led the squad in rebounds with 12.

UM men win Lion's Club Tournament

The UM Falcons are off to a very respectable 3-1 start in 1983 basketball action.

The men downed Miles College in the first round of the UM-Lions Tip-Off Tournament 91-74, and edged William Carey in a hot one-pointer, 60-59 to win the title.

The Falcons went on to defeat Phillips College 85-67 before losing their first game of the year to Delta State 39-49.

Against Miles College, Kennedy King led with a career high points, followed by Anthony Glaude who hooped in 26 points.

King came on to hit the winning shot against William Carey with just eight seconds left in the championship game. Named the tournament's most valuable player, King was good for 17 points in the finale.

Glaude, who also made alltourney, came on to hit 22 points in the tip-off final. Against Delta State, Glaude hit 11 points and James Smith hit 10.

Glaude and Dexter Walker were UM players named to the Blue-Gray Classic to benefit charities

On Christmas Day, 68 top college seniors from across the nation will kick-off the 46th Annual Blue-Gray All Star Football Classic at 11:30 a.m. at Montgomery's Cramton Bowl.

The athletes will not come alone. Many will bring families and friends. Close behind will be as many as 200 professional football scouts and personnel direc-

Network television will also be there to broadcast the event across the nation. It is expected that $750,000-plus will be poured into Montgomery during the week preceding the game sponsored by the Montgomery Lions Club.

Since 1978, when the Blue-Gray game was moved to Christmas Day for more national exposure, the economic benefits have tripled for local charities, which now receive about $100,000 from ticket sales and other game income.

Bowl coming

All roads lead to Birmingham's Legion Field for the 7 p.m. kickoff of the 7th Annual Hall of Fame Bowl Game, Dec. 22.

Last year 75,408 attended the Hall of Fame Bowl Game and it is estimated that between six and eight million dollars were injected into the Birmingham economy as a direct result of the game. The local fans, more than 50,000, each spent about $5 on the average during the game thus making a contribution of more than $250,000.

Another sell-out crowd of 75.000-plus is expected for this year's Kentucky/West Virginia contest. For more information contact the Hall of Fame Bowl at (205) 252-5507.

Boosters give boost to boosters

The newly organized Academic Boosters Club at Thompson High School got a helping hand Monday from the THS Band Boosters.

Graduation exam results due

The suspense is nearly over. Local school system officials have been told results from the Alabama High School graduation examination will be delivered to them this week.

On December 5, statewide results will be released by the State Department of Education at a press conference in Montgomery.

Kiwanians honor farmers

The American farmer is the most productive person in the world - each one feeding 78 other people.

According to information printed in the program for the annual Farm-City Week banquet, the nation's total agricultural income for 1982 amounted to $20,022,000.

The annual affair to recognize the farmers of Shelby County is sponsored jointly by the Columbiana Kiwanis Club and the Shelby County Farm Bureau. Television executive Everett

Holle was the speaker for this year's event, which was held Tuesday evening at the State 4-H

Holle talked about television's role in getting the farmer's story across to the public. He noted that future trends in the industry point to more local programming, which will give the farmer and related areas more exposure.

Kiwanis Club President Bob Barrett and Farm Bureau President Joel Bearden welcomed guests to the event.

Guests at the event included: Shelby County Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden. commissioners John Ames and Leon Archer, state legislators Sonny Moore, John Tanner, Butch Ellis, Columbiana Mayor Buck Falkner, Alabama Power Company District Manager Nolan Hardin.

MONTEVALLO WANTS TO THANK YOU

We have a very special reason to be thankful this Thanksgiving Season. A new poll reveals the extent to which Alabamians have taken and are taking advantage of the quality higher educational experience available at the University —

*The random sample telephone poll of 529 adult Alabamians, completed in early fall of 1983, by the polling arm of the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, replicated the poll conducted by mail in 1978 as a part of the UM Mission and Goals Study. The response rate was 82% and the poll's "sampling error" 4.5%, i.e., "one can be 95 percent confident that a result from the sample is not more than 4.5 percent different from that of the entire adult population of Alabama."

'Nutcracker' danced on UM campus to raise PTO funds

The classical Christmas tale of the magical 'Nutcracker Suite' will be presented Saturday, December 10, in Montevallo.

The ballet, sponsored as a fund raiser by the Montevallo PTO, will be presented by the University of Montevallo's Omni-Dance Theatre at 7:30 p.m. in Palmer Auditorium.

Besides the UM dancers (Betty Lytle and Mark Jelks in the lead dance parts), the first act of the production will feature some 25 children from Pelham and Montevallo.

Christi Hale will play Clara and Mitchell Nash will play the Nutcracker Prince.

Under the direction of Gaynor Gange, the production will include such 'special effects' through dancing, including elves, toys and candy canes coming to life, and the transformation of a wooden nutcracker into a handsome prince.

Adult and children tickets will be available at the door, from the Montevallo schools, and from several local merchants.

The program is funded in part through a grant from the Alabama State Council on the Arts and Humanities, with the assistance from the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.

Double show

Vonda Schrader of Montevallo (left) and Katie Cash of Columbiana will exhibit their artwork in a senior showing at the University of Montevallo's Bloch Hall Gallery. Schrader is a 1976 graduate of Minor High School and a member of the Kappa Pi art honorary: Cash is a 1979 graduate of Pelham

High, and a commercial art major. The show runs Dec. 4-9, and the gallery hours are 9-4. Renee Pettit-Porter of Alabaster recently took part in a senior showing at UM as well. That showing will end tomorrow, Dec. 2.

Boosters bring music to SCHS

Country and western music is coming to the Shelby County High auditorium on December

"Ain't no slouchy groups," either, according to Sheriff Buddy Glasgow who is assisting the SCHS athletic boosters with the fund raiser.

On the agenda for the night is the Wayne Hann Band. Hann, who used to back up Wendy Holcombe, has since made a name for himself at the Rusty Spur in Birmingham and clubs in Talladega.

Featured guest for the 7 p.m. foot-stomping is Brenda Sheffield, straight from the proud county heart of Shelby.

Advanced tickets are on sale at SCHS, and if there's any left, they'll be available at the door.

Mark Twain comes to life on Calera stage

Upon a premature announcement of his obituary, Mark Twain said, "Reports of my death have been greatly exaggerated."

Twain was right then -- because he was still alive. And he is still right today, in 1983, because he lives on in portrayals of his wit and humor by actors throughout the country.

One such performance will bring Twain back to life in Calera this Sunday afternoon.

In an effort to raise funds for special protrayal of Twain. Revel, a UM graduate and a native of Hueytown, will be joined by the University of Montevallo Chamber Choir under the direction of Dr. Ted Pritchett. The choir will perform anthems and carols.

The locally known actor began his career in the early 1960's with the Birmingham Actor's Theatre. Revel has since worked with the Birmingham Festival Theatre, the UM Players, the Jemison Drama Club, and as a director and board advisor for the newly formed Calera Coummunity Theater.

In addition, Revel has been a salesman, TV journalist, dramatics instructor, rock singer, writer, and a published poet. He has also been busy balancing time between Metro South Broadcasting and Shelby County Continuing Education where he teaches theatre workshop.

He has twice received the John Gassner Playwrighting Award, and has had 21 of his original plays produced.

Revel said he simply selected seasonal literary works that will inspire folks of all ages. "Gail Farris (president of the Calera Community Theatre) wanted to sponsor something for the holidays to keep the momentum of the new group going," Revel said. "They contacted me and asked if I'd help, and I said certainly."

"It's going to be lots of fun," he added. "I love Christmas."

The 2 p.m. performance will be held in the Calera High School Auditorium. Tickets and information may be obtained by calling 668-0304.

Service held at SMC

Patients, employees and visitors at Shelby Medical Center participated in a special Thanksgiving Service last week.

Calera Rev. Shelton Reeves of the Northside Baptist Church opened the service with poem, followed by singing led by Renae Carroll.

SMC chaplain Rev. Carl Thomason of Grace Baptist Church in Saginaw gave a devotional message, expressing the need to be thankful for all things and accept them as they are.

Special guests at the service include George 'Buddy' Fuqua and Harlan Fredrick.

The Thanksgiving service was held on Wednesday, November 23, at the hospital.

Inverness sets Xmas bazaar

A 'Colonial American Christmas' is the theme of the upcoming bazaar sponsored by the Inverness Elementary School PTO.

The bazaar is set for Saturday, Dec. 10, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

Approximately 30 skilled craftsmen and artisans will be displaying Christmas ornaments and decorations, needlework, paintings, dolls, dollhouses, woodcrafts and other gift items with a traditional flair.

There will be a Colonial bakeshop featuring special freezer-wrapped holiday foods, such as Christmas candies, cookies and cakes. Light refreshments will be served by young belles and beaus in authentic colonial costume at the Old Dominion Inn.

Adult 'elves' will be at Santa's Secret Shop to assist the young shoppers, and special preview and purchase opportunities will be available on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday prior to the bazaar

Of course, Santa will be at the

Also, the school library will sponsor the sale of the Southern Living 'Party Cookbook.' A living Christmas tree will be drawn for on the day of the event.

Gift-wrapping service will be available for all items purchased at the bazaar.

Indian Springs opens Holiday Home Tour with Harris family's 'deceptive' house

by Bert Seaman

The size of the B.J. Harris home generally fools the first time visitor.

Even though the traditional style brick home in the Cahaba Valley appears to be roomy, it's hard to believe that it contains 6,000 square feet.

However, it does -- and anyone who wants to see how the couple has achieved the effect in the

Comfortable at home

Mrs. B.J. Harris and her son and daughter, Brooks and Neely, make themselves comfortable in their spacious den with its 12-foot ceiling, generous windows and French doors. It won't be long before the room boasts a Christmas tree -- as well as visitors who take the Indian Springs Civic Club's Holiday Home Tour. (Photo by Bert Seaman) way they designed their home, may do so on this year's Holiday Home Tour.

The Harris home and two others will be on the December 9, 10, 11 tour sponsored by the Indian Springs Civic Club.

When their first child was expected, the Harrises decided they wanted a bigger house with more land. So they bought the 2½ acres where their home now stands on Valleyview Drive in Brookfield Estates.

They moved in two weeks before their son Brooks was born, and two years later their daughter Neely arrived.

When you walk through the front door, the polished brick floor in the foyer is the first thing you notice. It extends into the den, which is hidden by the two-sided fireplace directly in front of you.

The wainscoating which encases the fireplace extends from the floor to the den's 12-foot ceiling.

"This is where the Christmas tree goes," explained eight-year old Brooks, pointing to a corner of the room which boasts French doors and a bank of windows overlooking a swimming pool.

When she begins her holiday decorating, Mrs. Harris will also hang pictures she has cross stitched, on the den walls.

Although most of the furnishings in the home are traditional, the mirror over the wet bar in the den and the brass fender and fireplace set on the marble hearth, belonged to Mrs. Harris' grandmother.

With a family who likes to get together -- especially during the holiday season -- the couple incorporated a guest wing into their house plans.

The rambling home also features a downstairs den, where the family spends most of their time. Being photography buffs, Mrs. Harris and her husband have their candid family shots mounted in a montage in the den, and hanging on a wall leading into the upstairs exercise room.

Mrs. Harris has taught at several Shelby County schools, but now that she's no longer working in education, she has more time to spend in her spacious kitchen.

ONE FAMILY IN ALABAMA WILL GET CUSTOMER-DESIGNED SAVINGS ACCOUNTS.

Because now at 1st Southern, "CD" will stand for "Customer Designed" as well as "Certificate of Deposit." As a member of the First Southern Family, you're the one who decides not only how much you want to invest (from $1,000 on up), but also which combination of interest rate and term (in monthly steps from 32 days to 126 months) you want. The high interest you get is made even higher by daily compounding. You even decide how you want to receive your interest monthly or quarterly, coming out to you in cash, to build more interest, transfering directly to your 1st Southern checking or money market account. So if you're already a member of the First Southern Family, drop in to open your new Customer-Designed CD Account. And if not, there's no better time to become one. 1st Southern may be Alabama's biggest savings and loan. But no matter how big we grow, we'll always treat you like family.

The First Southern Family.

Holiday Home Tour

Saying she likes to cook, Mrs. Harris displayed both a traditional oven and a microwave installed in an antique looking cabinet. The room is a pleasure to work in, with plenty of light and flowered wallpaper which even covers the ceiling. With 20 rooms, the house is undeniably big, but despite its size, one civic club member described it as being "homey."

The other homes on the tour will be featured in upcoming editions of the Reporter.

Tickets may be purchased from a civic club member of call 663-4021, 988-0334 for further information.

Horse donated to humane society

Have you or someone in your family been hankering for a horse? How about one to tuck under your Christmas tree?

Dottie and Buddy Argo are donating a horse -- a purebred

Have you or someone in your Arabian, in fact -- to benefit the mily been hankering for a Shelby County Humane Society.

The yearling will be given away Saturday, Dec. 17 at the shelter in Columbiana at noon.

Pi Jemba farm in the Camp Branch area, said that the yearling's dam -- or mother -- is the Argo's mare, Laur-Mari B. The sire is a well known stud on the West coast named Starfix.

Pat Bull, trainer at the Argos

She predicted that the yearling will be a good sized horse -- probably standing about 15 hands when full grown.

Anyone interested in helping with this humane society benefit is asked to call 663-3545, 664-1129, 664-2122, 669-4562.

Flooding will cost millions by David F. Moore Flooding and winds -- perhaps the worst ever in the county -caused in excess of $2 million in damages last weekend.

Although there was never official confirmation on several reported tornadoes, a spokesman for the weather service said it was quite possible the area suffered tornadoes.

In Pelham alone water and wind caused some $1.716 million in structural damage, according to estimates by the Pelham Fire Department. County Civil Defense Director . Bill Tucker placed conservative countywide estimates at $1.91 million in structural damages, and figured -- again conservatively -- that there are 10% more in damage costs that have not yet been reported.

None of the figures include damage to home furnishings, yards and vehicles. Yet already Governor George Wallace has declared a state of emergency and, according to Tucker, is passing statewide figures on to President Ronald Reagan, asking for federal disaster relief.

The unofficial 8.25 inches of rain recorded at the Pelham Post Office from Friday night to Sunday morning, multiplied itself tremendously as runoff sent Bishop Creek flooding into

Wind whips county during record rain

by David F. Moore

Double-barreled, broadside blasts of wind and rain pelted Shelby County last weekend with floods and tornadoes.

First came the rain, torrents of rain which started creeks and rivers flooding their banks late Friday night.

By Saturday morning nearly 300 Pelham residents -- some forced into boats -- were evacuating condominiums, mobile homes and subdivision houses with help from neighbors, fire and police personnel, and the Alabama National Guard. (See related story.) The Red Cross established shelters for the evacuees at Pelham United Methodist Church and Pelham Baptist

At least three county highways in the Chelsea area were closed Saturday by flooding, as were portions of Cahaba Valley Road in north Shelby. Livestock took to high ground to avoid newly

Many victims agreed that the flood waters were deeper, and damage more severe than during the floods of March and April in 1979.

Saturday afternoon the skies cleared for a short time and creeks and rivers returned to their banks. But steady winds hinted of the second barrel Mother Nature had cocked and ready to fire.

Then came the wind. Around 5:30 a vengeful line of 50-mile-an-hour thunderstorms blasted the county from the west.

Wind ripped up massive trees by the roots and downed power lines in several areas. (See related story on Montevallo damages.) Although flooding threatened but did not return, at least one person said she saw a tornado touch down at Indian Springs School about 5:45 p.m.

hear the roar like you usually hear," said ISS French teacher Rick McConnell. "But it must have been a tornado. I don't think just high winds would have knocked down so many trees."

"I never thought I'd be scared of a tornado -until it happened," said 10-year old Adam Thomas who lives with his parents on campus near

Thomas said his mother had gone outside about 5:30 when the wind was picking up, to close the hood on a car and to rescue his sister Laura's cat,

"She saw a big black cloud getting blacker and blacker, and the trees coming down," Thomas said Sunday while his mother was away.

Pelham police reported several calls on a possible toranado about the same time. One man told police he had to abandon his truck on Cahaba Valley Road because of the wind, and a Pelham service station attendent called for number of motorist who stopped there when the main blast of wind hit.

A tree toppled on Lusco's clothing store on US 31, causing a reported $30,000 in damages.

Although there were no official confirmations on the tornado, some three dozen trees were uprooted between State 119 (Cahaba Valley Road) and the western most building on the ISS campus. Had it not been for falling against another large tree, one old oak would have probably fallen on the school library.

Residents along the still swollen Bishop Creek in Pelham took some small comfort in the fact that Saturday night's rains did not send more water swirling into their homes -- many of which had been abandoned and at least partially ruined by flooding.

Red Cross comes to rescue

Tuesday in Alabaster, Red Cross volunteers were just starting to help flood victims who were sorting through their disasters. "We'll be here as long as we're needed," said Roy Jowers, one of nine Red Cross volunteers who helped victims meet their emergency needs at the center on US 31.

"We had more water -and therefore damage -than we've ever had before," Jowers told the Reporter. "These people are upset. They're hurt. But they're taking it great."

He said some of those who have now had to weather two or three such floods have become discouraged.

The Red Cross is providing food, clothes, shelter (for at least two families new to the area who don't have friends), and some medical needs to people whose homes are still soggy messes from the weekend flooding.

Jowers noted that 'clean-up kits' were available to victims at the fire station at Pelham City Hall. The kits include brooms, mops, scouring pads, soap, etc.

It's 'bye bye birdie' in Helena

Several chickens will have to move out of a Helena subdivision.

That was the ruling handed down by Circuit Court Judge Kenneth Ingram last week.

A suit filed by the city of Helena in the fall of 1982 charged Curtis Mims with violating the city's zoning ordinance by keeping farm animals in a single family (R-1) district.

Mims, who lives in Sunnybrook subdivision, argued that the few birds he had were kept as pets to give his Vietnamese father-in-law, who lives with him, something to occupy his time. The judge ruled that the chickens must be moved within 14 days, adding that Mims would not be allowed to keep chickens in the future.

William H. Halbrooks, Mims' attorney, said his client sounded real "down" when he informed him of the judge's decision.

Students exceed state testing average

Shelby County students have scored above the state average on the Alabama High School Graduation Exam. Results of the tests, given to high school juniors for the first time this fall, were released Monday at a press conference held in Mon-

Local students made their best showing on the reading portion of the test. Ninety eight percent of Shelby County students made passing grades compared to 90% statewide.

On the math portion of the test, 90% of the juniors in Shelby County passed (with 1% absenteeism) while the statewide average

Students both here and throughout the state had the most difficulty with language. Eighty-seven percent of the Shelby County students passed (1% were absent); 82% was the average statewide.

Expressing his pride, Superintendent of Education Ellie Glasscox credited administrators, faculty and students for making the above

One of the benefits of the testing, Glasscox told the Reporter, is that "it gives us a good idea of the areas we need to take a harder

Although there were not wide differences among Shelby County schools on reading and math, the superintendent reported that there were greater differences on language scores.

He explained that the language portion of the test deals largely with grammar and composition. Part of it, he said, involves the proper form for writing business letters, while another area deals with the correct way of filling out forms and applications.

"Hopefully, these tests will help us in making wise decisions in formulating our curriculum," Glasscox said.

However, a more immediate goal will be to help students who did not pass some portion of the test, he said.

"We're going to have to regroup and give them some good sound remediation so they can make a passing grade when the test is given again in April," Glasscox said.

State Superintendent of Education Wayne Teague said he was interested in finding out why large numbers of students throughout the state didn't pass all parts of the test, since it is based at a

Other requests denied

Pelham license hike on hold

by Bert Seaman

Increases in Pelham's ad valorem tax from expected new residents may keep business license fees from being raised.

At least that was what Ray Hamilton had in mind Monday when he asked the Pelham City Council to hold off on increasing the fees.

Hamilton, as finance chairman for the council, said he believes the increase in property tax collections from the increase in new residents, will offset the intended increase in license fees.

An ordinance updating the city's privilege license schedule was read at the last council meeting and was to have been voted on Monday.

Under the proposed ordinance business license fees would be based on gross receipts rather than a flat fee.

Hamilton said he wanted to hold off on the proposal until he had a chance to talk further with the Chamber of Commerce and area businesses.

He told the Reporter that businesses have been supportive of city projects including the 1% sales tax that was passed to expand the sewer system.

The council turned down two requests Monday -- one from an existing business, the other from a business that wants to open.

Al Rhia from Southern Resistance Welding had asked the council at a previous meeting to close Parker Drive so the industry could build a loading dock.

The request was denied when the council found that the deadend road was the city's only access to land across Buck Creek.

James Eugene Ryan was turned down for an on-premises liquor license. He told the council that he had purchased the lounge formerly known as the Coo Coo's Nest on U.S. 31 and was enlarging it.

In addition to increasing the seating capacity from 87 to 175, Ryan also reported hooking the business up to the city sewer perience with animal cruelty, Schultz said she had always considered the pic-about the lack of parking space, but Ryan said he was working on getting more room by moving the dirt which now limits parking.

City fathers expressed concern

Without giving a specific reason, the council denied Ryan's request.

Before the vote was taken, Ryan was asked if he had any alternate plans for the business should the liquor license be denied. He said that he didn't.

Another request brought to the council Monday was for speed breakers.

Rev. James Adams presented the council with a petition signed by all but two of the families on Sykes Street in the western section of the city.

"I'm here at your mercy," the minister said, "asking you to do something before a child gets kill-

Adams reported that children played in the street because there is no other place for them to play in that area.

He also called attention to the fact that underbrush has grown up along the street which keeps motorists from seeing the children until they're on top of them.

Councilman Ken Maynard asked the minister to give the council until the next meeting to make a decision so they could take a look at the street.

Maynard also said he would like a recommendation from the police department before the council acted.

"If you can come up with some other answer -- fine. We just want to stop the speeders," Adams declared.

In other business Monday, the council appointed Paul Shebs and Mickey Hardy to fill two vacancies on the Plannning and Zoning Board.

Council members also approved the annexation of three lots in Deer Springs on County 11. Mayor Burk Dunaway said the lots were contiguous to each other and to the city's boundary.

rid of the chickens," the attorney reported.

If the zoning ordinance is strictly enforced, Halbrooks noted that other residents living within the city limits will also have to get rid of livestock.

Arguments by Halbrooks and Frank 'Butch' Ellis, who represented the city, were heard in court September 7. Ellis was then given 21 days to submit a brief and Halbrooks then had an equal amount of time to reply.

Kittens found frozen

by Bert Seaman

Marilyn Schultz is a pushover when it comes to stray animals.

And word of her good samaritan policy has apparently gotten around.

When Mrs. Schultz and her family returned to their home in Eaglewood Estates from a recent out-of-town visit, they found a box in their front yard containing three kittens.

However, the box had apparently been there for a couple of days. The kittens were frozen.

Two of the kittens were huddled next to a Raggedy Ann Doll which was also in the box, Schultz said.

She assumed the reason for the doll being there was an attempt to keep the kittens warm during the cold

"Or it might have been put there to replace the mother," Schultz remarked, "since it looked as though the kittens were still nursing."

Outraged by the incident, Schultz wondered why the owner of the kittens couldn't have at least taken them to the Humane Socie-tures of cute animals from the Humane Society in the newspapers and on tv as "gimmicks." Now she says she wishes the kittens could have lived to be in one of those pictures so someone could have adopted them. Humane Society director Anne Speakman said there are no charges for bringing unwanted or stray animals to the shelter in Columbiana. For more information, call 669-4562.

part of the county, Davenport officially asked the hospital for money needed to fund such programs as mosquito control, the county health department, and mental health services.

However this time, it was the SMC finance committee which was slow to respond. Members would only say that the request will be forwarded to their board of directors.

Davenport insisted that a vote be taken at the next board meeting to put the matter "to sleep" once and for all.

He told the Reporter "Our health department and mental health budget was made pending the receipt of the $250,000." He said that adjustments will have to be made if the request to the hospital is denied.

The commissioner added that the words "tax millage" were never used in the request. "We are asking them to contribute $250,000 to the county to help finance health services," he con-

Calera considers treatment plant bids

by Fred Guarino

After a year's delay, Calera is moving forward once again toward the construction of a new sewage treatment plant. The plant will be costly.

Monday night the city's council opened bids exceeding $2 million for the second time since December of 1982.

Last year the council sought bids to renovate its existing treatment plant with the aid of 75 percent EPA federal funding. However those bids were rejected because they were believed to be too high. Councilmen thought the first bids resulted from confusion on the part of contractors as to what would be involved.

To improve the situation and to reduce costs, the city in turn applied for a federal EPA 'Innovative process' grant which it received. That allows 85 percent funding for construction of the latest design in sewage treatment facilities.

City engineer Ben Carr was then asked to draw up new plans on three possible innovative methods of treatment from which one would be chosen upon receipt of new bids.

All developed in Europe, the three new methods included the Double Schreiber System, the Carrousel System and the Single Schreiber System. The Double Schreiber System would require two basins in which air diffusors would be moved through the sewage.

Systems currently used in the US work oppositely in that sewage is moved through the diffusors instead.

The Carrousel System gets oxygen into sewage by generating turbulence.

The Single Schreiber System is just like the double system except that it requires only one basin. The gist of the matter, according to Carr, is the way oxygen is introduced into sewage to speed up the death of harmful bacteria.

Goodner Construction Company bid $2,636,000 to construct the Double Schreiber System with a $20,000 discount on items not funded by the government.

That company chose not to bid upon the Carrousel System and bid $2,426,000 to construct the Single Schreiber System. The same $20,000 discount was provided for the single system.

Items not funded by the government include such things as access roads to the plant.

Jones Environmental Construction's bid for the Double Schrieber System was $73 to the penny higher than Goodner's bid. However, Jones offered a $22,000 deduction to the city for items not grant covered.

Jones Environmental bid $2,416,675 for the Carrousel System with a $22,000 deduction, and it bid $2,369,237.40 for the Single Schrieber System with a $22,000 deduction as well.

No action will be taken on these bids until they are studied and a recommendation is received

Mayor Carl Prichard thanked Goodner and Jones Environmental for their bids but he said,

"I'm a little disappointed we only had two bidders."

According to City Clerk Lemoyne Payton, the new bids average $500,000 less than those received last year for existing plant renovation.

In other matters:

•James Alverson of the street department was granted permission to hire a replacement for an employee who worked just one day after he was approved at the last meeting.

•Maintenance Supervisor David Jones was given permission to erect stop signs at the intersection of 9th Street and 17th Avenue as long as the city has the materials.

Police Chief Harry Deal agreed that Jones' request was warranted to protect traffic on 9th

•The Calera Rescue Squad reported that it made ten runs during the month of November and that its rescue building has a leak over the spot where the rescue truck is parked.

Checks for computers

Principal Phillip Haynie of Calera Elementary School and Mitzie West, business education instructor for Calera High, receive a welcome gift from Calera Mayor Carl Prichard. Schools get mayor's pay Calera's high school and elementary school both received $1,000 boosts from Mayor Carl Prichard Monday night.

Three years ago, Prichard promised to turn back his mayoral salary for community projects.

In the past, according to Principal Phillip Haynie of Calera Elmentary, those funds have been used by the schools to purchase eyeglasses, textbooks, and workbooks for needy

"I feel there have been real worthy recipients of that aid," Prichard added. But he pointed out that this year personal needs of students have decreased.

In turn, he noted the two schools' fund raising efforts toward the purchase of computers for the provision of modern educa-

"In order to aid that drive, I ask a portion of the money funded by my salary be given to the need of buying computers," Prichard said. He then presented a check for $1,000 to Haynie and a check for $1,000 to Mitzie Weat, business eduction instructor at Calera

High School. "This will help us a great deal," Haynie said. "It will go a long way in helping us buy computers." Calera Councilman Mark Jones added his thanks to the Neighbors pull together

Water, water everywhere. And with it, damage.

But in the soggy mess of destruction that is still to be sorted out by last weekend's flood victims, there are a few glimmering rays of light.

First, as noted three and half deja vu years ago when Civil Defense Director Bill Tucker examined similar damage at Bella Vista, "The only good thing about the flooding is that you see all these people helping each other."

Last weekend this was true again. Neighbors pulled, pushed, and in some cases actually rowed together, all for the common cause of trying to save house and home. The disaster brought families closer together.

Remarkably, through it all there was a sense of humor -- though perhaps that was because it was already too wet for

City and county officials, although only human, jumped into action with almost as much energy as the storm waters. There was, fortunately, some kind of plan, and that is to be commended.

Also on the good news side is the fact that no one was killed. The same did not hold true in April of 1979.

Finally on the good news side, is the report that it's not supposed to rain for at least a few days...

Water, water everywhere. In a somewhat abstact -- although very physical way -- the ordeal served as a reminder that Mother Nature holds the trump cards over all who are mere mor-

Phony ruins Christmas spirit

Why is that someone always wants to ruin the Spirit of Christmas?

It's bad enough during the seaon of giving that there are people who think only "Gimme, gimme, gimme." Combine that attitude with what appears to be a flagrant attempt to rip off a well meaning organization, and you have enough -- almost -- to darken the most joyous of holidays.

For instance: the Terra Ridge Garden Club of Vestavia wanted to share Christmas joy with a needy family in the area. Through the Red Cross the club members were given the name of a family in Pelham.

Initial contact was made to size and type two children for clothes. Everything seemed on the up and joyous up until a club member got a phone call from the grandmother. She related -- reportedly with no remorse -that her daughter had come in about two weeks ago and abruptly died of heart attack.

More or less in the same casual breath she said she needed $100 cash to get some toys out of lay-away. Something sounded fishy. When club members were unable to trace the deceased mother to her reported place of work in Pelham, suspicions darken-

One member called the Reporter for information on the supposed death. No obituary had been printed on the mother. Furthermore, the county health department had no record of her death, nor had the police or rescue squads handled any such cases.

The grandmother hungup on the Reporter when contacted by phone and questioned about the alleged death of her daughter, and the suspicions of the club members.

Merry Christmas.

"We just wanted to help a needy family," a club spokesperson said. "Why lie to us? And it's not so much that we're being taken for a ride, but that (apparently) the Red Cross is."

It would be nice if there was no need -- especially at Christmas.

It would be nice to know that this grandmother -- who shall go unnamed -- was, somehow, telling the truth.

It would be nice to believe that there aren't people in this world that take advantage of well meaning people.

It would be nice if we could all have a Merry Christmas. But maybe not everyone thinks that way.

Letter to the Editor:

Has the Alabama legislature just passed a bill to provide: for the protection of its citizens by insuring swift, sure punishment? NO SIR. They voted YES SIR for Swift Idiotic Release of criminals, under the guise of Supervised Intensive Restitution (SIR).

The purpose of the bill has nothing to do with prison overcrowding. That could be solved in 24 hours by inmate built stockades, which violates no Federal Court edict.

So why SIR? Promote tourism? Certainly this 90-day skiddo law should attract roving bands of crooks from all over our nation, and perhaps from abroad if properly advertised.

SIR bill denounced Or, did our legislators not wish our fair state to play second fiddle to Tennessee in the corrupt pay-as-you-go, or go-as-you-pay plan? Since SIR grants one man, the Prison Commissioner, unbridled authority over inmate release, the Parole Board has been eliminated as middleman. And the public be damned.

Editor's note -- House Bill 22, the SIR bill recently passed the State Senate 23-7, and the House 95-4. County legislators Frank 'Butch' Ellis, Sonny Moore, and John Tanner voted for the bill.

Doctor gets vote of thanks

Letter to the Editor: I would like to say a few words about Dr. Frank Abernathy. I have been taking my mother and daddy to him for several years now and he has been so kind and caring to them I just want to say that Dr. Abernathy is one of the finest doctors we have in Shelby County. Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member FDIC.

He called at eight o'clock, November 27, 1983. The last time I saw him it must have been in the early 20's or the late teens. But he called tonight at eight o'clock. And what did we talk about? Get out and hitch and I'll tell you.

We talked about Millard Crumpton, who worked for Uncle Sam and did a marvelous job. We talked about Roland Lester who married Bernice Hartsfield and reared three pretty girls on their farm on the Chelsea road.

We talked about Howard Hill and the Longfellow Literary Society and another guy and the Poe Literary Society. And how they played against each other, the Poes and the Longfellows, time after time.

We talked about Claude Edwards and basketball on a frozen court and a "goose lot" next to Harry Gordon's barn, and Johnie Mooney and his buggy, and the football field with little pieces of skin scattered about.

We talked about bird dogs and hunts over half the county and big brown birds that fanned out on the side of sage hills. And the little wild birds of today that flush fifty feet ahead of the dogs and fly half a mile and light in scrub oak

We talked about Mary Peters who taught us English in spite of ourselves, and Mary Luman who made our eyes hurt, and the Kingdom and Four Mile and folks from both places who came to school at Shelby County High.

We talked about pitching and guys coming to bat and the things we did to get 'em out. We talked about guys who have slipped away and girls who are sleeping on hills somewhere, remembering them as if it were yesterday and we were all young and full of vinegar.

We talked about Gerald Fulton and Frank Fulton and Fred Harrison and Alex Fancher, and that maybe we ought to get together and talk big talk and remember and pretend -- all us who are still around watching the years pile up.

And then the time was gone, like a bird flying, and we hung up, and we hoped it wouldn't be so long the next time. Skillet Bird on this end of the line and Bill Whorton on the other end, skipping down the road to yesteryear on a cold November night.

Fred's Corner

by Fred Guarino

Hello, Shelby County. Welcome once again to Fred's Corner.

I do not intend for this column to be sports related every time it appears. But this week, if you'll bear with me, I'd like to mix a little bit about sports with some ideas I have about the goings on in this county's government...

First, as you will notice in the sports section, we have listed the winners of All County football awards and those who were named as honorable mentions. In running that annual list, something comes to mind that I feel I must get off my chest. You often see high school football teams like Montevallo, Thompson and Calera which are traditional winners. As it would naturally follow, those teams usually get most of the glory, the titles and honors... coach of the year, all county players, area and region champion-You also see teams like Chelsea (2-8), Briarwood (2-7) and Pelham (4-7), to name a few. Often you hear people at these places crying for a winning program -- witness four coaches in four football seasons at Chelsea. To me, people who see only the winning and who want only material honors -- imitation gold plated trophies, pieces of parchment with some high sounding words enscribed -- are missing a very important point about high school athletics.

Sports are accepted in high school because they provide fellowship, fun, and teach people to work together for a goal. Sports also serve as a rallying point for pride which makes school into something more than a place where cold education is served.

"It's not whether you win or lose but how you play the game..." so the old adage goes. In my book, if young men and women learn these high ideals, whether or not they win or lose on the scoreboard matters little. They are all win-

Too, people often forget that in high school, a coach cannot recruit his players -- at least not legally. He or she must take those who want to participate, teach them, then field the best team they possibly can. If the coach gets 100 percent effort from his or her charges but the talent isn't present, a victory is still won.

The youngsters have learned to place the whole above the self. They have learned to work for a common goal. They have learned both humility, and to maintain dignity in the midst of disappointment.

Winning is nice, but it isn't everything. Montevallo Coach Richard Gilliam told his players prior to their playoff loss to Handley, "No matter what happens here tonight, I love you."

To me, that is what sports is all about.

Now for county goings on.

For months I have watched the Shelby County Commission drag its feet over important issues.

The commission created an airport authority, when expansion of the airport was already opposed, then left the new body powerless. The delays were most likely based on that opposi-

Only at the last commission meeting was a document even taken under consideration to give the airport authority even limited control and limited funding.

The need for tax funds from Shelby Medical Center are so important that not getting them could mean the wrecking of the county's budget. But for several months, the commission made no effort to even ask for those funds.

I believe that if the commission has the guts to make decisions -- popular or not -- it should have the guts to see those decisions carried out. Quickly.

If the commission felt it needed an authority to run the county's airport, it should have created that authority and given it the control necessary immediately. If it decided it needs money from SMC, then why hasn't it asked for

If the commission was unsure of its actions, I wonder why they took any steps at all.

It's time Shelby County's Commission does what it thinks is necessary for progress and get on with business. Post haste.

The Alabama Scene

by Bob Ingram

Once upon a time special sessions of the Alabama Legislature were very rare. In fact, their very name---extraordinary---suggested they be called only for some great governmental

Not any more. Extraordinary sessions have become quite ordinary. Gov. George Wallace loves them, and well he should. At the rate he is going, through the use of special sessions he will have achieved most of his legislative goals before the 1984 regular session begins.

Two weeks ago he called the lawmakers in to address the prison problems; this week it has been the oil severance tax; and before the Christmas holidays there may be another to generate upwards of $40 million for the Highway Department. There is evidence that Wallace's Christmas Present to the people will be a 2-cents-per-gallon increase in the gasoline

Thus far Gov. Wallace has escaped much criticism for the rash of special sessions. The cost to the taxpayers is considerable, even more so in the light of the recent legislative pay raise.

An argument could be made that the prison problems were of such magnitude that a special session was justified, but there is no reason why the oil severance tax legislation could not have been resolved in the regular session. The same is true of the financial problems in the Highway Department. Two months isn't going to make that much difference.

Speaking of the legislative pay raise, apparently the lawmakers have heard from some of their constituents on this subject. More than a half-dozen different legislative pay proposals have been introduced in the current session. One of the most remarkable turnabouts on the subject has come from a legislator who supported the huge raise but has since been "born again" and has introduced a constitutional amendment which would prohibit future lawmakers from raising their ay during their term of office. That's sort of like closing the barn door after the jackass has gotten out...

Dr. Fred Whiddon, president of the University of South Alabama, must think the sky is falling on him. Not only is the Wallace Administration seeking title to 7,000 acres of property owned by the university (property which reportedly has more oil under it than the Beverly Hillbillies ever dreamed of), but also pending is a bill which would fire all the South Alabama trustees. The trustees are folks who hire (and fire) presidents...

A legislative committee is going to make a probe to determine if Crum Foshee should continue to serve as assistant director of the Department of Aeronautics at $43,000 a year. The department's director, Jim Rowe, says Foshee hasn't hit a lick at a snake since assuming the job, and has implied he wouldn't recognize an airport if he saw one. The problem is that Foshee was appointed at the insistence of Gov. Wallace, and Rowe may soon find out the real meaning of the old truth: Wallace may not always be right...but he's always boss.

Top coach, All County football team named

The 2A Montevallo Bulldogs were not only winners of Area 7, Region 4 high school football honors. They also are owners of an outstanding 10-2 record this year.

On top of that, they are the only Shelby County team to reach the state playoffs.

As might be expected, Montevallo's Richard Gilliam has been elected by his peers as Shelby County Coach of the Year for that ac-

In addition, the Bulldogs landed five players on the annual All County football team.

The announcement was made last Wednesday night by Vincent's Harold Garrett, who serves as president of the Shelby County Coaches' Association.

Also not surprising was the fact that Thompson High School, under the leadership of new coach Doug Wheeler, placed five players on the All County team as well.

A traditional 3A power, Thompson posted a 9-2 record and was the only team to defeat Montevallo in the regular season.

All County players from Montevallo were seniors: fullback/linebacker Barry Worthy; tailback/linebacker Jeff Chism; tightend/linebacker Dwayne Jackson; quarterback/ safety Taylor Blackwell; and tight end/tackle Rick Dobson.

All County Warriors were seniors: runner/defensive back Luvell Bivins; tightend/tackle Scottie Hawkins; runner/defensive end Max Brown; linebacker Chris Green; and defensive end/flanker Tim

The 3A Pelham Panthers suffered a disappointing 4-7 record when better things were expected. But Pelham managed to place three players on the All County squad.

Panther honorees were seniors: quarterback Ricky Hayes; fullback Gary Howard; and guard Danny Turner.

While the Shelby County Wildcats were much improved this year, the struggling 3A squad also managed only a 4-7 season.

All Countians for SCHS were seniors: defensive end/tailback Pat

Wallace and linebacker/tackle Jasper Carden. The 2A Vincent Yellow Jackets posted three wins against eight losses in 1983, and placed three standouts on the All County football junior guard Rouglas Datcher; and junior tight end Bruce Hamilton.

Vincent's honors went to senior quarterback Eddie Reynolds;

Some folks were expecting the 2A Chelsea Hornets to be stronger than recent seasons this year under new coach Gene Hulsey. But the best the Hornets could do was a 2-8 season.

Still, standout senior quarterback Jason Wiggins won enough respect from his opposition to be named as an All County player. The 1983 season was something of a learning experience for the

Briarwood Christian Lions. The former champion of the private Alabama Christian Athletic Conference, found itself learning to handle defeat as an associate, 2A member of the public Alabama High School Athletic Association. But even with a 2-7 record, the Lions had pride, and they had a star in senior quarterback Bobby Welch who made the All County team.

For the Calera Eagles, 1983 was not everything they wanted it to be but it wasn't at all bad either. A traditional 1A power, the Eagles concluded the past gridiron schedule with a respectable 7-3 record and their 13th straight winning season. Only the goal of state playoff action eluded them. For their efforts, the Eagles placed two outstanding players on the All County team in seniors, linebacker Todd Killingsworth and guard/linebacker Ken LeSueur.

Honorable Mention All County players were as follows:

Pelham: juniors tightend Jackie Johnson and quarterback/cornerback Tony Johnson; and senior flanker Jim Gorman.

Shelby County: senior linebacker/tailback Curtis Sherman. Thompson: senior quarterback/cornerback Gordon Kenney and senior tackle John Douglass;

Chelsea: senior receiver Johnnie Sands. Montevallo: junior tailback/defensive end Anthony Prentice; senior tackle/guard Clyde Sailes; junior defensive end/guard James Lucas; and junior tackle Lonnie Layton. Vincent: junior tackle Cornelius McGinnis and senior end Otis Kidd.

Calera: senior fullback Bobby Spence and senior linebacker Edwin Milstead.

The All County football team and honorable mention awards do not attempt to form an offensive and defensive team by position. It simply names those whom the coaches felt were the best players in the While senior players did take a lion's share of the All County honors, that too was not a condition for nomination.

Pelham breaks through

by Fred Guarino

It wasn't popular with the crowd. Even Coach Don Piazza said it seldom worked.

But popularity aside, nothing stopped the Shelby County Wildcats from playing a game of 'freeze ball' with the Pelham Panthers last

The game turned out to be a 52-34 defeat for the Wildcats, but Panther fans were still disgusted. However, there was reason behind the mad strategy -- and it almost paid off for SCHS. You see, Piazza knew his team was 1-3 on the year, having been blown out by teams with greater height. His squad -- which only averages 5'9" -- was being beat by spreads from 20 to 44 points. Pelham, on the other hand, was blessed with height -- at least a 6' average -- and had lost to Childersburg by just two points. They beat powerful Mountain Brook 60-53 earlier for a 1-1 season mark. "We can't even rebound with them," Piazza said before the tip off. "We'll play a freeze tactic unless Pelham plays us man-to-man instead of a zone.'

Pelham is famous for the zone defense which has so far been devastating against the short Shelby County team this year.

The Wildcat coach said he just hoped his team had enough quickness to steal the ball and get the turnovers. That would be the key to a victory if everything went as planned.

Keep cool

Shelby County High School basketball coach Don Piazza tells his men to use the "freeze play" during a contest with Pelham High School. Piazza's squad came close but got no cigar for its efforts. (Photo by

He confided that his squad would wait until only four minutes remained in the last quarter to go after the Panthers.

"If we can get it down to a four minute game, I think we've got a shot at winning," he said. He also predicted that Pelham would not beat his squad by more than eight points unless they got the breaks.

But things got off to a shaky start for Piazza's team. First Pelham blew a little of the cover off the freeze game by coming out in a man-

Neither Piazza nor his squad had expected the Panthers to ditch the zone so quickly. It would have looked better for SCHS if the Wildcats could have at least maintained the pretense of trying something to draw Pelham out.

Instead, fans saw through the plan and were vocally upset. "Booooo...booo..." the crowd constantly shouted through the first

In spite of the slight thaw, the freeze still seemed to be working. Pelham did not score until over three minutes elapsed in the first Shelby County maintained enough defense and took only those high percentage shots in the first period to make it a dull, 8-4 Pelham lead.

"If they are going to play ball like that... they ought not to have a basketball team," one angry Pelham supporter erupted from the side

Still, Piazza and his Wildcats stuck to their slow, cold game, and Cecil Wood hit a beauty of a basket at the buzzer to pull SCHS within five (18-23) at the half.

Even though the crowd was dissatisfied, something seemed to be going right for the Wildcats. The SHCS squad attempted only 19 shots from the floor in the first two periods and made seven. Pelham tried to go against the freeze and the Wildcat defense 23 times and hit only nine of those.

The third period was something of a stunner for Panther fans. The Wildcats opened up just enough to take a 26-25 lead at one point and trailed by just two points at the buzzer 27-29.

Then something started going wrong for SCHS.

It opened the fourth period shooting, stealing and shooting again -but the buckets wouldn't fall.

Balls rolled in and out and round and round the goal time after time. When it was all over SCHS had fallen to its fourth defeat of the year 52-34.

"I think it would have worked if we have got a few lay-ups and free throws," said a dejected Wildcat O'Neal Williams.

However, Pelham Coach Tony Taylor was, surprisingly, showing relief despite the expected win by his squad. His team had beaten the freeze and yet he still seemed shaken.

"If they had hit a few lay-ups it would have been a long night for us," Taylor said. "He's (Piazza's) coached the freeze before and does it well. It's hard to defend. Our kids aren't used to playing that kind of basketball."

He added that two years ago the Wildcats beat Pelham with the very

At least one Pelham player also seemed relieved to get out of the game alive. He took into account the Wildcats' tough defense which accompanied the freeze play.

"If I had held the ball, I would have eaten it. They would have shoved it down my throat," Panther Doug Patton told spectators

"We weren't expecting it (the freeze). They constantly ran around and we're used to a fast paced game," he said.

While SCHS dropped to 1-4 on the year, at least one thing was acmplished. The loss was by their lowest margin of the year -points.

On the other side of the coin Pelham upped its season to 2-1 behind the determined shooting and rebounding of Brian Hughes. Hughes manged 19 points and 21 rebounds -- despite playing in the slowest contest of the season.

Terry Cottingham led SCHS with seven points.

UM Ladies and male Falcons off to good start

The Montevallo Lady Golden Falcons raised their season record to 4-2 with wins over Jacksonville State, 79-38, and Troy State, 70-63.

In the contest against Jax State, the Falcons jumped out to a 44-20 halftime lead and never looked back. The final margin of 41 points is the most lopsided win in the school's history. Montevallo shot 54% from the floor, and outrebounded the taller Gamecocks.

Karen Scott and Sharen Douglas led the scoring with 14 points each, followed by Diana Olszewski, 13, and Judy Perkins, 12.

Troy State battled to the end, before losing to the UM women. Montevallo shot 59%, but was outrebounded by the taller Tro-

Karen Scott led the team with 26 points and Judy Perkins scored 18.

"The team is really starting to play well," said coach Bud Childers. He noted that the team's two losses were to national powers, North Alabama and Berry College. Other wins were over UA-Huntsville and Fort Valley State.

Olszewski and Robin Haire. First off the bench are Ruth Perkins (a Montevallo HS graduate), Lynette French and Pam Johnson.

Next game is against Talladega College Saturday night at 7 pm. in Myrick Gym.

The UM Falcons now boast a record of 6-1 with wins last week over Talladega College, 87-55, and Troy State, 62-55.

The team jumped out to a 37-22 halftime lead over The starting team is composed Talladega and came out in the second half to blow away the Tornadoes.

Richard Dorsey paced the game, scoring 22 points, 7 rebounds. Anthony Glaude chipped in 14, and Kennedy King had Coach Bill Elder played his entire bench in the game. In the Troy State game, the Falcons shot a blistering 60% from the field, and Elder called it the best defensive game of the year. They shut down Troy's inside game. "Our defense was the difference," Elder said. "They never got their offense on track."

The offense was paced by Anthony Glaude with 19 points.

Judy Perkins has been tabbed as the NAIA District 27 Player of the Week. The 5'5" sophomore guard from Scottsville, Ky. was instrumental in the Golden Falcons going 2-0 last week.

She scored 12 points and dished out 11 assists in a 79-38 win over Jacksonville State, and had 18 points and 9 assists in a 70-63 win over Troy State. She shot 75% from the field and 86% from the free throw line in the two games.

Perkins is the team's second leading scorer at 14.0 ppg, is shooting 56% from the field and

Vincent 85-pounders reach top

Vincent's 85-lb Raider football team has risen to the top of the Shelby County Youth League.

With a season record of 5-1, the Raiders were tied with Childersburg for first place honors until their last meeting of the year.

Under the direction of coaches Rodney Driggers, Jimmy Earl Brasher and Bobby Howard, the 85-lb super team easily blew Childersburg out of the picture with a 46-12 victory.

Mark Davis, age 10, led the 14 man Raider squad in scoring and rushed for an incredible 1,280 yards. That was good enough to share Co-Most Valuable Player honors with 10-year-old Corey

Kidd rushed for 970 yards and gained 425 yards in the passing

But even with these two outstanding performers getting glory, 10-year-old quarterback Earl Kidd took Most Valuable Offensive Player honors. Apart from his passing, he rushed for a total of 250 yards.

Most Valuable Lineman honors went to 10-year-old Shane Weldon who led his teams in quarterback sacks.

The Hustler Award went to Steve Moore, age 10, who led in tackles and who also handled punting duties.

Ten-year-olds Steven Davis and Rod Wallace also grabbed their share of glory. Davis, a center, was the Most Improved Player and Wallace was the team's Most Valuable Defensive player.

Other team members were: Eight-year-olds: Scott Cummings, Rodney Cleckler and John Nine-year-olds: Heath Fant, Donnie Shel!, Rodney Peterson and Rodney Mann.

Basketball shifts to high gear

Basketball season has shifted into high gear and while some teams are simply doing what was expected, there have been some pleasant surprises.

Take the Chelsea Hornets for instance. Now 2-2 on the season, Mike Sims' squad recently finished second in the Fayetteville Tournament. The Hornets whipped Indian Springs 52-46 on the shooting of Steve Guthrie, Steve Shelton and Jason Wiggins with tallies of 15, 12 and 11 points respectively. Keith Welch and Wiggins led the team in rebounding with eight boards each.

In an 88-58 loss in the championship contest, the Hornets were paced by Shelton with 14 points and Wiggins with eight rebounds.

The Vincent Yellow Jackets under the direction of Coach Richard Crumpton are also 2-2 on the season.

Playing in the Mid State Tournament, the 'Jackets lost to Sylacauga 83-57 but rebounded to beat Lincoln 61-42 for third place honors.

Bruce Hamilton led his squad with 22 points in the first contest while Tony Hamilton grabbed 11 rebounds.

In the second battle, Tony Hamilton scored 20 points and Bruce Hamilton got 14 rebounds. Making the All Tournament team were the two Hamilton boys and Eddie Reynolds. The Shelby Academy Raiders are also making a very good showing. Under the leadership of Coach Dewayne Kervin, that team recently finished in third place in the Berney Points Tip-Off Tournament and upped their season record to 2-1. The Raiders whipped Berney Points 40-27 in opening round action, lost to Coosa Valley Academy 46-58 in second round competition and then beat Cahawba in the consolation match 44-24.

Vince Pickett led the team with 19 points and Dennis Attaway led his squad with 14 rebounds against Berney Points.

It was Attaway leading in the scoring with 21 points and Pickett leading in rebounds with 15 against CVA. And, Attaway led in scoring with 13 points against Cahawba while Pickett and Jim Lee tied for top rebounds with ten each.

Attaway was named to the All Tournament Team.

Among those teams doing what has been expected of them are the Thompson Warriors.

Now 4-1 on the year, the Warriors whipped, and I mean whipped, Stanhope-Elmore 101-69.

Little Luvell Bivins, 5'7" tall, scored 23 points to lead his team against the Mustangs. Chris Thomas scored 20 points and led in rebounds with ten.

The Warriors fell recently however to Holy Family 84-75 for their first defeat of the

Chris Thomas led his squad in that game with 23 points and 18 rebounds. Unfortunately, Indian Springs School is also doing as expected with a record of 1-6.

The team coached by Greg Vanhorn lost recently to Hackneyville 56-34, beat Moody 45-43, lost to Hackneyville again 52-46, lost to Weogufka 77-70, lost to Chelsea 52-46, and lost to Altamont 58-50.

Against Moody, Steve Hall and Evin Goldberg scored 11 points while David Garcia grabbed 12 rebounds.

Now 2-4 on the year, the Shelby County Wildcats bounced back from their loss to Pelham by beating Fultondale 67-55.

An unpredictable team, there are no expectations against which to judge the Wildcats. But Terry Cottingham is at least a predictable standout who led SCHS with 24 points and nine rebounds against the latest opposition.

It's much too early to tell how the Calera Eagles will do this year. A team that went 10-15 last season, the Eagles are off to a slow 0-2 start with a 68-51 loss to Maplesville and a 59-50 loss to Briarwood.

No statistics are available on those games.

The Montevallo Bulldogs are another tough team to figure, but they are off to a very good 2-0

After state playoff football action delayed roundball, the 'Dogs opened the season with a 57-33 win over Jemison and a 54-39 victory over Briarwood.

Against Jemison, Taylor Blackwell got 14 points and Terry Rutledge pulled down 13 rebounds. The Briarwood Christian Lions are a team doing what was expected of them. The squad which went 11-7 in 1982 is off to a 3-1 start in 83. The Lions beat Hayden 42-28, Fayetteville 58-55 and Calera

59-50, before losing to Montevallo. Against the Bulldogs, Bob Farris led in scoring with eight points and John Kirkpatrick led in rebounding with six. The Rebels of Coosa Valley Academy finished second in the Berney Points Tip-Off Tournament and Pelham High School with a win against Vestavia. However, updates on these games were not available.

Calera takes time to honor its football heroes

"This group -- in my five years of coaching -- has been the most enjoyable to work with."

That was a very heavy compliment passed out by Calera High School Coach Danny Alverson, Monday night at the annual football awards banquet. But it was one which came from his heart during the school's annual football awards banquet.

"There have been no controversies or internal problems to pull us away from ourselves," he said as he looked over the members of his 1983 squad. "I hoped this season would have continued longer, because this group worked harder than any group before."

The Eagles finished the past season with a 7-3 record for a 13th straight winning year. Highlights included the upset by then 1A Calera over Number 4 ranked 2A Jemison, and the keeping intact of an undefeated home record.

Calera will move into 2A competition under a new six class system next year.

Under the new system, Calera will play Montevallo, Tarrant, Vincent, Fultondale, Jemison, Pelham, Verbena, St. Clair, Chelsea and Brighton.

However, only the games with St. Clair, Chelsea and Brighton will count as area games.

"We're not worried," was Alverson's response when one man at the banquest shouted in disbelief, "Tarrant?"

The coach smiled, looked at his players said, "Y'all aren't supposed to be worried..."

He pointed out that the new system will allow Calera to travel more, enjoy playing before larger crowds at larger schools, and to have more fun. He said he felt Calera would remain competitive.

But it was the awards ceremony for which Alverson had the most feeling and in which he showed the most pride for his

With Alverson's obvious approval, Quarterback Club awards went to Edwin Milstead and Todd Killingsworth for Most Valuable Defensive Players, Ken LeSueur for Most Valuable Lineman and Bobby Spence for Most Valuable Back

The coach was also proud for Darryl Griffith, Dan Campbell, Barry Pickett, Mike West, John Watts, LeSueur, Milstead, Killingsworth, Spence and David Phillips for All Area and All Conference.

He took just as much delight over Killingsworth, Milstead, LeSueur and Spence all being named to the All County team.

But the awards Alverson was most proud of were thosed voted by the team.

Killingsworth, LeSueur and Phillips were elected Captains, Watts was elected Most Improved Lineman, West was elected Most Improved Back, Killingworth was elected the 110 Percent Man and Spence was elected as the teams' Good Sportsman.

Wild wind damage

The porch on Lusco's clothing store in Pelham took the blunt of a giant oak that fell to the wild winds of Saturday evening. Despite the 'cushioning' of the porch, store owners said they lost some $30,000 in merchandise to water damages.

It would take a lot of windmills homes in low lying areas of Pelham.

PPD Chief Bill Bryars said the flooding put to test the emergency preparedness plan his department has been developing.

"The plan worked like a charm," Bryars said.

Using that plan, 297 people were evacuated early Saturday morning from flooding areas of Pelham and sheltered and fed at Pelham United Methodist Church and Pelham Baptist Church.

Working with the evacuees were some 20 PFD firefighters and volunteers, 25-30 guardsmen under Capt. Frank J. Cook, III, from Co. 'B' of the 167th Infantry, some dozen Red Cross volunteers, several radio hams from SCARES, and about 20 Pelham police who worked traffic, Bryars said.

There was plenty to do for everyone.

A survey by the PFD and Red Cross volunteer Roy Jowers breaks down Pelham damage as follows:

Greenpark South: 13 homes destroyed; 63, major damage; 20 minor damage

Southgate Estate: four homes, major damage; nine homes minor damage

Chandalar South: 44 townhouses, major damage; four homes, major damage

Cahaba Valley Estates: 10 homes, major damage; four homes, minor damage

Oak Mountain Estates: nine homes, major damage; three homes, minor damage

Belle Vista: 11 homes destroyed; 18 homes, major damage; 10 homes minor damage.

Burt Reeves of the National Weather Service, said the Cahaba River -- into which Bishop Creek flows -- crested Sunday afternoon at 23-25 feet. Reeves said it was the second highest river level recorded in north Shelby since records were started there in 1975.

No official figures were available for Bishop Creek, but Tucker said that rumors of floodgates being opened at Oak Mountain State Park Lake, thus adding to the flood, were not true

Tucker explained that the dam on the lake does not have floodgates. Instead, whenver the water level in the lake rises, overflow comes over the spillway.

Alabaster street superintendent Jack Zuiderhoek estimated damages there at $75,000 to $100,000. Most of that, he told the Reporter, was in the south end of town.

A private trailer parked behind Thompson High was destroyed, some slide damage was reported, at least one tree hit a house, and damage was reported at Kent's dairy.

Although heavy in Shelby County, rainfall was even heavier in Birmingham, said weather service spokesman Jay Shelley. He noted that the 9.26 inches that fell from 7:35 p.m. Friday, to the same time Saturday, was an area record, exceeding the 8.84 inches that fell July 6-7 in 1916.

Shelley reported that wind gusts near Centreville (southwest of Shelby County) reached 67 mph on Saturday evening.

"I think it was either a very strong down-burst of wind, or a tornado track" that hit Montevallo, possibly Alabaster, and Indian Springs School (see related story).

Washed out feeling

Tired friends

Leo Eddings takes a cigarette break on Sunday with Chandalar friend Larry Butler, whom he'd been helping the past 18 hours with an unscheduled moving assignment. From the washed out boardwalk they have a nice view of Butler's soggy carpet linings.

Wild Cahaba River

The Cahaba, for a second time in as many weeks, became a wild and not so scenic river as heavy rains sent it over its banks last weekend. As evidenced by a view from the Old Montgomery Highway, the banks in lower areas disappeared as the river climbed into surrounding trees, peaking Sunday at a near record 25 feet.

Residents evacuate

Sunday morning flood victims began the soggy job of pulling out ruined carpeting, tossing out soaked furniture, trying to re-crank cars which had been submerged in three feet of water, and searching for out buildings which had disappeared in the wild flowing of Bishop Creek.

"We were some of the lucky ones," said Chandalar townhouse leaser Larry Butler, his clothes and humor now dry. "Mostly what we lost was our downstairs carpeting."

Keeping his losses to a minimum while water climbed a measurable 25 inches inside his home, took a lot of work help from his Alabaster friend Leo Eddings, and a rude awakening early Saturday morning.

"I was ready to kill somebody," he said of the 5:15 a.m. pounding that woke him. He said he was soon thankful that the Pelham fireman had come to the door, and later wished the rude awakening had come an hour earlier.

Butler called Eddings and within an hour, chased by the rising water, they began the backbreaking job of toting furniture upstairs. Soon the carpet started floating.

"It was like walking on one of those Moon-Walks for kids..." he said.

By 7:30 they had bundled Butler's wife and three children into a 2.5 ton National Guard evacuation truck. When they abandoned the condo at 8, Eddings said the water outside was waist-deep. The fast swirling flood had washed several cars down the parking lot.

"That was some pretty powerful water," Eddings told the Reporter.

Meanwhile, unknown to Butler, the evacuation truck had stalled in the flood. His family had been transferred to an armored personnel carrier before eventually being shuttled out to Shoney's, where a bus took them to a Red Cross church shelter.

"There was a lot of confusion with the evacuation," Butler said. "They (national guard and city officials) had a pretty good plan. We're the ones who weren't co-ordinated."

"It hasn't been a fun weekend," Butler continued, adding that Saturday night he and Eddings helped a friend evacuate a trailer in Belle Vista.

However, the "powerful water" had already done the worst of its damage in Belle Vista, in the lower part of Southgate and in Green Park mobile home parks by Saturday morning. Bishop Creek apparently peaked then, and sent several trailers floating off their moorings.

Bob Eastridge phoned a warning to his daughter, Bobbie, and her husband, Donny Castleberry, at their Belle Vista trailer shortly before 1 a.m. By 1:30 the flood was up to car doors and still climbing.

"We took what we could in my car," Mrs. Castleberry said. They spent the night with friends and returned Saturday around 10 a.m. -- in a boat. Water was over 5 feet deep in places.

"My trailer was still where it was supposed to be then," she continued. "We paddled up to the door. The water inside was a foot deep. We turned off the power and got some clothes..."

That's when the trailer started floating.

"That sucker was like a boat -- just swaying in the water," Mrs. Castleberry said. "We ran for the door, left it opened, and paddled out of there fast as we could."

Prior to Saturday, her father, Eastridge, figured he had his flooding problem licked. After his trailer got soaked twice in 1979, he raised its moorings four inches above the highwater marks.

"It didn't do any good," he said. "This time I had at least eight inches inside."

After moving several cars and valuables from

After moving several cars and valuables from harm's way, Eastridge stayed at his Belle Vista trailer until Saturday afternoon when he left to find a tv.

"I was going to watch that Auburn game come hell or high water," Eastridge said. "And sure enough..."

Besides a relative's Buick which washed into the creek, a Cadillac which floated into his trailer, and a tool shed which he had still not located Sunday, Eastridge said there were also some problems with looting in the area. He said he called Pelham police, but couldn't tell that they had done anything about it.

In nearby Cahaba Valley subdivision, not everybody got a chance to watch football Saturday, although those living nearest the creek got a good shot at the high water.

"We were all too tired to watch the game," said Jimmy McDanal, pausing Sunday from a wet moving job from the house he rented on Creekview Drive. "We hadn't had any sleep or

At 1:30 the morning before, a fireman had awakened McDanal, his wife and two kids, with the urgent news of flash flooding.

"That's when we started loading up clothes and furniture," he told the Reporter. "When I called my brother at 3:30, the water was coming in under the doors. About 5:30 the water was up to the floorboard on the pickup truck and we had to start out."

More than five feet of water had filled McDanal's house when he returned by boat that afternoon. Floating -- or sunk -- inside were a refrigerator, freezer, sofas, bedroom suites and an antique kitchen table that once belonged to his great-grandmother.

McDanal said he grabbed the table before it floated out the back door and set it on the roof for safe keeping. That night the strong winds blew it into the creek.

Pelham industrial arts teacher Ray Payne, who moved next to McDanal four months ago, said he and his wife moved stereo equipment and other valuables to the attic before evacuating. When he waded back at 10:30 that morning to get the microwave, "there were fish this big (12 inches) flapping around in here against the walls."

Several people in the Chandalar area did not want to discuss the flood because they said it might hurt real estate values. Payne said his realty agency told him his house had never been flooded before, which is not true.

"Thank God for flood insurance," Payne said over the sound of squishing carpet.

Sign of the times

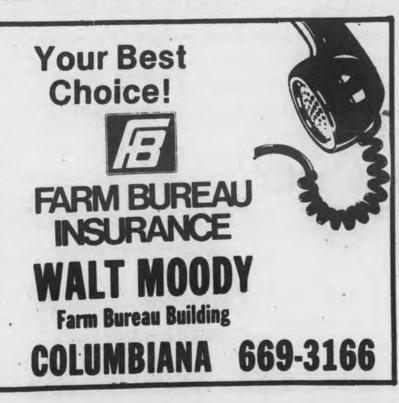

Warnings such as this one on Cahaba Valley Road were a sign of the times Saturday. County highways 47, 49 and 69 were awash in the Chelsea area. Despite scattered mishaps, there were no fatalities in all the flooding.

The reported tornado that struck Indian Springs School campus Saturday night, toppled two cedar trees in French teacher Rick McConnell's back yard. If indeed it was a tornado that hit, it makes two that McConnell has lived through.

Bill would reveal raise seekers

The legislature is taking steps to revamp the general procedures now followed for setting its pay and expense increases.

The general procedure -followed to a 'tee' on the first day of last month's special session -was to slip the change through by a voice vote. No record was taken of who voted how, and the increase was to go into effect at once.

As a result of heavy public criticism, Senator Ted Little of Auburn last Wednesday introduced a bill that, if passed, would require a recorded vote on any type of raises. The bill was co-sponsored by Senator Frank 'Butch' Ellis of Columbiana.

"I guess I'm a little sensitive about this pay raise," Ellis told the Reporter in explaining the support he's throwing at the new bill. "I sort of want to wash my hands of it (the way the raise was handled.)"

Representative John Tanner also said that he and Phil Poole of Tuscaloosa are co-sponsoring a bill in the house mandating a roll-call vote for legislative pay increases. Tanner said Tuesday that they have 35 signatures so (Tanner also noted that he is working on a bill to abolish the problem causing "voting islands" in the north Shelby and Brantleyville areas. It is expected to be introduced in the regular Little also introduced a constitutional amendent to prohibit the legislature from raising the pay for the term they are presently serving.

Ellis said the bill was reported favorably out of the Judicial Committee that he and Little serve on.

Also last week a constitutional amendment was proposed that would establish an independent commission to make yearly studies and recommendations on pay and expense allowances for the legislators. Too, a bill was introduced that would limit the lawmakers' raises to accumulated cost of living increases since their

Handicapped training program is good for clients and business

Replacing a label or part of a label on a product could be a real headache for an industry.

But one Shelby County firm recently faced with that problem saved the headache and turned the task over to a group of workers in Alabaster who welcomed the challenge.

The group is Workshop, Inc., a program which trains individuals who are in some way handicapped. However, their work is not handicapped.

Program Director for the Shelby County workshop, Helene Long, describes clients' work as "quality and quantity." She also notes with pride, the workshop's fast delivery service.

According to Long, individuals are referred to the training program by high school counselors, mental health workers and the state's vocational rehabilitation service.

Trainees are paid as they learn, and their earnings depend on how much they produce.

The weekly payday on Friday is a high point in their lives, reports Maryanne Martin, who assists with the progam.

Many of their clients have never been given the opportunity to succeed, Long points out, stressing that, "success is the primary purpose of our pro-

Chilton gas cut brings help

An emergency with gas lines in the towns of Thorsby and Jemison brought several Shelby Countians to the rescue Tuesday.

A major natural gas line was accidentally cut behind the Thorsby city hall Tuesday morning by a private contractor engaged in construction.

This cut off service to the entire area.

The Public Service Commission declared the situation an emergency, and asked Montevallo City Manager Don Hughes to advise on how to proceed.

Hughes and Montevallo gas crew members were on hand to help the two towns re-light all the pilot lights at individual homes and businesses served by the gas company.

At press time Hughes said help would also be sought from Calera and Columbiana gas workers.

'WE'VE GOT IT GOOD' IN SHELBY COUNTY

Apples for teachers

At the workshop for first year teachers, Thompson Elementary first grade teacher Marcia Allen shows Pelham High teacher Sandra Peacock the apple cutouts she made on the Ellison machine in the Board of Education's Teacher Resource Center. The two teachers chose the Make and Take session of the all day workshop.

Teacher Talk=

Editor's note -- Teacher Talk is an occasional column writen by members of the Shelby County Education Association for the Reporter. Resource Librarian Pat Walden has worked out of the central education office for one year, and was librarian at Chelsea for seven years.

by Pat Walden

Today's teacher is bombarded with a variety of responsibilities -- from taking up lunch money to motivating, disciplining, and generally meeting the various needs of the numerous young people she/he sees every day.

A lot of professional and public attention has been placed on student's needs, and rightfully so. Those needs are the justification for the existence of schools and the educational process.

However, the additional responsibilities placed upon the classroom teachers for extensive evaluation and documentation of the needs of their students, have significantly increased the teacher's needs. Sometimes a little help is needed -- help in the form of someone who could point out avenues not tried, concepts not explored, or suggest materials that could supplement and reinforce the issues being taught.

The recently established Resource Center and Resource Teacher Program in the Shelby County School System is a step toward extending a helping hand to better meet the needs of teachers.

With that goal in mind, the Resource Center was established; a place where teachers could come and look for fresh ideas, or perhaps implement their own ideas in the form of teaching materials. The center also houses an audiovisual collection of materials that correlate to the adopted curriculum.

The center is relatively new and still in the formative stages. The Resource Teacher Program began three years ago and has grown steadily since. The Resource teachers are: Glenda Mims, who specializes in the area of math and science; Gayle Robbins, who works with teachers in the areas of reading and language arts; and Pat Walden, Rescource Librarian.

The Resource Teachers are not supervisors and they stress the fact that they are not in an evaluative position. They laughingly describe their jobs as, "Whatever needs to be done", and have found themselves on the road delivering textbooks, judging various student competitions, organizing academic tournaments and implementing professional development activities for teachers.

They stress the importance of their job is to give input -- or a helping hand as it were -- to those teachers who call upon them.

New teachers get lesson in cardboard carpentry at all day workshop

by Bert Seaman

What could a classroom teacher do with a 3'x4' piece of cardboard?

Would you believe..

•Make a bulletin board

Make a puppet theatreMake a grocery store

•Make a room divider, or a chalk board? First year teachers in the Shelby County School System made those and other items last week when they learned about cardboard carpentry.

The session was one of the three options offered the teachers at an all-day institute Friday.

This is the second year that a workshop has been held to assist new teachers with their responsibilities in the classroom.

Dr. Kevin Walsh from the University of Alabama in Birmingham opened the program with a talk on classroom management and discipline.

Then the teachers were given a choice of activities for the afternoon. They could do classroom observation, or remain at the board of education office for either a 'Make and Take' session or one on 'Cardboard Carpentry'.

Melissa Sherrill, a kindergarten teacher at Vincent Elementary, was one of the new teachers who learned what could be done with a sheet of cardboard, a skill saw -- and a little imagination. She decided her square would serve as a puppet theatre and grocery store.

Resource teacher Glenda Mims explained that chalk board paint could be applied to any leftover scraps for students to write on.

Susan Davis, a kindergarten teacher from Shelby, cut an apple tree from her piece of cardboard. She decided it would be a good way to teach conduct by putting each child's name on an apple and then sticking a worm on the apple whenever a child didn't follow the rules.

Gayle Robbins, another resource teacher at the board office, also assisted with the cardboard carpentry workshop.

In the 'Make and Take' workshop where resource teacher Pat Walden assisted the teachers, the Ellison Lettering machine was in constant use. In addition to lettering, the machine is also capable of producing designs.

Participants in that workshop also used the resource center's laminating machine to laminate file folders and work sheets.

Dr. Linda Nolen is in charge of the first year teacher program which will be held again February 2.

Hearing set in $4.8 million lawsuit

An attorney for the Shelby County Board of Education has requested a court ruling in favor of the board -- without a $4.8 million lawsuit against the board going to trial.

A. Scott Jr., is set for a hearing December 20 in Circuit Judge Kenneth Ingram's court.

Eight Shelby County school officials were named in the suit filed in June 1982 by former teacher Lynn Horton.

Horton, who taught the visually impaired, contended in her suit that the combined negligence of the eight officials was the reason for the non-renewal of her con-

The board action was taken with regard to the non-tenured teacher's contract at a May 1981, board meeting.

Defendants named in the suit are: former Superintendent of Education Charles Knowles, board chairman Barbara Whitman, board members Bill Fancher, John P. Sumners, J.H. Upchurch and former Board member Claude Lee.

Also named are: Carol Buttel, supervisor of the visually impaired, and Linda Nolen, supervisor of special education.

Horton contended in her suit that the two supervisors were negligent in performing their duties by not properly evaluating her, and that the board was negligent in adopting that evaluation. The former teacher says in the suit that her personal and professional reputation were damaged as a result of the combined negligence of the defendants.

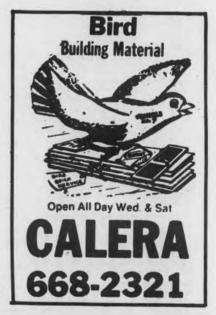

Besides asking for compensatory damages in the amount of $100,000 from each defendant, as well as $500,000 each in punitive damages, Horton also asked to be reinstated in her former job.

In his motion, Scott argues that "as a matter of law, a nontenured teacher has no right, statutory or otherwise, to be re-

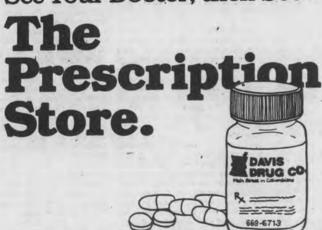

He further stated that "the plantiff has not made any allegation that the nonrenewal of her contract in any way stigmatized her or injured her."

With "no genuine issue as to any material fact, the defendant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law," Scott says in his motion.

The motion hearing before Judge Ingram has been set for 10 a.m.

Alabaster stands firm on waste bid

by Marcia M. Sears

Earl Adair of Center Point Garbage Service put up a good argument to the Alabaster City Council Monday night. But the council unanimously voted in favor of Whitfield Sanitation of Calera to service the city's waste disposal.

Adair argued that his firm had actually bid lower than Whitfield, based on serving 62 commercial businesses in the city.

But councilman Cal McCune told Adair that the city is obligated to serve over 152 commercial establishments, and that Adair's rate of $10 per business would make the total bid higher. Adair had bid $3.30 for residential service, as against the Whitfield bid of $3.49 for both types of service.

Adair's arithmetic showed an $8,000 saving over the three year period of the contract, but the council members, by averaging in the residential service with the commercial, stood firm that the Whitfield bid was lowest.

In other business the council decided to: · install two spotlights at the library for $550, with monthly fee to operate.

• name Jesse Charles Payne as a reserve policeman.

• appoint all council members as committee to study future of fire department.

· ask the legislature to reaffirm the corporate limits of Alabaster. • approve paving a 40 x 90 ft. strip at the city owned building across the tracks from the city hall. The paving is a prerequisite to renting the space formerly occupied by the library to a group of lawyers at $500 per month for three years, with an option to renew. Utilties will be included. • hear a report from Cal McCune on the Christmas parade, which was moved from Saturday to Sunday because of the storm. First place float was Whole Style Laundry; 2nd place, FOP Toys for Tots,; 3rd place Thompson Middle School. Pat Shelton of W. Navajo Drive won the computer, and Diane Stomstrom of Pelham won a Birmingham

Congressman tours county

Since Congress has recessed until January 23, 1984, Congressman Richard Shelby is touring his district.

Tuesday brought him to Shelby County, where he lunched in Alabaster and held town meetings in Pelham, Montevallo and Calera.

Accompanied by press secretary Marsha Lefkovitz, Shelby iterated again some of his well known positions: federal budget deficits must be reduced. the Russians cannot be trusted, a deductionless "flat tax" should be considered, and a nuclear "freeze" will reduce our security.

Questions he was asked by concerned citizens included how he felt about: the new tax on some social security recipients who receive more than $25,000 yearly even if their income is derived from previously tax exempt bonds (Shelby is cosponsoring a repealer); tobacco subsidies (impossible to detach from farm bills needed by soybean growers in our district); a federal minimum drinking age (a serious problem, but best left to states since Prohibition did not work); and foreign purchasers of American farmland (not many in Alabama).

Successful mixture

A mirror which once hung in a Birmingham saloon is now a focal point in the living room of the North Shelby County home of Joan and John Ost. They have successfully combined furniture styles -- including pieces from a Welsh castle -- to make their home attractive and comfortable. The home will be open to visitors on the Holiday Home tour this weekend. (Photos by Bert Seaman)

'Ost Bunch' opens doors to home tour

by Bert Seaman

Joan Ost likes to decorate with antiques.

But with a family that might be compared to the "Brady Bunch" on tv, imagination rather than money accounts for the furnishings which make the home both interesting and livable.

"I'm always looking for a bargain," Ost explains with a smile.

Anyone interested in seeing some of her 'finds' and how she has successfully combined different furniture styles, will want to go on the Holiday Home tour this weekend.

The Ost home on Indian Crest, is one of the three homes the Indian Springs Civic Club is featuring on this year's tours on December 9-11. When Mrs. Ost and her husband, John, married several years ago, each already had a family of three, and things added up quickly.

To adapt to the numbers, one remodeling project or another has been going on since the families combined. The recreation room now under construction is the most recent undertaking. Ost says that when it's finished, it will resemble an English pub.

However, when visitors go through the home this weekend, one of the most interesting rooms they'll see is a combined family

Cobblestones -- removed from Birmingham's old Morris Avenue when it was paved -- are used to make the fireplace and hearth. These stones are also used on the exterior of the house and on the walk leading to the front door.

To the right of the fireplace are located mail boxes and sorting bins from the Avondale Post Office. Old dolls, teacups and collectibles fill the cubicles. On top are several old train sets belonging to John Ost.

dismantled post office. Bookshelves extend from floor to ceiling along two walls of the

The room also contains the woodwork and stamp windows from the library, with a semi circular writing desk at the far end. The narrow room also contains a refectory table where the family gathers to play games such as chess and backgammon.

Clocks are one of the things Ost likes to collect. In the entryway, visitors will see a huge train station clock from Glasgow and another of the station clocks hangs in the kitchen.

A halltree in the entryway and a bench in the sunken living room to the left, are both from Welsh castles.

With her knack for mixing styles of furnishings, Ost placed a huge mirror which came from a Birmingham saloon, in a corner of the living room.

Part of the story

The giant oak which fell on the rental house of Wyman Brown near the University of Montevallo, was only a small part of the millions of dollars in damages that occured during Mother Nature's broadside of storms which hit over the weekend. For full details on the damage and accounts of how people across Shelby County handled - and were handled by - the disasters, see the numerous photographs and stories in the 'A Section' of this week's Reporter. In Beat 12

lanners act on zone violations

Mobile homes and fences were among the problems dealt with recently at the Shelby County Planning Commission.

The commission recommended the county attorney take action to have a mobile home removed from the Dora Bailey property, on McGuire Road in Beat 12. The home was reportedly installed on October 29, and is considered in violation of zoning laws.

Similar action was recommended for the property of Annette Cleckler which adjoins Riverchase. The commission had given her notice six months ago to remove one of three mobile homes from her property. Zoning requires one full acre of land for each mobile home in Beat 12, and Mrs. Cleckler has only 21/2 acres. it was reported.

Nelson and Dorothy Wellman appeared at the meeting with attorney Douglas Coretti urging that the commission take action. Mrs. Wellman said that no one had occupied the third mobile home until recently.

Commissioner George Starcher said, "We made it amply clear to her (Mrs. Cleckler) that she had a case against the real estate company who sold her the land with the wrong information about zoning." He moved the case be sent to the county attorney for further action.

In another case, Hugh Thompson was asked to remove a fence he has installed on the right of way in front of his home on Indian Valley Road, and to lower the height of it to conform to zoning standards.

Thompson said he had fenced his yard for the safety of his children and his dog, and his fence was no further on the right of way than others in his neighborhood. "I want to be a good neighbor in Shelby County. I will do whatever I can to bring this to a good conclusion."

.The commission recommended he cut the height of his fence to four feet and move it back. He was given six months to comply.

Reporter aids Santa by publishing letters this Christmas by David F. Moore Sometimes it's hard to get those important Christmas letters to Santa Claus.

What with the snow and wind, and the North Pole being so very far away, and all the rush that usually happens around Christmas - sometimes Santa doesn't even get letters from girls and boys until after New Year's Day.

But don't worry!

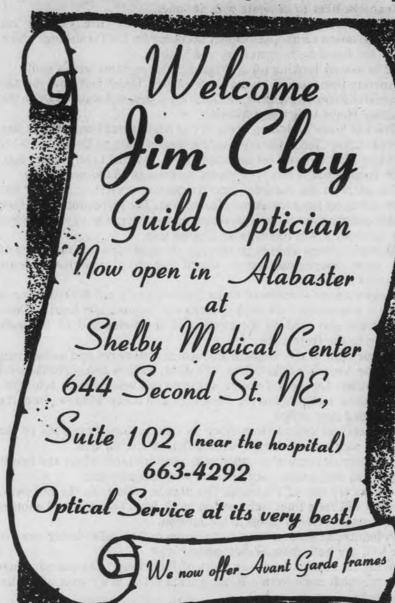

Through a special arrangement with the jolly ol' it in the paper before elf himself, the Reporter has agreed to help Santa with the letters to him from hopeful girls and boys in Shelby County.

Just write Santa about what you want, or maybe what you want him to bring your family, or friends, or even your school or town. Be sure to sign the letter and get your parents to include their name, address and phone number.

Send the letters to Santa Claus, c/o Shelby County Reporter, PO Box 947, Columbiana, Alabama, 35051.

How will Santa get your letter? Easy! We'll publish Christmas, because everybody knows that Santa reads the Reporter!

Kingdom Community is located.

According to her, in the earlier days of Shelby County the Kingdom Community was limited to the area along what is now County 61, from the intersection with County 28 (Kingdom Cross Roads), north for about a mile and half to Beeswax Creek.

Nowdays, she said, everything from Wilsonville to Shelby is generally called 'The Kingdom.' She brought up the story told biana to explain just where the to her by her grandfather, Andy Crumpton, an early resident of the Kingdom.

> According to the story, in 1886 farmers in the area held a contest to see who could grow the best corn crop that year. The winner would be called king of the area from the cross roads to the creek.

That established the early boundaries of Kingdom, but left hanging the question of who was the first king? If you know the answer, call the Reporter at 669-3131.

Columbiana talks sewers

by Bert Seaman

If the city of Columbiana and former county highway director Jimmy Ray can reach a contract agreement, Ray will engineer the city's sewer project.

At a special called meeting of the council Monday night, there was unanimous agreement that Ray be asked to do the work.

The extension and upgrading of the city's sewer system was made possible this year when the city was awarded a $240,000 federal grant.

With the option of choosing an engineer on a competitive basis, or negotiating with an engineer of record, the council agreed on the latter course.

Since Ray has completed one sewer project for the city -- making him the only engineer of record -- the council approved him for the job subject to a contract agreement.

Although the engineering firm of Lucas and Carr has also completed a sewer project for the city, the dissolving of the partnership makes each of the former owners ineligible for consideration as an engineer of record.

Several engineering firms have expressed an interest in doing the work, and if the city does not reach an agreement with Ray, negotiations with these firms will have to be conducted on a competitive basis.

Fancher visits Nat'l Forum

Dr. Bill Fancher is in Indianapolis this week attending the National Forum on Excellence in Education.

The forum is sponsored by the U.S. Department of Education, and is expected to produce an agenda for public school reform.

Fancher is dean of the University of Montevallo College of Education and vice president of the Shelby County Board of Education.

"I am, of course, very pleased and appreciative of being selected for the conference. I attended one of the regional conferences in Athens, Ga., and this national conference will cap off Secretary T.H. Bell's efforts toward implementing the recommendations of the National Committee on Excellence in Education," Fancher said.

and an experience of the state of the state

County details bridge and other projects

At last week's meeting, the County Commission heard the state's conditions for replacing the double bridges on County 25 north of Wilsonville. The conditions are:

Agree for the new structure to be constructed south of the existing one, agree not to change speed limits and agree to maintain any county roads which must be relocated.

All was approved.

Courthouse maintenance employees learned after their holidays were approved that bowl games would be played January 2. Their request to swap one off day for that day was approved.

Since the county did work an old unpaved road near Lake Purdy four years ago, commissioners agreed to resume such work. However, should the area around it be subdivided the road will have to be brought up to county standards by its owners.

The road will be maintained at its present condition and will not be upgraded by the county.

Commissioner Ames received calls about trucks exceeding weight limits on County 13 which the county spent $25,000 to level. He asked and received approval from the county commission for an agreement to be worked out with Allied Products in lieu of closing the road to such traffic.

The county engineer was granted permission to work an agreement out with the state in which the state will liquid seal the surface of old Highway 280 before turning it over to the county.

The road is reported to be in very bad condition and current state plans to 'plant mix' the road are not considered satisfactory by the county engineer.

Since the county's computer goes down when there is too much voltage on its lines, Commissioners Archer and Davenport were relieved that the commission approved a bid from Burroughs for a voltage regulator. Burroughs was the only company to bid for the $9,071.95 item.

Davenport stressed in his motion to approve the bid, "If it does not do the job, we will let them have it back."

Strickland Chevrolet was the only company to bid on four 1984 police-package cars. However, commissioners accepted the price of $10,885.29 each.

Ernest McCarty Ford reportedly said the specifications were written to exclude someone who did not already have the cars.

However, commissioners denied that such a situation existed, and since nothing was received in writing from McCarty, they said there was no need to reject the one bid received.

Church and Stagg was granted

Commission Chairman Tommy Snowden took the color snafu all in stride: "Tell them I especially like brown, but the county did not specify any colalong with the First Bank of Columbiana.

He pointed out the bank's help in getting a county license branch office in Pelham off the ground.

Country English

Joan Ost calls her dog inside her Indian Crest home for dinner. The country English home features a mixture of ingredients, such as old cob-ble stones from Morris Avenue which are used on a fireplace as well as the sidewalk.

The adjoining dining room boasts a massive Jacobean sideboard. After seeing her home, Ost reported, a friend remarked that she'd never again say that different furniture styles didn't look right

Ost has even come up with a style of her own by using pipe patterns. The patterns, acquired from U.S. Pipe, are used to make a coffee table, plant holder, spice rack and other useful items.

"That's one of the things about what I buy," Ost notes "We can use everything!"

When it comes to decorating for the Christmas season, Ost says that she goes all out. So guests on the Holiday Home tour can count on seeing the country English home on Miller Circle decked out in its Yuletide finery this weekend.

For further information about the tour, call 988-0334.

US 280 is changing Westover and Chelsea to 'prime' business area

In case you live in a hole and don't know, the completion of US 280 through Chelsea and Westover has changed business in the area somewhat. The winding two lane road of a few years ago has given way to a modern fourlane highway.

Along with the new road, came new traffic. Along with the new traffic, came new business. And business in Chelsea and Westover, according to those who have invested there, is grow-

"The old 280 was owned by older people," says Harry Dorough of All-American Carpets. "The New 280 opened up new land available for sale to younger businessmen."

The fact that he's lived in the area since 1957 is one of the reasons Dorough decided to invest in a business along the new 280 -- but just one of them.

Not that his and other businesses aren't off to a good start in the Chelsea Westover area, but with his plans toward the future, Dorough points to the wave of development growing east from Birmingham and Inverness. He figures he'll be sitting in a prime business location within the next ten years.

Glen Autry, who has lived in Chelsea for 14 years and has been in the television business there for eight years, says he located on 280 for one reason -- to make more money. And it's working.

In the last year, since Autry moved his business from near the old Weldon Grocery in Chelsea, he says his sales have doubled.

- Realtor Larry Cain moved his business to the Westover area two months ago "because of the potential growth of the area. The four-lane makes it easier for people to live here and work in Birmingham."

Furthermore, the four-laning of 280 appears to have improved the prospects of business off the new stretch of highway, as well as along the developing strip.

"The four lane has really helped," says Edwina Chappell who has operated Chappell Carpets for the past dozen years just north of 'New 280' in Westover.

"Things are really growing," she says. "The business is definitely coming this way. Prospects for business are a lot bet-

So, apparently things along the mid-section of 280 in Shelby County are on the up and up. But don't count on miracles.

When asked if he expects Westover and Chelsea to incorporate and annex Birmingham -or at least Harpersville -- Harry Dorough chuckles.

"I have not heard any of this!"

Watch group challenges county using SMC funds

A civil action law suit is challenging Shelby County's diversion to its general fund of the special tax levied for Shelby Medical Center.

The $500,000 plus law suit was filed by the Shelby County Tax Watch Committee on December 1, and names the county commission, the SMC Hospital Board and Tax Collector Annette Skinner as defen-

The committee is a group of "concerned tax payers who don't want to see the county's budget balanced on the back of the sick," according to attorney James Pino who is representing the group.

In general, the suit charges that the county commission and the SMC board are illegally using a special four mill tax collected for use by the hospital. The suit requests that the county be made to pay back a "known amount" of $500,000 to the hospital board, plus any other illegally used amount, according to Pino.

The tax in question is outstanding until the year 2009. Law requires the county and tax collector to pay the hospital board all proceeds collected from the tax, to keep them apart from all other funds and, to keep a "clear and distinct account..."

But according to the suit:

From October 1, 1979 to September 30, 1980, the county collected three mills, paid two mills to the hospital board, illegally using the other mill ($250,000) for general fund purposes.

The same thing happened from October 1, 1980 to September 30,

On January 26, 1981, the county and the hospital board entered into a contract where the board agreed to pay $360,000 generated by the four mill tax from October 1, 1980 to September 30, 1981. The money was to be deposited in the county general fund for expenses not authorized by law.

An amount of $450,000 was alleged to have been paid to the county during the fiscal year beginning October 1, 1982 and ending September 30, 1983. Also according to the suit, the county has requested an additional

The newly formed committee claims that it and other property owners will be damaged by the county's general fund use of the special

It also claims that without adequate remedy, this payment will be assessed against property owners.

The suit, filed in Shelby County Circuit Court, asks that all contracts related to the special four mill tax be ruled illegal and void.

It also seeks to stop any contracts from being made concering the special tax, pending the outcome of this suit and permanently after-

The outcome of the future contract issue could possibly delay any action by the SMC board concerning the county's present request for

But this point remains questionable since the county did not mention the 'special tax' in its latest request. It asked instead for a $250,000 'contribution.' In addition to a county payback of funds, the suit also regests that the county be responsible for any costs and resonable attorneys' fees.

The Shelby County Tax Watch Committee includes Tom W. Stubbs, chairman; James L. King; Robert Malcolm Byrd, Jr., and

William E. Morris. The suit also seeks the turnover of all contracts, correspondence and financial statements regarding the special tax.

"The Shelby County Tax Watch Committee has been in existence for several months," member James King told the Reporter. "We came together as a formal group over this suit."

"I have had no personal contact with any member of the (SMC) board," King said when asked if the committee was acting on behalf of the hospital. "We're just trying to resolve this problem for John Q.

King said the thrust of the matter is to get a ruling on whether the county has access at will to the four mills.

"If they (the county commission) don't have enough money, shouldn't they come back to the public instead of the hospital?

Airport nears takeover

by Fred Guarino

Shelby County's newly created airport authority is one step closer to having control of the county airport.

Commissioner Harold Davenport moved to end any "foot dragging" Monday, and the county commission officially requested its attorney to draw the final draft of an airport authority

The "foot dragging" involved, three years of talks among individuals about the issue, and nine months of periodic discussion at county commission

Airport administrator Bill Tucker said he began talking with individual commissioners in 1980 when the county's attorney told him an airport authority could be

He said county commission meetings have dealt with the matter since last April.

The whole lease issue is based on the county's apparent desire to enter a contract with the new authority for operation of the air-

For a period of 30 years -- if the final draft is approved -- the county will lease all property now used by the airport, to the authority.

However, the county will reserve the right to use any of the land as long it is does not harm the authority's operation.

Moreover, all titles to the property will remain in the county's possession and the authority's lease will be subject to previous leases given by the county.

One previous lease includes that between the county and Lane

Vincent Mayor quits

Aero, the company currently operating the airport. But the authority will have the right to complete operation negotiations now underway, and to make new agreements in the future.

$250,000 for this fiscal year.

Also, the authority will receive all rent and income from the operation of the airport, in addition to any reimbursements from the installation of a nondirectional beacon.

Should the authority fail to honor its agreement with the county, it will be given 30 days to correct the situation or see its lease terminated.

The county will have the right to terminate the agreement at any time with 60 days written notice.

The airport authority will be required to report to the county commission on an yearly basis and will be required to answer any questions from the county. According to the lease being drawn, "The authority shall be responsible for the operation and maintenance of the aprons, runways, taxiways, buildings and said airport premises and the grounds thereof....

"The authority shall be responsible for the promotion of aviation in the interest of Shelby County and the general aviation public and shall be under the duty to operate the premises as an airport for the best interest of the flying public"

The airport authority's accounting records will be subject to inspection by the county. The county will not be liable for injuries, nor can the authority obligate the county to any contract or liability.

The Shelby County Airport Authority includes Larry Lynn Miller, Douglas H. Ballard, G. Alvon Dampier, Richard Simpson and Bill Cobb. These men will be responsible for their own liability insurance.

Tucker opted not to give any opinion on the proposed lease

Alabaster vandal has spree

Someone had the opportunity at his fingertips to take money, barbecue and ice cream for 'free' in Alabaster. But he passed it

The person probably won't receive any recognition for being too proud to take help during the Christmas season, however. He is a vandal, according to police.

Alabaster Police Chief C.E. 'Bull' Carter said someone Saturday broke out plate glass windows at Am-South Bank, the Dairy Queen and at Buddy's Barbecue, but took nothing.

The AmSouth vandalism was discovered about 8 a.m. and the others shortly thereafter. "They were probably all hit in the same hour," Carter said.

While no arrest had been made at this writing, Chief Carter said that a "good lead" was being followed.

defendants standing trial for robbery in Shelby County Circuit Court last week pled guilty as the second day of the trial got under-

Philip Mixon admitted that he helped rob Columbiana resident Otha Nell Holcombe at her home in February, then testified against his co-defendant, Otis Chapman.

Chapman maintained his innocence throughout the three day trial, but he didn't convince the jury which brought in a guilty verdict Friday.

Harold Walden was the presiding judge at the first trial ever held in the county where more than one defendant was tried at the same time.

The trial marked only the se- passed him.

In a surprise move, one of the cond time that a victim was allowed to remain in a county courtroom throughout the entire proceedings. (State laws making these procedures possible went into effect last year.)

> During the first day of testimony, Mrs. Holcombe said she recognized Chapman's voice even though the two men who broke into her home had pillow cases over their heads.

> She said that Chapman was a long time customer at the service station she and her husband, B.H. Holcombe, operate on the State 25 bypass in Columbiana.

> Her husband told the court that as he was driving home after being called about the robbery, a car he identified as Chapman's Mixon's brother, sylvester, also charged in the crime, is alleged to have been the driver of the car. His case has not yet been set for trial.

The prosecution, led by District Attorney Bill Hill, contended that Sylvester had been instructed to keep a watch on the service station.

When Holcombe started for home, he was to get there ahead of him, Hill told the jury, and pick up his accomplices.

Hill contended that the pillowcases came from the Mixon home, were later found by the roadside where the pickup occurred, and that Chapman had a large sum of money in his wallet when he was arrested later the same night.

Mrs. Holcombe had been home alone when the two robbers broke into her house on the night of February 18 after cutting the telephone lines.

She testified that she was held at gunpoint and bound hand and foot with duct tape. The men were wearing work gloves, she said -- like the ones later found in Chapman's car -- and searched the house for money which they found.

When he took the stand, Chapman claimed to have been in Clanton somewhere around 9:30 p.m., which would have been about the time the robbery was committed.

Defense attorneys for Chapman put Clanton resident Nell Dennis on the stand to prove their client was not at the scene of the crime.

But the witness became confused about the date, answering the district attorney in the affirmative when he asked if it was April 18 when she saw Chapman in Clanton.

Chapman's conviction of robbery in the first degree could mean a sentence of life without parole under the Habitual Offender act.

Philip Mixon was offered a ten year sentence for pleading guilty to the crime.

Sentencing will take place December 19.

Patrick Shriver (1), and Michael Harris rode with a snowman on the float that won second place in Helena's Christmas parade Saturday. The float was the entry of the Fox Haven Women's Club.

Despite Santa's delay Helena parade gets off

Thirty-six units took part in Saturday's Annual Christmas parade in Helena.

But one unit that usually participates couldn't make it this year. Recent flooding in the Pelham area put the Army National Guard's armored personnel carrier out of commission because the wet engine couldn't be started.

Another balky vehicle delayed Santa's grand entry into town.

Jolly old Saint Nick, who brought up the rear of the long line of marchers and floats, was held up by the old Helena fire truck that stalled on the hill in front of city half.

School superintendent Elllie Glasscox was the grand marshall in this year's parade, which included such dignitaries as Helena Mayor Sonny Penhale and council members, Pelham Mayor Burk Dunaway, Alabaster Mayor Doc Rubin and Representative John Tanner.

The procession also included beauty queens, a band, drill teams, dance teams, twirlers, Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, horses, go-karts, Corvettes, floats and fire engines.

Helena Jaycees won the first place $50 prize for their float. However, the civic club is donating the money to the Helena Fire Department.

The float entered by the Fox Haven Womens' Club was awarded second place and the Helena PTO was the third place

Power company to move headquarters to Pelham

by David F. Moore

Alabama Power has announced plans to build a 16,000 square foot district headquarters in Pelham. The facility, targeted for completion by December 1984, will consolidate two office operations now in Alabaster.

What the utility now calls its Alabaster District serves some 14,000 power customers from Inverness to the Moore's Cross Roads area.

The new headquarters will be located on two acres at the intersection of Industrial Park Drive and Lee Street.

Construction of the estimated $800,000 project is expected to begin in April of next year.

"Alabaster has been extremely good to us," said power com-pany district manager Bobby Hosea. "It's just that Pelham is the center of our service area and we wanted to be centrally located."

The new headquarters would also be more convenient to the utility warehouse on Clark Street in Pelham, Hosea said. Alabama Power purchased that warehouse earlier this year.

The facility will transfer some 30 employees now working in Alabaster at the accounting/ser-

Pelham churches come to aid of flood victims

Victims of last week's vicious combination of flooding and violent winds are still in the process of returning their lives to

After an estimated $1.7 million in structural damages many families of the Pelham area may never be the same.

Emily Rabren of the Shelby County branch of the Red Cross said her organization came to the assistance of 160 families during this time of crisis, providing them with shelter, medical needs, dry cleaning, food and cleanup and comfort kits.

"We tried to provide any immediate emergency needs on an individual basis," Rabren said.

The Red Cross was aided by the Pelham Methodist and Pelham Baptist churches, both of which served as shelters for homeless flood victims.

Through the assistance provided by the National United Methodist Disaster Relief Fund, Pelham United Methodist Church was able to issue immediate aid to flood victims in need of medical services and other special needs.

Presently, Pelham Methodist is continuing to assist victims of the disaster by serving as a center for items sent to this area by churches and any other contributors.

According to David Wallace, pastor of the Pelham Methodist Church, these donations include used furniture, clothing and other needed items.

For information on how needy families can obtain these goods, contact the Pelham United Methodist Church.

Before putting up a CB or TV antenna, remember to check for power lines, both overhead and coming into your home. Make sure they are at least twice as far away as the height of your antenna. Wait for a calm, dry day and get several people to help. When climbing a ladder for any reason, stay clear of all wires. Also, don't handle aluminum siding close to wires. And never touch a fallen electric line. Report it immediately to Alabama Power.

Test scores don't help if public can't get story

Just because Shelby County's high school juniors ranked a little better than average of other juniors in the state on the recent testing program, should not be a cause for celebration.

Indeed, one should ask, "Why didn't they score higher than they did?"

This county has for many years had more money to spend on schools than the 'average' county in Alabama--a fact often lost sight of in PTA meetings when parents are desperate to raise money for cleaning supplies at their child's school.

Older residents well remember when the Southern Electric Generating Plant at Wilsonville (now an Alabama Power facility) became a taxpaying corporation. The value of that plant alone was enough to double the taxes collected in Shelby County.

In ensuing years, other industries have helped boost the taxes collected here above the state's average.

But, as recent studies have shown, money alone does not produce superior education for students. It takes teachers who know their subjects, and who really care about their students to produce superior education. It also takes a disciplined school atmosphere and supportive parents.

Shelby County has many devoted teachers who are doing an excellent job, and several schools where the administration runs a good ship with the support of the community.

It is too bad that in releasing the test scores the state and county superintendent would not release the scores made at each of the individual schools, although they indicated the juniors at some schools scored higher than those at other schools.

The schools doing the best job deserve credit and appreciation, which they cannot get if the public does not know which ones they are.

The other schools could also benefit from the light of publicity. If a community knows its school is producing students with lower scores, the community might rally and help the school do something about it.

The Shelby County superintendent says each principal and guidance counselor knows the scores made in their school, and will use the scores to correct weaknesses in their instructional program.

But why should the educators think they can handle these problems alone? The public is vitally interested and could help.

Perhaps the problem is not even with instruction, but in the community, or with the parents.

We urge parents to contact the schools their children attend and talk with the principal and teachers to find out what the full story is.

Unionism costs Alabama jobs

Open Letter to the Honorable George Wallace

As you know, Thomas Nelson Publishers has been seriously considering the construction of a new facility in Alabama. You called to encourage me to build in Alabama and Mr. Etheredge has tried to influence us as well. This planned $20 million production unit would have begun operations with 300 employees; with eventual employment planned for 800 workers.

I'm sorry to inform you that we will not be moving to Alabama. Instead, we have decided to build our new plant in Kansas.

The reason for our decision was based on one fact; the attack on Alabama's Right to Work law by union officials. While Alabama Big Labor is mounting a concerted drive to destroy your state's protection from compulsory unionism, Kansas' Right to Work law is an integral part of the state's approach to business and a health economic climate.

POSTMASTER:

Shelby County Reporter P.O. Box 947 Columbians, Al. 35051

of publication:

Thomas Nelson Publishers believes that it can best serve its customers by fostering a harmonious relationship with its employees. Granting union officials the power to require workers to pay dues in order to work destroys any possibility of a positive relationship between the employer and employees.

The right of workers to be represented by a union of their free voluntary choice must be preserved and protected. Any law that requires voluntary choice must be preserved and protected. Any law that requires employees to join or pay unions as a condition of keeping their job is not only bad policy, but also an obvious violation of individual liberty.

Being responsible to thousands of stockholders and for the livelihood of still more thousands of employees, we cannot in good conscience make such a large investment in a state that may soon force workers into unions against their will.

Sincerely, Sam Moore, President Thomas Nelson Publishers P.O. Box 141000 Nashville, TN 37214-1000

Dumping deplored

Letter to the Editor:

On Friday Morning, December 9, 1983, at 11:28 a.m., I witnessed a well-dressed woman in a 1981 Buick throw her trash on property located on Bear Creek Road (County 43).

This woman obviously has suffered from poor up-bringing and has no morals. I would like to rent a dump truck, fill it with trash from the land fill, and have it dumped in front of her nice brick home in Chelsea.

Yes, I will be at the Court House Monday, Dec. 12, to let my feelings be known again. Shelby County is Beautiful and we need to keep it that way.

Thank you,

Willie Turner

Knight says thanks

An Open Letter to the citizens of Shelby County residing in State House District 40:

I am overwhelmed by the support you gave me in the recent election. Thank you all from the bottom of my heart. This has certainly been one of the most humbling and heart-warming experiences of my life.

Accepting defeat is never easy, and this one was no exception. Although the final vote count indicated your solid support, House District 40 includes more than just a portion of our county, and therefore I will not be representing you in the Alabama House of Representatives at this time. However, I pledge to you that this will not dissuade me from my insistence on responsible and responsive government. You have given me a mandate which will not be taken lightly.

I call on John, Butch, Sonny, the County Commission and all other Municipal and County leaders to work together with us to ensure orderly and desirable growth in our county. I call on you, the citizens of our county, to give these leaders your full and unqualified support. Theirs is not an easy task; it requires responding to impossible demands and diligent, time consuming effort to provide proper representation. We have the opportunity to dream dreams, plan accordingly and accomplish great things together, for ours is and will continue to be a great county. Let's combine our knowledge, desires and capabilities and bring our county to its full potential.

I pledge to our State, County and Municipal leaders my support and cooperation; I pledge to all of you my continued hard work, honesty, aggressiveness, openness and availability.

My family joins me in this, our fondest and most sincere yuletide wish for all of Shelby County; the best—in everything!

I love you all, Al Knight

Good Morning

by Milton Bird

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member FDIC.

I was over to see Pocket Seale who lives on the Egg & Butter Road just outside of Shelby. Pocket had blue leaf collards and I'm fond of blue leaf collards.

But we didn't talk about collards. We talked about his Dad who told his wife to give me a pair of his old overalls. He had watched me pass his house on my way to hunt a covey of bobwhites on Walksie Creek. The legs on my hunting pants were as ragged as a can of kraut.

And I think she would have done it, too, except he weighed close to two hundred and I weighed 125 wringing wet.

A note from E.C. Simpson down Montevallo way. He wanted to know about the day a bunch of wild mustangs were herded into Columbiana. I don't recall anything about it. Maybe because I've only been here since 1907. If you remember it, or know somebody who does, let me know and I'll pass the information on to Mr. Simpson.

I talked with Clarence and Ruby Spivey who are kinfolks to a one-time cowboy, the late Curley Miller, but the story rang no bell with them either. Curley and Mrs. Miller used to ride mustangs up and down the streets in town.

Once in a while the old town outdoes itself.
Once in a while it does. And when it happens it's something to see.

That's the way it was Sunday night at the United Methodist Church. The program was The Lighting Of The Green. And maybe this was the nicest program you'll see this holiday season. I hope you didn't miss it.

They are still slipping away, leaving their names behind. Mrs. Emmet Hughes and Mrs. Loyd Niven and Jim Curtis and Mrs. Clara Powell. At one time or another each one passed down the road I live on, leaving little thoughts and deeds that come back tonight in a pleasant sort of way.

A note from Ruth Kite in Birmingham: Ruth and the Shelby County High School Class of 1945 mourn the loss of their former classmate lim Curtis

They want Mary and Tim and Kim and Mrs. Louise Curtis to know they remember.

Notes from the Kingdom

Being the ramblings of a newspaper man who lives in the Kingdom Community...

by David F. Moore

I don't know about you, but I often appreciate -- even need -- reminders on some of the more elementary lessons in life.

One such reminder comes in the form of the massive old pecan tree that towers in my backyard. Last spring I watched with some interest as it grew green with leaves which filled the blue sky

A few weeks ago, as autumn and the seasons rolled round, the rain and wind whipped what was left of those leaves from the tree. Now, with the chill coming, the tree stands in skeletal starkness against an all too grey sky. I often wonder how long that tree has been there, how much longer it will exist.

Last week -- all on one hectic deadline Tuesday -- a close relation to one of our staff members died, another staff member's father underwent open-heart surgery, and the daughter of two members bore them a grand-

Clara Powell, bookkeeper Violet Powell's mother-in-law, passed away in a nursing home after a long illness. The same day surgeons did five by-passes on Iris' father, Steve Smitherman. (Steve, I'm happy to say, returned home this Tuesday sporting a blue plaid coat and PJ's.)

With all these heavy aspects of life hitting at once around the office, the news of Randy Sears Rosenburg's new son, Andrew, brought a hearty round of cheers from those of us left in the shop — especially Ralph and Marcia.

Seasons roll round.
Outside the realm of staff and friends, working at a weekly newspaper offers one a ring-side seat in observing -- indeed, participating in -- the ever continuing drama we call life. Week after week babies are born, the old and young die, someone does something commendable, someone does something foolish or criminal. We get involved in it. It comes with the territory.

Sometimes, though, I get so caught up in the details of the newspaper and stories, that I lose sight of the big picture.

The other day a Junior Civitan member at a high school asked if it was "pretty neat" working at the newspaper. I was a bit tired and thinking about a picture I needed to take and the lighting and how to shoot it, so I answered with a dull "Yes."

Like I said, sometimes I get so caught up in details that I lose sight of the big picture. I forget the simple lessons in life that parade themselves past on a weekly -- if not daily -- basis. In one brain cell and out the other, so to speak.

Seasons go round. Circles run their courses. Life goes on. If you think about it is "pretty neat."

Sunday afternoon, while some of these things were on my mind, I got to wondering about the old pecan tree again, about how massive it is, and how long it's going to be there. I would miss it if it ever came down.

With that in mind I took a length of twine, wrapped it around the widest part of the crusty old trunk, and measured it: 13 feet, 10 inches. In the spring I'll watch it bloom again. Next fall, when the seasons roll round, I want to measure it again.

The Alabama Scene

by Bob Ingram

It's a political confrontation worth looking forward to. We refer to the presidential primary scheduled for Alabama in March.

What makes it so interesting has been the entry into the Democratic contest of Jesse Jackson. He is convinced he has an excellent chance of winning the Alabama primary. His logic is that the white vote will be split between the others, notably John Glenn, Walter Mondale and Fritz Hollings, and that he can lead the ticket by corralling a majority of the black vote.

However, Joe Reed, head of the Alabama Democratic Conference, does not support Jackson's candidacy. He thinks the blacks should throw their support to an "electable" candidate, specifically Mondale.

Thus the primary may boil down to a test of Reed's strength among Alabama blacks --- can he deliver the vote to Mondale, or can Jackson, with his strong emotional appeal, prevail?

Editor's Note -- Saturday, after this was written, the ADC hit on a compromise of sorts, endorsing Mondale for president, Jackson for vice president...)

Odds and Ends -- There is no other way to put it -- a couple of weeks ago I goofed. Blame it on old age. I made mention of a controversy in the Department of Aeronautics concerning the appointment of an assistant director, and I identified that assistant as Crum Foshee. His name is Wheeler Foshee, the brother of Crum, the state senator. My apologies to all for this inexcusable error...

Gov. George Wallace has surely put to rest all the talk about the rumored attempt to repeal Alabama's Right-To-Work Law. Wallace says no such legislation is contemplated, and if the Legislature ever passed such a repealer he would veto it...

Look for a no-holds-barred legislative fight if the state of Alabama is the recipient of another windfall of oil lease revenue in 1984. There are some forces on Capitol Hill who would like to see any such windfall money be used for pay raises for teachers and/or state employees. It was to guard against this that former Gov. Fob James put the $469 million windfall money in a trust fund, and provided that only the interest from that trust could be used. To use one-time money for salary raises or any other operating expenses is very risky business. Once all the windfall money is spent, where does the money come from to continue paying the higher salaries?

SA's nine are tough on hoops

Shelby Academy's "old man" senior Jim Lee (45) pulls down a big rebound against Edgewood. Lee and his teammates made enough big plays last Thursday night to claim their fourth victory of the season. (photo by Fred Guarino)

by Fred Guarino

A nine-man basketball squad with only one senior player leaves a lot of room for leadership, but little margin for injury or error. If five men get into foul trouble -- it does happen -- a limited reserve team could end up playing short against a stacked deck. If a couple of players suffer ankle or hand injuries -- also known to happen -- things could become less than enviable. But such drawbacks haven't hurt Dewayne Kervin's nine-man Shelby Academy team with its one senior Jim Lee. The Raiders last Thursday took on Edgewood for their fourth win against one loss.

"We've been lucky in some ways," Kervin told the Reporter. "We're just going to go with it until it runs out."

There is, however, more to Raider success than luck. This is best explained by the players themselves.

"We play hard without a lot of talent but we work together as a team," said Doug Barrett. "We do more with less."

"The key to our success is the team concept," said Robert Thomas. "We are organized and we play as a team."

There is also an unseen element that gives the Raiders an added edge over their opposition. Kervin's team has been together since the ninth grade when it compiled a record of 19-4.

So... with that kind of closeness and knowledge of team ability on such a young squad, having only one senior works out to be an asset instead of a fault.

Against Edgewood the Raiders played a deliberately slow first period to a 6-5 lead and never trailed.

They played just as steady and unrattled in the second period, taking a 12-9 lead. They were collected and there was no need to rush or

When Edgewood tried to heat things up in the third period, the Raiders simply responded like a well oiled machine and took a tenpoint 27-17 lead.

The fourth period saw the squad play the coolest game one could imagine and coast to a five point 32-27 victory. As close as the score may sound, the contest was never in question.

When the nine-man Raiders recently took on took on the toughest team in their league, Bessemer Faith, they did lose. But it was only by

Despite the loss, Kervin said the Raiders played well enough to win against most teams in their division.

Vince Pickett led the well regulated Raiders against Bessemer with 14 points and 'old man' Lee pulled down 12 rebounds. So, it looks like nine men can go a long way in basketball after all...

if they are like those who play for Shelby Academy.

Basketball bulls into holiday season

As Christmas closes in, basketball season in Shelby County continues to plow ahead.

In fact, the Calera Eagles got their annual Calera Classic Tournament underway last Monday night with participation from Briarwood, West Blocton, Jemison, Altamont, and defending tournament champion Shelby County. The final action gets underway tonight (Thursday) with games at 6:30 and 8 p.m.

For Calera, however, the basketball season really hasn't had any bright spots -- yet. At 1-4 on the year the Eagles recently lost to Billingsley 76-57, beat Chelsea 60-53 and lost to Fayetteville 78-74.

Against the Lions, Bruce Hamilton had 15 points and 11 rebounds. But also getting 11 rebounds were Bennie Joe Keller and Tony Hamilton. They also scored in double figures as well.

The Hornets gave up 93 points to Montevallo, 60 to Calera and 85 to Shelby County.

(Oddly enough, none of Hornets' reported scores matched the scores given by the schools that beat them.)

Coosa Valley continues to be very successful with a 4-1 record

The Rebels recently defeated Cahawba 81-47 and Minor 72-55. Leading CVA against Minor were John Beavers with 29 points and Van Huffaker with ten rebounds.

A team for which 1983 may be going by too fast is the Thompson Warriors. At 6-1, the Warriors last week defeated Bibb County 62-52 and took Montevallo 63-57.

Against the Bulldogs, Chris Thomas scored 16 points and claimed seven rebounds.

Wagon train

Ever since the first of three Vision Quest wagon trains pulled in for the night of December 6 at the armory in Vincent (above), county residents from there to Shelby have been curious about who, what, where, how and why the outfit operates. The basic thinking behind the group sounds like a philosophy from wagon train days: busy hands have little time for trouble. (photo special to the Reporter by Jerry Gardner)

Wagon train gives delinquents a chance to straighten out lives

by Bert Seaman

"Wagons Ho!" was the familiar cry which opened a show on tv a few years ago. The show portrayed the westward movement in this country.

Anyone up early enough last Saturday might Anyone up early enough last Saturday might have heard that same signal to move out called in Columbiana.

A wagon train -- in this day and age -- making camp in the county seat?

Yes, it did happen, as anyone who drove past the Shelby County High School football stadium last week could tell you.

The difference between this wagon train and those of yesteryear, is that the people involved aren't going to settle a new area -- they're trying instead to settle conflicts in their own lives.

Vision Quest, as the program is called, began 11 years ago to give young people who have been in trouble a second chance.

The Lone Star train camped last week in Shelby County -- it was named for its destination in Texas -- and began the trek south from Pennsylvania in September.

"We travel with the weather," explained the assistant wagon master, Charles Trout. During the spring and summer months the route is reversed, he said

There are two other wagon trains on the West coast, Trout said.

The concept of the wagon train is to be in contact with the young people on a 24-hour basis so the issues troubling them can be dealt with as they arise.

tional sense," explained Trout. "We take control until they can control their own lives."

Since the young people -- most of whom are on

"We parent these kids, but not in the conven-

Since the young people -- most of whom are on probation -- are rated "high risk" as runaways, the ratio of teen to staff is 2-1.

When they make camp, the group divides into teepee families. Each family has a name, the assistant wagon master related, and the families are called together at frequent intervals to make sure everyone is still at the camp site.

Wagon train members are referred through the wagon train members are referred through the courts, Trout explained, adding that they travel with the caravan until they get a "clear cut handle on the issues that are bothering them."

Vision Quest is a profit making organization, Trout reported, which contracts with the counties from which the juveniles are referred.

By living with the young people, counselors are there when situations arise, and can give assistance in dealing with the underlying cause of their problems, he explained.

"Not wanting to get up in the morning is an example," Trout said. "We try to find out why they don't want to get up."

One 'tool' the staff of Vision Quest uses in helping the teenage group deal with their anger, is the animals that are part of the train.

"Our mules are one of our main therapies," Trout noted with a smile. "Tangling with one of those animals puts your own anger in balance."

Wild horses obtained from the US Bureau of Land Management also provide an outlet for the frustrations the young people experience, Trout noted.

According to the assistant wagon master, issues the juveniles try to avoid dealing with are brought into the open during the training sessions.

"And they really get attached to these animals like you wouldn't believe," Trout said, adding that the young people are reluctant to leave the horses when their time with the program is finished.

One of the conditions of joining the wagon train, is the commitment to stay with the program a year.

If the Vision Quest staff feels the young person has worked through their problems before the year is up, they may leave the train.

But the reverse is also true. If the teenager has not come to terms with the issues that have caused him or her to turn to crime, the staff could recommend a longer stay with the program.

Besides the commitment to stay with the program a year, a young person must also promise not to use drugs or alcohol, engage in sex, or run away.

"It's a very intense program," Trout emphasized

He reported that seven out of ten who participate will "make it." But even if they should slip back into their former ways "no one can ever take this success away from them, and that's something they can always remember."

Although on the road five days a week, the young people are still required to keep up with their studies.

"That comes at night," Trout said, noting that study time lasts four hours.

Both teachers and a nurse travel with the wagon train and a doctor checks in at various stops.

The camp in Columbiana was the weekly layover to enable members of the train to catch up with the laundry, clean tack, and do other chores there isn't time for during their nightly stops.

What's going to happen to my phone service?

As of January 1, 1984, South Central Bell and other local Bell telephone companies will be separated from AT&T.

After divestiture, there will no

After divestiture, there will no longer be a Bell System as we know it today. But South Central Bell will still be your phone company. As part of a holding company called BellSouth, we'll continue to provide dependable service. For your home. And for your business.

Some things won't change.

Although there will be many changes, you'll notice very few unless you choose to change your existing home or business phone service. You'll still call on South Central Bell to order or change a phone line, to ask billing questions, to get local calling options and services and to obtain repair of phone lines. At the time of divestiture you'll still dial long distance calls the same way. And at first, you'll still get a single monthly bill.

Some things will change.

 Even though you'll dial calls the same, using the South Central Bell local network, South Central Bell will actually provide only a portion of your in-state long distance service.
 For other in-state and out-of-state long distance calls you can choose a primary supplier of long distance service from a variety of companies.

- As part of the many pricing changes brought about by competition and divestiture, local phone rates are likely to go up, and long distance rates will probably come down.
- Phones you currently lease will become the property of AT&T (you'll lease from them) and they will be responsible for repair of those sets.
- Responsibility for repair will be split between South Central Bell (for phone line problems) and equipment suppliers (for equipment and set problems).
- There will be some changes in the way your monthly phone bill is set up.

Coping with change.

At South Central Bell we're continuing to do everything we can to make these changes as easy as possible for you. And nothing will change the high quality of service you've come to expect from us.

You'll be hearing more about specific changes and what they mean to you in other ads like this — and in your monthly phone bill insert. Meanwhile, if you have questions or want more information, return the coupon below. Or call on us at the Bell Answer Center, toll free 1 800 555-5000, 10 a.m. till 11 p.m. CST, Monday through Friday.

MEMORY

IN LOVING MEMORY OF JOHN THORNBURG

In memory of my brother on this Christmas Day, John Thornburg, who assed away Oct. 29, 1983. Today recalls memory of a loved one gone to rest, and those who think of you today, are those who loved you

The Golden Gate was open, a gentle voice said come, and with farewell unspoken, you calmly entered home. Gone is the face we loved so dear, silent is the voice we loved to hear That old vacant chair recalls the times, the voice, the smiles of him who sat there.

God watched him as he suffered and he knew he had had his share, so he tenderly closed his eyes, and took

So far away for sight of speech, but not too far thoughts to reach. It's sweet to remember him who once was hear and who's thoughts are just

Five-finger discount

Sometimes called the 'five-finger discount,' many county retailers don't even want to discuss the negative impact shoplifting has on their stores and prices. They do, however, look on it as a serious crime. (staged photo by David F. Moore)

Shoplifting

Retailers and police fight back against the crime that would steal Christmas

by Carolyn Smiley

Stores are packed these days with people rushing around to find gifts for everybody on their lists. These Christmas shoppers spend money. Lots of money.

That is, most people spend money. Some use a different method of getting their gifts -- they steal them.

Traditionally, the season to be jolly is also the season to be shoplif-

Jim Strickland, owner of Strickland's Department Store in Pelham and Columbiana, believes this is because the stores are so busy during the holiday season that more opportunities to shoplift arise.

Like most store owners, Strickland is not only aware of this, but is prepared to fight it.

"My philosophy is 'the best defense is a good offense'," Strickland says. "Don't give them the opportunity in the first place." In a specialty store such as Strickland's, stastics propose that two to five percent of the total inventory will be stolen in a year. At a rough estimate, this would figure to be a loss of $15,000 per year, from one Strickland tries to keep such losses to a minimum, starting with dressing rooms that have a sign stating, "All shoplifters will be pro-"And we do enforce this policy," he says.

"In Pelham, store owners used to be reluctant to prosecute. This is not the case any more," Wade says.

my back and took the money out of my wallet," he says.

don't realize they're taking money out of my pocket.

ment, this is a common attitude among store owners.

Those convicted of shoplifting can face severe punishments. Wade says shoplifters caught in Pelham will be charged with a misdemeanor for theft of goods worth $25 or less, or a felony for

Strickland also thinks many people don't realize shoplifting is a

"We're not interested in putting people in jail, but a lot of people

"To me shoplifting is no different than if someone stuck a gun in

According to Captain Allen Wade of the Pelham Police Depart-

Punishment for a misdemeanor is up to one year in jail, plus a fine of not more than $2,000. Those found guilty of a felony can recieve one to 10 years in the state penitentiary and a fine as high as $5,000.

The number of shoplifting cases are difficult to determine. In Alabaster, no figures were available as to the number of arrests made there, but Sergeant Larry Horton gave an estimate of 40 a year. The policies for punishing shoplifters vary from city to city, but the attitude of store owners everywhere is similar -- eliminate temptation.

Committee to study needs of the people

A county committee to study how people's needs can be better met will be formed in January.

According to Susan Treadwell, director of the county Department of Pensions and Security, Governor George C. Wallace has asked each county DPS to convene the first meeting.

The call is an outgrowth of meetings the governor has had with religious leaders to discuss how churches can better serve the people.

The idea is to get social agencies and church representatives together to discuss the needs of county residents. Treadwell pointed out that many agencies receive state or federal funds, but there are always needs that cannot be met. She will announce the date of the first meeting later.

Christmas greetings from the President

Editor's Note: The Reporter received the following letter this week in the mail. The annual releases are a Christmas tradition at the White House.

It is a very special pleasure for Nancy and me to extend warmest greetings and best wishes to all of you during this most joyous of holiday seasons.

This festive occasion is celebrated in many different ways. We exchange gifts, attend church services, decorate our homes and Christmas trees, and enjoy a family dinner. But perhaps the tradition that most warms the heart is the sound of Christmas music.

Of all the songs ever sung at Christmastime, the most wonderful of all was the song of exaltation heard by the sheperds while tending their flocks on the night of Christ's birth. An angel of the Lord appeared to them and said: "Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ the Lord." Suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of voices praising the Heavenly Father and singing: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

Sometimes, in the hustle and bustle of holiday preparations we forget that the true meaning of Christmas was given to us by the angelic host that holy night long ago. Christmas is the commemoration of the birth of the Prince of Peace, Jesus Christ, whose message would truly be one of good tidings and great joy, peace and good will. During this glorious festival let us renew our determination to follow His ex-

Won't all of you join with Nancy and me in a prayer for peace and good will. May a feeling of love and cheer fill the hearts of everyone throughout this holiday season and in the coming year.

We hope this Christmas will be especially wonderful and that it will usher in a new year of peace and prosperity.

Xmas program to air

Two special Christmas programs by the duo-piano team of Joan Yarbrough and Robert Cowan are on the public television schedule.

The first will be shown on Metrospect on Monday, December 19 at 6 p.m./channel 10. The second will be shown on the following Monday, the day after Christmas, at 6 p.m.

According to Cowan, the team is playing a group of lighter selections, and the program will include Christmas carols sung by a group of students from the University of Montevallo.

Tudor-style

Coleen and Barry Rowland moved out of a Birmingham suburb to the Tudor-style home they built on a Shelby County ridge 2 years ago. Here Mrs. Rowland and her sons Brian, 10 and Jason. 7, look for pine cones to use in the Christmas decorations that Mrs. Rowland made for her home -- one of the three featured on a Holiday

Rowlands' Tudor-style house ends Indian Springs home tour

by Bert Seaman

By the first week in December stockings were already hung by the chimney with care in the Barry Rowland home.

In fact, all the Christmas decorations were up in readiness not only for Saint Nick, but also for the 200 visitors the family welcomed this weekend on the Holiday Home tour.

The annual event, sponsored by the Indian Springs Civic Club Ladies Auxiliary, drew visitors from all sections of the county and other areas as well.

Three north Shelby County homes were featured on this year's tour - the B.J. Harrises, the John Osts (covered in previous Reporter articles), and the Rowlands.

The necessity for early decorating of their home at 4914 Windward Circle, worked no hardship on the Rowlands. Explaining that she loves the Christmas season, Coleen Rowland said that she starts preparing for Christmas as soon as Thanksgiving is over.

Guests who went through the home on the weekend noticed that Rowland pays attention to even the smallest detail in her decorating.

The cuff on the stockings which hang on the mantel above the den fireplace match the room's draperies.

Attached to each stocking, is something which reveals the owner's identity -- such as the happy face on Mrs. Rowland's stocking, which denotes her work as an interior decorator. "I make houses happy,"

The Rowlands designed and built their Tudor-style home on Indian Crest two and a half years ago. Referring to the view from the crest, Rowland said it reminds her of a mini-Gatlinburg.

The furnishings in the 11-room home are contemporary with touches of Oriental.

Upon entering the home, the circular staircase is the fire; thing that catches the visitor's eve.

A formal living room is to the right, and a hallway to the left leads to a step down dining room.

Shoplifting is a crime

K mart, for instance, has observation towers and "loss prevention personnel" to watch particular suspects, says mamager Frank Kirk.

He adds that K mart considers any customer suspected of shoplifting, innocent until proven guilty. "We know its not the majority of our customers that shoplift."

Although most customers do their shopping the honest way, store owners are prepared for those who don't -- especially during this holiday season.

Business Briefs

Package plan

If you are an employer, how would you like to add to your employee benefits program at a 'reasonable cost'?

How would you also like to give each employee a chance to enjoy the 'highest level of small college athletic competition available in the Southeast'?

University of Montevallo Falcon Club Director Bob Riesener is asking exactly those questions. And, if the answer is yes, he wants to know if employers would be willing to do it, and receive a tax credit as well?

The Falcon Club's Varsity Industrial Package offers the following opportunities:

•In return for a $100 donation, a regular Falcon Club member could receive four season tickets to all events. But with the industrial package, ten season tickets are avilable instead.

•For a reular member, $250 gets five season tickets. But with the industrial package 20 tickets are offered.

•A $500 donation will get six ason tickets for a regular club member. But again, the industrial package offers a better deal. How about 30 season tickets?

·Finally, a regular club member can get seven season tickets in return for a $1,000 gift. But with the industrial package, 50 tickets can be received.

The employer simply devises his own method of distributing the tickets, picks the amount he would like to give, and the Falcon Club will send a sechdule of current sports events along with the season passes.

For more information contact the University of Montevallo.

Savers give to help family

A Chelsea family will have a 'Merry Christmas' thanks to employees and customers at a savings firm.

of First Southern Federal.

The three local branches of First Southern Federal are collecting items for a woman and her two children, ages four and six, according to Rita Akers of the Columbiana branch.

"The woman said she desperately needed shoes, any type of clothing, and food," said Akers.

"We're asking customers and any one who comes into the offices to contribute," she added. The collected items will be delivered on Dec. 21.

Akers said their goal was to give this family "a happy Christmas."

The cathedral ceiling den and master bedroom are at the end of the hallway on opposite sides.

Upstairs are the childrens' bedrooms. Sonya, 13, has her own room while ten-year old Brian and Jason, seven, share a room.

When the family isn't gathered in the den, they can usually be found in the spacious kitchen where the eating area provides a view of the wooded backyard.

Mrs. Rowland describes the color scheme of the home as "shades of peaches and cream."

Proceeds from the home tour will be given to the Attention Home and Shelby Youth Services and to the Shelby County Humane Society. By X-tra Section deadline Monday evening, organizers of the tour had been unable to furnish the Reporter with a tally on the proceeds.

Covering the news since 1843

He waited for the right time to come

Christmas 1944 had come and gone. I had prayed! I had prayed earnestly for that red bicycle. I knew that Santa Claus had little to do with my earnest desire, but I knew that God might be able to come through with that red bicycle. After all, God had saved this little boy of nine the year before. Surely red bicycles were no problem with God. Not when He was able to wipe away my sins and give me the gift of His Son!

However, the grim gray eastern Kentucky Christmas of 1944 had come and gone, and no bicycle! Now it was 1945, mid year, and I was now 10! Had God forgotten?

My mother and father's eyes seemed to reflect my lost wish. They had been through a depression economy and world war scarcity. They had not been able to help God to answer my prayer -although they had wanted to.

The world was expectant as the Sour Dock plant flourished in those summer days and the bobwhite's song dominated those summer nights --World War II had ended.

John, my big brother, telephoned from Jacksonville, Florida. The USS Roosevelt had just docked. The Navy was sending him home.

I waited and waited. I thought my seven year older brother would never arrive. Dad said that John had flown to Cincinnati, but was coming home by train the very next day. If there was one thing I wanted more than that red bicycle, it was for my big brave sailor brother to be home from war. I could forgive him for going to Cincinnati for a visit with my aunt and uncle and cousins

Next day! Long, long morning! But, 10 year old Kentucky mountain boys -- like Shelby County boys -- can always find a dog to chase or a creek in which to hunt crayfish. Noon time reminds young stomachs of mother's kitchen. A rush home brings back a memory -- maybe John is home, too.

Our home sat on a rise and the porch had a solid waist-high banister with black screens. So, I couldn't see it until I opened the screen door. There, parked in the middle of our big front porch -- right on that cleanly mopped and highly shined gray painted front porch that mother wouldn't allow anything to touch, particularly a muddy boy's feet -- stood a new red bicycle. On those wide silver handle bars was a big red bow, and dangling from that bow a Christmas gift card printed in John's big bold script: "To Bob, from John, Merry Christmas."

My heart broke that day on mother's front porch and my eyes flooded with joy. God hadn't forgotten. God was just waiting for the right time. A boy's faith needs to grow. And, he needs a big brother who knows that a boy of 10 needs a red bicycle. Not one of those flimsy English war-time models, but a big-framed, bold-fendered, tear-drop tanked, American Flyer Bicycle. And it came from the only place in the eastern United States where John, after many telephone calls, could locate a bicycle -- Cincinnati, Ohio.

What God completed on that first Christmas is sort of like the story of my red bicycle. For hundreds of years we had prayed for our salvation, God's Messiah. He didn't come! But in the fullness of time -- at just the right time in God's plan for us -- He sent His Son, our big brother. And the Messiah Son brought with Him our earnest desire, our salvation.

It is all so tender, all so simple, all so loving, all so vital. He came as a baby, He died as a man. We prayed! God heard! Jesus came! We are saved! Our joy is complete!

Doctor, lawman arrested

by Bert Seaman

A former Shelby County lawman and an Alabaster physician were arrested this week and charged with importing heroin.

A sparkle of light. A dangling ornament. The glistening of icicles. Second only to the high ideal behind the giving of gifts, the tradition of having a Christmas tree in one's home probably does as much as anything to evoke the joyous and festive feelings of this holiday season. Whether you cut your own from one of the area tree farms, or carry it out of the attic in a box, in most households the Christmas tree soon becomes the focal point of mystery as gifts await beneath its branches for opening on December 25. For more on what and how Shelby Countians have prepared for Christmas, see the many features throughout this holiday edition of the Reporter. (photo by David F.

Pelham council elects first woman

by Bert Seaman

The Pelham City Council will have a new look in 1984. For the first time in the city's history, a woman will be a member of the governing body.

At Monday's council meeting, Beverly Hall received the unanimous vote of the council to fill the seat vacated when former councilman John Tanner was elected to the legislature in November.

The term expires in October 1984. Hall is Principal of the Center for Exceptional Children and also serves on the Pelham Park Board.

Before making the motion to appoint her, councilman Willard Payne noted that the selection process was made tougher by the number of "good applicants."

Following the meeting Monday, Councilman Ken Maynard told the Reporter that Hall had demonstrated an ability for leadership and organization as a member of the park board.

The new councilwoman will be sworn into office at the January 2 meeting.

In other action:

•The council denied the request of Frank McCoy to change the zoning on approximately four acres of property he owns on US 261 near Stubbs Foundry.

McCoy asked that the property's zoning be changed from residential to industrial to allow a business that manufactures tv panels could locate there.

•A request for an on premises liquor license, which had been denied at the previous meeting, was brought up again by James Eugene Ryan.

This time the request was put on hold because the council didn't have the necessary papers from Ryan.

Ryan has told the council he plans to expand the interior and parking area of a lounge to be called BJ's. It was formerly the Coo Coo's Nest.

 After inspecting the traffic situation on Sykes Street, the council voted Monday to install speed breakers on the street. Rev. James Adams had previously cited the need to slow down speeders in that area, noting that children played in the Airport authority gets lease

by Fred Guarino

It's been a long time on the taxi-way but Shelby County's Airport Authority is finally off the ground.

Ironically, for Civil Defense Director Bill Tucker, the action means an end to his unpaid position as aviation administrator and a stop to his representing the airport to the commission.

On a motion by commissioner John Ames, the Shelby County Commission approved on Monday a 30-year airport authority lease. The action finally gives the authority legal grounds to operate the county airport.

It also brought to an end three years of discussion and nine months of commission meetings on the matter.

But in doing so, Ames also moved to do away with Tucker's volunteer position as airport representative and promoter to the county.

It was an unexpected result for the man who had been a major supporter of the airport authority concept, and longtime supporter of airport development.

"We should clarify our situation with the authority," Ames said. "And we should abolish Mr. Tucker as aviation administrator. Let him be fulltime civil defense director."

"Hopefully, the authority will try to get problems taken care of," said commission Harold Davenport who seconded Ames' motion.

Davenport pointed out that according to the lease agreement, commission chairman Tommny Snowden will represent the county in connection with the authority. Davenport said Snowden can do the job in place of Tucker.

With its new lease, the airport authority will have the right to negotiate agreements, to have responsiblity for operation and maintenance of the airport, and to promote the aviation interests of Shelby County.

Alabaster annexation issue draws fire

by Carolyn Smiley

Three residents of Alabaster's most recently annexed area are voicing anger and confusion over when and why they became a part of the city.

Colonel Gerald Totten, who lives just south of Thompson High School, asked the Alabaster Council Monday night if there was a misunderstanding in the description of the area taken in by the annexation. Totten said his questions stem from the legal advertisement being published in the Shelby County Reporter, which gives notice of a bill to be introduced in the legislature to "restate, confirm, and describe the boundaries and corporate city limits of the City of Alabaster,

Totten asked the council why it needed this restatement now that the issue has been voted on by the people, and was the previously named description of the city limits valid?

Totten said he had been paying taxes to the city of Alabaster since May of 1981 and he asked if that was the legal date of the annexation in light of this new bill before the legislature.

He also asked Mayor H.A. "Doc" Rubin when the city planned to build the fire hall he said was promised to the residents of this area as "an enticement to vote for the annexation."

Totten claimed the mayor twice promised to build a firehall in that area and even pointed out the site for the building.

John and Catherine Sarris, also residents of the annexed area, voiced anger at the way in which the city had handled the annexation.

John Sarris claimed that he asked the mayor to have his property left out of the annexation -- a request that was denied him, he noted, while other property owners were allowed to avoid the annexa-

Catherine Sarris accused the council of "not doing its homework" and said the redrawing of the city limits should have been done prior to now.

In response to Totten's questions, Rubin said the annexation was both legal

City Clerk Dot Henry went on to explain that the city's lawyers had reccommended this redefinition of the city limits because with all of the recent annexations, there was not a single, clearly defined description of the city limits.

Rubin and several of the councilmen went on to explain that because May 1981 was the legal date of the annexation, the city was entitled to the taxes that had been collected and put into an escrow account to pay for fire and police protection, as well as garbage pick-up. Rubin denied ever promising Totten a fire hall, saying the city could only provide fire and police protection at the present time. But, he said, a committee had been formed to look into the matter. In regard to the others' complaints,

Henry said Sarris approached the council too late to avoid being excluded by the an-

Rubin said the legal redescription was being done now because the city had been advised to so by its lawyers -- not because of any prior neglect.

Pelham storm victims request FEMA aid

Form filling

Federal disaster relief workers were in Pelham recently talking to flood victims. Among those who suffered from the high waters were Margaret and LeRoy Goldup. (Photo by Fred Guarino) by Carolyn Smiley Ray Payne isn't living in the Pelham home he purchased just four months ago. He's living in a travel trailer in his driveway.

Nor are his neighbors next door or across the street living in their homes.

All of these families are victims of the December 2-3 flooding and tornado-force winds that turned Shelby and three other Alabama counties into a federally proclaimed disaster area.

An insurance adjustor has visited Payne's home to inspect the damage done and fill out some paperwork, but Payne said that was two weeks ago. He hasn't heard from the agency since.

In the meantime, Payne has had all of his appliances checked out for damage, and he visited the Disaster Assistance Center opened in Pelham last week to apply for whatever aid they can offer.

But now he is mostly just waiting -- and growing more and more frustrated, Payne said. He doesn't expect to move back into his new Creekview home for two to three months.

Payne doesn't know where to place the blame, but he and his neighbors are "more than just a little frustrated" that nothing has been done.

In an attempt to help people like Payne, the Federal Emergency Management Agency opened three state and federal Disaster Assistance Centers in Alabama last Friday and Saturday to register victims of the severe storms for disaster aid.

FEMA agent Perry Jenifer told the Reporter that most first-day applicants were seeking assistance from the Individual and Family Grant program, temporary housing and the Small Business Administration.

Jenifer said 72 disaster victims registered at the Shelby County center which was located at the new North Shelby Health Building next to Pelham City Hall.

Of these applicants, 45 signed up for Individual and Family Grants which are designed to meet serious disaster-related needs.

According to FEMA guidelines, the amount of the grant depends on those needs not met by government assistance, insurance or assistance from voluntary agencies. No grant can be greater Forty-two applications for assistance in temporary housing were made by Shelby Countians, said Jenifer.

Temporary Housing Assistance is provided to disaster victims whose homes are not livable or who have beeen otherwise displaced as a result of plications for Home and Personal Property Disaster Loans.

These loans are provided to homeowners to repair or replace damaged real estate and personal

Although the disaster center in Pelham was open only Friday and Saturday, it is now closed. Jenifer said disaster victims can still apply for assistance, however, but will have to visit the individual offices of the various agencies making aid available to do so.

(President Reagan proclaimed Shelby, Jefferson, Calhoun, and Dallas federal disaster areas last Tuesday evening. According to FEMA coordinator Jack Glover, the word didn't reach Alabama until later that night -- after the Reporter had already gone to press.)

The final deadline for making applications for assistance is February 13, 1984. Questions about the various kinds of disaster aid available may be answered by calling the Disaster Hotline. That number is 1-800-821-4422. Jenifer also urged disaster victims to obtain damage repair estimates for their homes as quickly as possible.

Pelham asks feds for help in relocating flood victims

Relocation may be the best solution for families whose homes are flooded every time Bishop Creek

Pelham Mayor Burk Dunaway told the council Monday that he has been in contact with a federal agency that provides emergency relief.

However, the $4.7 million available from the Federal Emergency Management Agency has already been obligated for 1984, Dunaway

According to what he has read about the program, Dunaway said, the government would buy homes that qualify and deed them to the city.

The criteria for payment would be 50% damage from flooding or being flooded three times within a five year period with 25% damage.

Other guidelines require that the city show that there would be some use for the land after the removal of the homes.

When Bishop Creek overflowed December 3, 164 homes suffered flood damage.

The Mayor reported that city workers are still removing ruined carpet and discarded furniture from those areas.

Even though there is little hope of funding from FEMA this year, Dunaway said he will continue to apply in case funds become available.

Pipe firm's bonds okayed

The Alabaster Industrial Development Board has been given the green light to sell $900,000 in bonds for Valley Steel Products, Inc.

The Shelby County Commission Monday approved the public nature of the bond sale for the company, to be located outside the city's limits.

However, Valley Steel will not be completely tax exempt as the result of the industrial development bonds. At least, they won't be exempt from county taxes.

In approving a resolution to allow Alabaster to sell the bonds, the county commission included a provision that Valley Steel pay the county $4,800 annually in lieu of taxes for a period of ten years.

The new industry will process, thread, warehouse and distribute steel pipe.

requires that a public hearing being held and that county approval be received before any bonds are sold for an industry outside a city's limits.

SMC should weather change

by Marcia M. Sears

Guests at Shelby Medical Center's Christmas dinner heard a glowing report on the county hospital's finances. But that audit report was followed by a warning about how the new federal Medicare regulations will affect the hospital.

Bob Coats, partner with Ernst & Whinney, the accounting firm that has audited the hospital's books for 16 years, said the equity exceeds the debt at SMC. In most hospitals, it is the other way around.

He emphasized the hospital is in "very solid, sound, financial condition." The recent audit covers the fiscal year ended September 30, 1983.

Marc Neas, accountant with

Ernst & Whinney compared the future of hospitals with the recent experience of industry. He said hospitals face a new era, and the biggest challenge since 1966 when Medicare began.

Under the old rules the government paid 40 percent of SMC's costs, because about 40 percent of the patients were elderly and on Medicare. But, beginning July 1 of this year, Medicare has set predetermined prices for defined diagnoses and will not pay more.

Neas mentioned the airlines as having their rates protected by the government until deregulation. He said each airline met the challenge in different ways. As a result some are doing well, like Delta, some are just making it, like Eastern and some are out of business

"Shelby County should be a survivor," Neas said, predicting that 1,000 hospitals in the United States will go out of business as a result of the government Medicare action. He mentioned the strong management team and the strong medical team at Shelby as factors in its survival.

Jerome Turner of Harpersville, incoming chairman of the SMC board, gave an outline of the hospital's accomplishments during the past year.

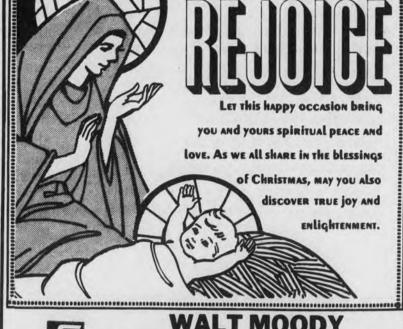

Among the items were: an angio-heart laboratory; a new building on highway 280; a medalert system; a student health service nurse program in connection with UAB, Samford and Nunnelley Tech; a student health service program with the University of Montevallo; ambulance service; redecoration of the main lobby, health fairs and CPR classes; infant restraint service, weight reduction surgery; Holton monitor scanning service; purchase of two professional office buildings; family practice residency program with the University of Alabama; and scheduling the expansion of the surgery department.

Turner said that future plans include a wellness center, cardiac surgery, special treatment programs for the elderly and expanded ambulatory care service.

The annual dinner was attended by county commissioners, past and present board members, representatives of the staff and their spouses.

Calera passes nearly $3 million budget

by Fred Guarino

The City of Calera has budgeted $2,928,609 for the fiscal year 1983-84.

The budget was passed recently by the city council over the objection of Councilman Mark Jones.

Even though the $737,539 general fund portion of the budget is down from last year's $785,239, Jones said he thinks that figure is too high.

"I think it is an excessive amount of money being spent by a town our size," he said. "All of the income calculated into this budget hinges on $150,000 from gas system profits, and I believe the general fund should be based only on tax producing revenues."

"From an overall standpoint, I believe we spend too much on operating to repave streets and make capital improvements," Jones added.

While Jones did not mention the Park and Recreation Deparment budget as a reason for his objections, he noted that it has been cut by 43 percent this year.

Jones represents the Calera Council on the Park and Recreation Department Board.

A complete breakdown of the general fund budget and comparison to last year is as follows:

•Administration, $91,793 (up from $89,208). Street Department, $191,860 (down from $208,940).

 Police Department, $257,350 (up from $254,976). •Fire Department, $30,624 (up from $27,612). Park and Recreation,$24,240 (down from $78,900).

•Emergency Rescue, $7,688 (down from $14,254). •Education Support, $7,293 (up from $6,825). •Special Projects, $22,475 (up from $400.00).

•Library, $11,413 (up from $8,415).

• Judicial, $7,800 (unchanged).

•General Maintenance $75,003 (down from $87,909). The gas department budget for this year is $2,040,811, down from $2,374,271 last year.

The sewer department budget is $150,259 up from $104,694

Other than the payment of bills, no actions were taken by the city council last Monday night.

Fires stir questions extinguished two fires in as many days this week.

One of those fires -- a house fire in Westover -- has apparently prompted hot comments over a lack of service in that area.

On Sunday the Chelsea volunteers answered a 1:30 p.m. call to the County 39 mobile home of Dewayne Taylor. According to assistant chief Don King, the fire was confined to the kitchen area where it apparently started.

At 1:15 p.m. Monday, Chelsea volunteers answered a house fire at the Westover home of Olan Hyde on County 55. (Hyde lives in the former residence of Wayne Archer.)

King said the sheriff's department tried to call the Westover Volunteer Fire Department, but got no response. He said the kitchen fire was spreading to the at-

Keep Christmas clean

Could ask for a train set that runs from Calera to Shelby. Could ask for a four-lane through Harpersville. Maybe an industrial park full of new jobs.

All would be good -- and needed -gifts for Shelby County this Christmas. But they would all would cost Santa and the taxpayers a bundle, or would be subject in part to decisions made by corporation executives elsewhere.

There is, however, one 'gift' the county can give -- or, as the case may be, take from -- itself this Christmas that wouldn't cost anything. Furthermore, it would actually save taxpayers money, as well as improve the overall quality of life and environment here. That gift is never to litter again.

Of course such a gift would have drawbacks. For instance, if the county were clean and attractive, we'd probably have to put up with more newcomers, growth and prosperity.

We'd miss the aroma of mutating microbes and be forced to breathe fresh

We'd probably have to put up with tourists who would come to vacation on our lakes and rivers. Whatever would we do with a new, clean industry like tourism? Probably be forced to hire people to handle it, and job applications are such a problem.

Then too, without illegal dumps to play in how would children ever develop the active imaginations necessary to pretend that all too many of our woods and roadsides are cluttered with thoughtless litter?

Thoughtless is, perhaps, the key word behind anyone who litters -- from a month's worth of family trash or the contents of the attic, to beer bottles and hamburger wrappers. Even a mere (yes, eventually bio-degradable) cigarette butt demonstrates the thoughtlessness behind litter.

The solution is simple. Care. Care about your home county. Teach your children to care. Get mad when others

Letters to the editor Are flood victims on own?

An Open Letter to Mayor Burk Dunaway and the Pelham City Council:

As an owner of a condominium in Chandalar, I am concerned about the lack of support from the city during the recent flood.

I began watching the water situation about 1:15 a.m. and began moving my cars and alerting neighbors about 1:30. The police/fire department was called at approximately 1:30 a.m. by Greg Sewell. I was outside with another neighbor when the firetruck drove to the end of the street (through the flooded street area). I was told they were evacuating the last four buildings but found later these people were not alerted by anyone. I would have taken care of this myself had I known. The fire department was in this area for about five minutes and left. This was prior to 2 a.m. I did not see them again until 6 o'clock as I was leaving the area.

Are we to expect assistance or a flood alert in the future or are we

"on our own"? Also, why is a trailer park allowed to remain in business in a flood plain known to flood every 19 to 24 months? The flood situation affects not only those directly flooded, but also the value of all property in Pelham.

If Pelham is to grow and have a "good name" we must do something about our flooding problem.

Please advise your answers to our problems.

Sincerely, Kelton Lawson 1907 Chandalar Court Pelham, AL 35124

Good Morning

The weekly 'Good Morning' column written by Milton Bird, is brought to you with the good wishes of the First National Bank of Columbiana, member FDIC.

by Milton Bird

They billed it The Christmas Legend of Nashville. Maybe it would be the best show we'd seen during the holidays. They were remembering the stars of yesteryear, all the songbirds and song writers who made Nashville

And they were good, each in his or her fashion. Today, looking back, it dawned on me that talent was neck deep to a tall indian anywhere you looked.

But there was something else too. The songs had lovely tunes hitched to 'em and words that said something and a melody that lingered on after the song had ended.

And, you know, not a soul, not a solitary soul, called and said our calf was outside the fence bleating for his mommy!

There was a rumor out, all the way from Mrs. Pitt's house on the corner to Mrs. McMillan's house on the hill, that Santa Claus had passed in his chips.

He was seven years old and didn't want to believe it. Maybe if he thought about speejink marbles or football or one-eyed-cat the rumor would go away. Maybe those big guys didn't know everything anyhow.

He didn't go to sleep right away that night. He tumbled a little and changed positions and pulled the cover. Finally he went to sleep and woke up Christmas morning to find his stocking full of goodies and an air-rifle next to his

Almost everywhere, up and down nearly every avenue, there was a boy or a girl, or both, that might not see Santa Claus. But the days hurried on, one after another, until it was Christmas Eve, the night before Christmas.

On Christmas morning, in every yard, up and down every street, children were happy and Santa hadn't missed a single house. Not a one. Because people cared. Maybe it was the nicest thing we did all year.

The spirit of Christmas can find you anywhere

by Iris F. Smitherman

Christmas... just the word itself brings some type of mystical excitement to me. I guess it's because it has always been associated with happiness and peace in my life.

I can't ever remember a Christmas that wasn't spent with my family and friends, and that doesn't hold a special place somewhere in

Oh sure, there have been times, when I got out of bed on Christmas morning and thought 'Geez, what's so special about today?' But nine times out of ten there would be something special about that particular December day.

This year, as in years past, there are some citizens of the United States who are not fortunate enough to wake up and go to grandma's for breakfast, mom's for lunch, or to a close friend's house to exchange gifts or even a Merry

While we are nestling in our cozy beds to the sound of 'Silent Night', many of our fellow Americans far away are trying to make themselves comfortable in a cot, dreaming about mom's special recipe of turkey and dressing, and hoping that they will, indeed, have a 'silent night'.

There isn't a whole lot we as citizens of this country can do individually for the military personnel in Lebanon who are fighting for their lives on a 'peaceful mission'. (I use the term 'peaceful' lightly, because it has certainly been anything but that at times...)

We can, however, enjoy the freedom during this Christmas season that each and every one of those people are fighting for. And although it will be a somewhat strange day for them, the Christmas Spirit has a way of traveling to remote places, and I personally think it will be in Lebanon December 25!

Whether you wake up staring at the twinkling lights on that beautiful Christmas tree in your living room, or you find yourself spending that special day in a hospital, or any place but where you'd rather be... MERRY CHRISTMAS.

Have a safe and happy holiday season, and remember when you're driving to watch out for the other guy!

The Alabama Scene

by Bob Ingram

One of the best known cartoons ever published (it appeared in The New Yorker Magazine at least 40 years ago) was a drawing of the Roman Coliseum during the first century when the persecution of the Christians was at its peak. Atop the coliseum in the cartoon was a large scoreboard which read, "Lions 34, Christians

If there was a scoreboard atop the State Capitol this week in the aftermath of the recent special session, it could well read, "Wallace 34, Mobile 0." The similarity between the special session and the cartoon doesn't end with the score. The Mobile legislative delegation and supporters of the University of South Alabama would insist they too were thrown to the lions. It was that rough.

The particulars you surely know. A year ago then Gov. Fob James gave some 7,700 acres of off-shore land in Mobile Bay to the University of South Alabama. This property is perceived to be rich in oil and natural gas, but just how rich is subject to some debate.

No matter, Gov. George Wallace felt strongly -- very strongly -- that it was grossly unfair that the Mobile university should get all the revenue this property is expected to produce -- be it $14 million, which is the low estimate, or several hundred million dollars, which is the high estimate. He argued, rightly, that many agencies of state government are operating from nearly-bare cupboards, and that this money should be used for the benefit of all Alabamians.

It was a persuasive argument -- all Alabamians agreed with him, at least their legislators did, except those from Mobile. Give the Port City group their just due, they fought as hard as they could. They called Wallace all manner of names, there were demands for his impeachment from the Mobile newspapers, one Mobile legislator actually was reduced to tears during the debate on the floor.

It was all for naught. Wallace got what he wanted. The bill was passed voiding the patent on the property given to the University of South Alabama. Then rubbing salt in the wound, the Legislature passed a resolution telling the USA trustees in the plainest of language to discontinue their legal action to retain control of the

It was clear-cut, one-sided victory for Wallace. On his next trip to Mobile, it isn't likely the governor will be greeted with a ticker tape parade. More like brick bats and rotten eggs.

Letters to Santa Claus

In case you never knew, Santa stays pretty busy this time of the year. With all the millions of boys and girls around the world who want gifts for Christmas, it's not hard to imagine.

Knowing Santa's busy, a number of boys and girls played it safe with their wish lists and sent them to the newspaper -- after all, Santa reads the Reporter too!

Dear Santa:

My name is Candy. I am 8 years old. All I want for Christmas is a Baby Skate, Dallas, pair of Lee jeans, a blouse and some candy, nuts and fruit.

Love, Candy Thomas Vincent

Dear Santa Claus:

I've been good all year and I haven't given my mother or my father much hassle. I would like all of this for Christmas.

A disk 4000, an Armantron, a small TV, a telescope set with a stand, a archery set, a Vic 20 computer, a 2 way speaker box, a U-turn Police chase, a Knight Rider race track, a Swiss army knife, a game called Life, a game called Bargain Hunter, a soccer ball, a letter from you, a handcuff case, a Lego set 556.

A big nice safe happy Christmas and that's all.

Love, Chris Alley Montevallo

Dear Santa Claus:

Merry Christmas, how are you? I am fine. I think you are the best man in the whole world besides my dad.

This Christmas I want a Barbie doll house. I love you very much Santa. I lived in Shelby, now I live in Wilsonville. In Wilsonville Library we had a Santa workshop. We had fun. We all bought different presents.

Love, Nikki Clemons Wilsonville

Dear Santa:

I want a real watch please.

Gene Montevallo

Dear Santa: I have been good. I want roller skates, and a camping set, and Superman pajamas. Please bring Daddy something nice. Please bring Mommy something nice, too. My brother wants some toys. What can I give you?

Love, Mikey Montevallo

Dear Santa:

I would like to have a girl's 3 speed bike. And if you can't get me that, I would like a tape recorder. To top that a Cabbage Patch kid would be nice. I know I am asking a lot but all of this could be mine. Love Shirley Mae Poe

P.S. I've been good and bad. P.S.S. Have a wonderful Christmas.

What's for Christmas?

What's for Christmas? We don't know exactly what two-year old Ashley Spires of Chelsea is expecting Santa to bring her, but it must be something funny. Undoubtedly, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Kendrick, have helped her put in a word to the jolly old elf. (photo by Shelba Nivens)

Dear Santa:

I would like a Barbie Pool. Tracey and a Curley Twirl Doll, a Barbie sleeping bag, and other nice things. Christy Ann Kelly

Columbiana

Dear Santa: I love you. These are the toys that I want for Christmas. Bicycle, Speak 'n' Spell, Barbie house, puzzle, Doctor kit, swing set, Baby Skates.

Love, Eren Sorensen

P.S. An organ, house coat, Spin Around Smurf game, Shirt tales puzzle, Plastic Smurfette puzzle.

Merry Christmas, Montevallo! We appreciate your support in 1983.

Tree trimming woes are part of holiday

I guess everyone has decorated already for the holiday season and you're probably looking at those twinkling lights on the tree right now... right?

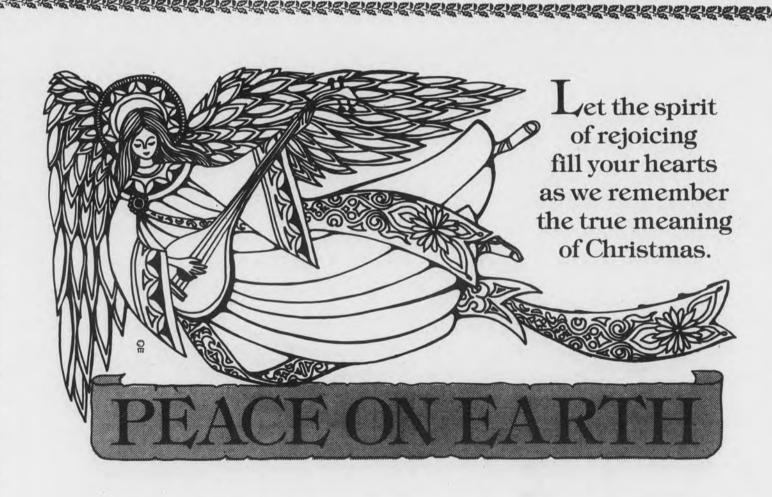

My holiday decorating leaves something to be desired this year. It seem's that when I made the big move from the Ridge to 'Coontown' I threw away the top half of my 6 foot artificial tree.

But being optimistic about the whole thing, I remembered that I also had a 3 foot tree stashed away in the closet which my Granny had given me some years

So... what else did I do but put the 3-footer on top of the bottom of the 6-footer? Easier said than done! I mean I tried to nail it together, clamp it together, even Super glue it together...

To make a long story not quite as long, the tree is semi-together, and has a slight resemblance to the leaning tower of Pisa. Anyway, it's kind of exciting to see just how long it will stay in one(?) piece.

I guess it could be worse... I could have lost the bottom half of the tree, right?

We will be closed on Monday, December 26, 1983.

Calera woman is proud of 'adopted kid' and hand prints, and a cigar saying, 'It's a boy!"

Now all of this may not sound too original, but considering that Clyde Lambert is a doll, makes for a different story. And Clyde Lambert isn't just any doll, nor just any Cabbage Patch Kid. He's an original Xaviar Roberts Adopt-a-Doll.

Clyde was given to Gates by a college friend of her daughter, who happened to be one of the founders of the original 'baby factory' in Georgia.

Gates, a resident of Calera, says Clyde is a 'premature baby' -- meaning that he has no hair (of

"He's monogrammed on his little baby fanny and he's got the cutest navel you've ever seen!" she adds laughingly.

"And the prettiest brown eyes
-- when you hold him in your arms he just looks up at you like he wants you to say something to him."

With the recent Christmas craze for the Coleco version of Clyde -- the famed Cabbage Patch Doll -- Gates says she's worried about Clyde's safety.

"I used to take him with me everwhere I went, but I'm afraid to take him out these days," she says. "You know there are so many people in Birmingham knocking other people down to get those Cabbage Patch dolls, I know they'd want Clyde!" (For more on the Cabbage Patch craze, see Page X-1 of the Reporter.)

Just in case, Gates is keeping her precious possession close by, at least until the Christmas rush is over.

What is Clyde getting from Santa?

His own bassinet and blanket. But don't tell Clyde -- Mrs. Gates wants it to be a surprise!

Pet tag tree

Dottie Abele's airedale Lisa was the hit of the evening when members of the Shelby County Humane Society Auxiliary held their annual Christmas party last week. Here young Thomas Snowden visits with Lisa as her owner, Lynn Fridley and Beverly Brackett look on.

Thirty-eight of the tags on the Pet Christmas tree at the Shelby County Humane Society were put there by Eunice Huntress.

Christmas fund. A total of $3,000 was collected to buy toys, candy and fruit for needy children.

All the tags which decorate the white pine outside the shelter in Columbiana, are hung there in memory of an animal that has died, or in honor of a living pet.

In Huntress' case, the tags represent a parade of pets that have belonged to the family at one time or another during the past 32 years.

At one point, Huntress said, the houshold consisted of a horse, a dog, 14 cats, a rabbit, a snake and a turtle.

Last year the Auxiliary raised $267 from the animal Christmas tree, and treasurer Lynn Edgemon reported that tags are almost completely covering the tree already this year.

There's still room for more though, and anyone interested in having their pet's name put on the tree may get further information by calling the Humane Society, 669-4562.

At the Auxiliary's annual Christmas party last week, President Dottie Abele told the Reporter that the group has contributed $1,500 to the Humane Society during the past two months.

Auxiliary members gathered at Abele's home on Oak Mountain Friday for their second Christmas party.

Airport authority

he added.

Tucker's 30-day reference had to do with the county's past agreement to give airport opponents prior notice of any actions.

In general, Tucker felt the action to abolish his position was peculiar.

And what does he think of the new lease agreement?

"It still doesn't give them (the airport authority) any money to match federal funds with. The federals have got money going to Pell City, Jasper, and Bessemer. Everyone is getting help to the east, west, and north of us," Tucker said.

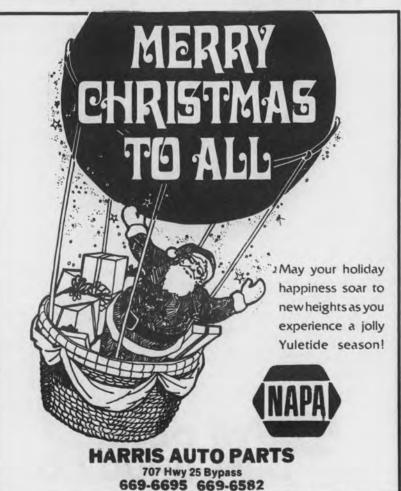

"I can't understand... If you can get 95 percent of your assets paid for, I don't know why they (the county) wouldn't go for it.

What's the reason for having the authority if (the commission) doesn't want to put out any money," he said.

Tucker pointed out that the federal government had money available for the Shelby County Airport in October. All the county had to do was ask.

The former airport adminsistrator said he had never had much luck in going to the county. He indicated that it might be rough for the new airport authority to get those funds as

Inverness girl killed

An eight year-old Inverness girl died as the result of an automobile bicycle accident in Inverness, Saturday.

Jennifer Link of 303 Heath Drive, was pronounced dead at Carraway Hospital at 1:47 p.m. Her bicycle reportedly collided with a car at the entrance of Inverness Country Club at 12:45 p.m.. She was flown to Carraway by medical helicopter.

Link is survived by her parents, Charles and Sandra Link.

Drug arrests

U.S. Attorney Frank Donaldson told the Reporter.

Federal, state and local agencies involved in the investigation include the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Alabama Bureau of Investigation, the US Customs Service, US Postal Inspectors, and the Shelby County Sheriff's Department.

Donaldson said that evidence against the two men will be presented to the federal grand jury which convenes January 3.

When you have a prescription filled at Davis Drug, you get more than medicine. You get the comfort of written guidelines—things you need to know about the medicine you're taking.

Either of our two registered pharmacists can fill your prescriptions from our full stock, or compound what you need on the spot. Then our computer gives you a complete record of your prescription for tax or insurance purposes—at no extra charge.

Next time, rely on Davis Drug to fill your prescriptions. You'll see why people say we're more than just another drug store.

New church

More than 300 people attended the consecration service for the new building constructed by the First United Methodist Church of Alabaster. It was the first service to be held in the auditorium of the $340,000 building. Methodist Bishop Carl F. Sanders and Sylacauga District Superintendent Earl Gordon participated in the service along with Tom Hammons, pastor of the church.

Xmas eve candlelight service planned

The traditional candlelight Christmas Eve service will again be held at the Montevallo Presbyterian Church this year.

The service will include readings, carols, and lighting the Advent wreath. This will be followed by a candlelight Communion service.

Rev. Tom Cheatham extends a warm welcome to everyone to attend the service, which will begin

The church is located on the corner of Shelby and Alabama Streets in Montevallo.

Alabaster Methodists move to new church

Carrying the baptismal bowl, Reverend Tom Hammons led the congregation of Alabaster's First United Methodist Church out of their old building and into a new one Sunday.

Church members were asked to carry something from the former sanctuary as they followed Hammons down the driveway, into the new $340,000 structure.

Some carried hymnals, others had pew Bibles, registration pads and pencils.

In divesting the old building of the items of worship, Hammons said members were asked to choose something that would carry memories of what had taken place in the old building.

Approximately 300 people took part in the service of consecration -- the first service to be held in the new structure.

Ground was broken for the building in March and $300,000 worth of bonds were sold within 48 hours of their issuance.

Now that the congregation is meeting in the new building, the former sanctuary will be divided into Sunday School classrooms and a small chapel.

Bishop Carl J. Sanders delivered the sermon at the consecration service and Sylacauga District Superintendent Earl Gordon also took part in the service.

Wildcats, Eagles win in fourth classic

by Fred Guarino

The Shelby County Wildcats had to regroup and the Calera Eagles had to explode last Thursday night.

But -- and this is important -- both did what it took to win in the fourth annual Calera Classic Basketball Tournament.

By virtue of an 82-74 (closer than it sounds) victory over Altamont, the 6-4 Wildcats won the event for the second straight year. In an even more exciting contest, however, Calera placed for the first time in four years.

Big change

Calera may not be number one in basketball as this happy Eagle indicates but his enthusiasm is understandable and forgiveable. Calera placed for the first time in its own four-year-old tournament last Thursday night. The Eagles defeated Briarwood for third place. (Photos by Fred Guarino)

With a stunning 71-40 upset, the Eagles defeated the Briarwood Christian Lions for third place honors.

While Calera enjoyed the easiest route of all to glory, both the Eagles and the Wildcats drew byes in the tournaments opening round. In the meantime Briarwood defeated West Blocton 58-51 and Altamont out distanced Jemison 59-53.

Second round action saw Shelby County beat the Lions 68-64 to reach the finals, and Altamont defeat Calera by one bucket 65-63. This all set the Wildcats for their meeting with the Knights of Altamont and the Eagles for a consolation confrontation with the Lions. Calera 71, Briarwood 40 At 6:30 p.m. Calera took the floor against Briarwood, a team which beat them earlier in the season. The first period went pretty much as expected. The Lions scored first and kept the Eagles off the scoreboard for over five minutes.

When Calera did score, the best it could do was trail 10-6. The second period, however, proved something of a surprise. The Eagles fought the Lions to a tie on four occasions, 10-10, 16-16, 18-18

Then something happened! Calera exploded for what onlooking football coach Danny Alverson called the most offense by the Eagles in "five years."

When the half came to a close, the Lions found themselves trailing minutes," shiny headed Calera basketball coach Mark Lovett explain-

But considering that his team is now 2-5 on the season counting the third place finish, Lovett was also surprised by his squad's offensive

"Sometimes people beat our butts, getting layups off that," he admitted. "It works sometimes and sometimes it doesn't. It worked that

However, the Eagles didn't rest on their first half success. They came out in the third period like a team possessed and breezed to a

Behind the hot shooting hands of Willie Taylor, the Eagles took the win home 71-40. Taylor accounted for 15 points and Greg Haynes took care of the boards with 16 rebounds.

"It's a big change for us," Haynes later told the Reporter. "I think this is the beginning for us."

"We shot 38 shots from the lane but just couldn't get it to go down," was the only comment Briarwood Coach Steve Franklin could

The loss evened Briarwood at 4-4 on the year.

Shelby County 82, Altamont 74 The Shelby County Wildcats on the other hand led most of the way in their championship bout except for the final seconds of the first period. Altamont managed to convert Wildcat fouls into a 13-12

Shelby County regained the lead in the second period at 36-26, but the scare was just beginning. Even though the Wildcats continued to lead through the third period, Altamont pulled the game within one bucket 55-57.

That set up a fourth period shootout -- not to mention heart stopping battle -- between the Birmingham based foes and the local

The scoreboard saw Shelby County lead by two, then by one. It saw the Wildcats also drop behind by one and suddenly all tied up at 57-57

But like a blessing, fouls began to turn against Altamont and the Wildcats began to hit the needed buckets. They went on to take the victory 82-74, the tournament crown, and to up their season record to a winning 6-4.

Lady Falcons aren't disappointing to fans

At the start of the season optimism was high surrounding the 1983-84 edition of the Golden Falcons basketbal team. Through seven games people haven't been disappointed.

After dropping it's first two games they have put together a five-game winning streak and have broken six school records.

The team is young -- starting four sophomores and a junior -- and has been hitting on all cylinders over the past three games. without the board work of Scott, Sharen Douglas (5'11", forward) and Robin Haire, (6'1", center)." MONTEVALLO 98 -

TALLADEGA COLLEGE 62 The Golden Falcons set school records for most points scored -- 98 -- field goals made -- 47-- field goal percentage in one half -- 68% (23-34) -- field goal percentage for a game -- 64% (47-73)-- and for assists -- 33. Montevallo was led by Scott's 22 points, Perkins 17, Douglas 16 and French 14. Douglas grabbed 11 rebounds and Scott 10 while Perkins dished out 13 assists.

"I've really been pleased with our team effort in our last three games," said coach Bud Childers. "In the first 10 minutes in each of those games we've gone out and established the game tempo and forced our opponent to adjust."

The tempo the Golden Falcons have set is one that combines hot shooting from the floor, a tight defense and a running game.

"At the start of the season we felt our shooting would be one of our weaknesses but it has been a plus. For the season we have shot 51% (216-420) from the field and over the last three games have shot 59% (107-180). When you shoot like that you are going to beat some people."

Childers added that the game isn't won by just playing on one end of the court and praised the Golden Falcons defense.

"Our defense has been making things happen.

We are forcing the opponent to take bad shots and keeping them from getting anything going on offense. Our opponents are shooting 38% (176-455) from the field and in the last three games have shot 32% (63-192). If you can keep the other team from scoring you've got half the battle won."

The part of the Golden Falcons game that is really turning on the crowd is the running game. Montevallo is averaging 82.3 points over the last three games.

"You can credit our running game to Judy Perkins (5'5" guard), Karen Scott (5'9", forward) and Lynette French (5'7", guard). Those three can really get down the floor and are looking to run at every opportunity. Of course we couldn't run UPCOMING GAMES

Next up for the Golden Falcons are Central Arkansas (Jan. 6) and Arkansas-Monticello (Jan. 7) at West Florida in Pensacola, FL. In the NAIA pre-season poll Central Arkansas was ranked ninth and Arkansas-Monticello received votes and was considered a potential top twenty team. "Both the schools from the state of Arkansas are excellent teams with outstanding players,"

> DISTRICT 27 PLAYER OF THE WEEK

The University of Montevallo's Karen Scott has been named as the NAIA District 27 basketball Player-of-the-Week for December 4-11.

The 5 9" sophomore guard played her finest game of the season against Talladega College.

Scott scored 22 points, hit 10-11 from the field and pulled in 10 rebounds. She is leading the team in scoring at 17.1 points per game and is second in rebounding at 7.4 per game.

"Karen is an integral part of our team," said Childers. "She presents defensive problems for our opponents in that she is a small forward playing guard with the ability to go inside. She can carry a team without anybody really noticing it."

Wilsonville kids play Santa for computer

Wilsonville Elementary School students turned down Christmas presents in favor of computer software.

Instead of the usual gift exchanges and presents for their teachers, the students decided they would rather put that money into buying programs for the computer the school won last spring in a subscription contest sponsored by the Reporter.

So last week, when students brought their money -- $1 or more -- it was attached to a cord and draped garland style around a Christmas tree on the school

Although the students gave up gifts for themselves, they continued their custom of giving the burned. less fortunate a helping hand.

Before school closed Friday for the holidays, students gathered in the auditorium for an assembly program put on by the first and second grades.

The program also included a visit from Santa Claus who had a bagful of candy for the children.

All tournament team named in Calera Classic

The fourth annual Calera Classic Basketball Tournament brought some outstanding action to Shelby County last week.

With competion like Shelby County, Calera, Briarwood, West Blocton, Jemison and Altamont, it also brought some outsanding individual performers.

Named to the All Tournament Team were:

David Wood, Ambrose Wood and Kenneth Jones of Shelby County; Tommy Coggins and Steve Alby of Altamont; Greg Haynes and Kenny Marsh of Calera; Wesley Gibson of Jemison; Dewayne Hill of West Blocton; Bob Farris and Bobby Welch of Briarwood.

Shelby County's David Wood was named Most Valuable Player.

Falcons win four

The UM Falcons basketball team won it's fourth straight game of the season by beating Miles College 82-72.

The win raised Montevallo's record to 7-1 and the Falcons are 1-0 in District 27 action.

"I am real pleased with the win," said coach Bill Elder. "Miles is a much improved team over last year and have been playing well. They gave Birmingham-Southern all they could handle before losing 76-73."

Montevallo combined a good shooting second half and a strong rebounding night to pull out the road victory. The Falcons led 37-36 at the half but shot 56 percent (14-25) in the second half which turned out to be the difference in the game. Montevallo controlled the boards holding a 42-30 advantage.

"The key to the game was our shooting in the second half," said Elder. "We played a poor first half but the kids played with more intensity in the second half and the shots started to fall."

Sophomore forward Kennedy King broke out of a scoring slump in a big way leading the Falcons with 20 points on 7 of 10 shooting. Other Falcons in double figures were junior guard Dexter Walker 14 points, senior guard Anthony Glaude 12 and junior center Curtis Campbell 10.

Senior forward Richard Dorsey led Montevallo with seven rebounds.

But the Falcons basketball team saw it's winning streak snapped at four when it lost to Troy State. From the field, UM hit 30-56 shots while Troy State connected on 25-39, but the difference in the game came at the free throw line where the Falcons were 10-13 and the Trojans

The loss overshadowed a brilliant offensive performance by Montevallo's Anthony Glaude. The 6'3" senior guard scored 35 points on 65% (15-23) shooting from the floor that brought the Falcons back from a 18-point deficit to within four with 2:30 to play.

Next up for the Falcons is the AUM Blue-Gray Classic in Montgomery on Dec. 29-30. Montevallo opens the tournament with William Carey and Auburn-Montgomery plays Xavier of New Orleans in the other game.

In addidtion to the wreaths, students in Pendleton's class also made ornaments to dress up the school for an open house on December 6.

Assisting with putting up the decorations were Barry Studdard, Tracie Cecil, Melissa Payne.

'Signs of Christmas' was the theme of the open house which included a musical program presented by the MMS chorus, a choral reading performed by section 6-1, and two mythical skits put on by ERC students.

All of the entries from a poster contest relating to the songs of Christmas were also on display at the open house.

The first prize in the contest went to sixth grader Brandy Lucas; Karen Brantley's poster took the second place award.

Guests were welcomed to the open house by Student Council President Britt Blake and PTO President Sue Wilder.

The program opened with a devotional given by seventh graders Richard Tripp and Mike Allen.

Part of a series of messages from South Central Bell.

What's going to happen to my phone service?

As of January 1, 1984, South Central Bell and other local Bell telephone companies will be separated from AT&T.

After divestiture, there will no longer be a Bell System as we know it today. But South Central Bell will still be your phone company. As part of a holding company called BellSouth, we'll continue to provide dependable service. For your home. And for your business.

Some things won't change.

Although there will be many changes, you'll notice very few unless you choose to change your existing home or business phone service. You'll still call on South Central Bell to order or change a phone line, to ask billing questions, to get local calling options and services and to obtain repair of phone lines. At the time of divestiture you'll still dial long distance calls the same way. And at first, you'll still get a single monthly bill.

Some things will change.

· Even though you'll dial calls the same, using the South Central Bell local network, South Central Bell will actually provide only a portion of your in-state long distance service. For other in-state and out-of-state long distance calls you can choose a primary supplier of long distance service from a variety of companies.

the second secon

 As part of the many pricing changes brought about by competition and divestiture, local phone rates are likely to go up, and long distance rates will probably come down.

· Phones you currently lease will become the property of AT&T (you'll lease from them) and they will be responsible for repair of those sets.

 Responsibility for repair will be split between South Central Bell (for phone line problems) and equipment suppliers (for equipment and set problems).

There will be some changes in the way your monthly phone bill is set

Coping with change.

At South Central Bell we're continuing to do everything we can to make these changes as easy as possible for you. And nothing will change the high quality of service you've come to expect from us.

You'll be hearing more about specific changes and what they mean to you in other ads like this - and in your monthly phone bill insert. He was without a father figure...

'Big brother' fills void in Chelsea boy's life

by Shelba Nivens

Lee Patterson was an only child. After his parents separated he was left without any sort of father-figure in his young life.

But thanks to a very special program, he now has a 'big brother' with whom to share his life and do 'men things.'

The Chelsea first grader and Ed Savela of Inverness are part of the United Way Big Brothers/Big Sisters program which works to provide one-on-one friendships between children and adults. The two have been together only two months but have already formed a fast friendship and enjoyed several outings together.

"It has been such a help to Lee," said the boy's mother Jane Patterson, who is in ill health and cannot do many things with her son. "He already loves Ed so much, and is so thrilled."

Lee's excitement over the arrangement is evident as he introduces Savela: "This is my big brother Ed!"

He tells in great detail about their hiking trip at Oak Mountain Park where they cooked hot dogs on Ed's Coleman stove and raced soft drink bottle boats in a stream. Savela allowed Lee to take along his new puppy, Fluffy. Lee said Fluffy ate as many hot dogs as Ed did.

Lee also likes to tell about his fishing trip with his 'big brother'.

"I was the only one that caught a fish," he announces proudly. "Ed didn't catch one because he had a heavier lead and his line wouldn't go as far as mine."

Savela, an accountant for Foster and Kleiser Outdoor Advertising, transferred to Birmingham from Florida last summer. He is originally from Detroit and the oldest of four children. With his family still back in Michigan, he had time to become involved in the Big Brothers program, and he felt that he would have something to offer a young guy, he says.

The 31-year old applied to the program soon after moving to the area. Jane Patterson had already made application for her son after seeing a tv advertisement for Big Brothers.

Lee, however, was then only six and participants must be at least seven years old. His application was held until after his birthday on October 28, and by that time, Ed had applied.

After both applicants received clearance by the organization, Big Brother representative Steve Kirkland brought Ed out to meet Lee.

"It worked out really well because both Lee and I enjoy the out-of-doors," said Savela, "he is a great little guy."

Savela explained that the Big Brothers program requires that participating adult and child are together at least three hours a week, but he and Lee are usually together more than that because he really enjoys their time together.

Program needs volunteers

Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Greater Birmingham serves Jefferson, Shelby and Walker counties

At this time, the group has close to 290 matches between children and adults, according to Assistant Director Steve Kirkland. However, the majority of these are in Jefferson County, he said, due to a shortage of volunteers in Walker and Shelby.

The aim of the program is one to one friendship between an adult and a child, offering friendship and guidance to children of one-parent families.

Adult volunteers must be at least 18 years of age and out of high school. They must have a car with liability insurance and be willing to give to the program at least three to four hours a week for no less than one year.

Both adult and child applicants must go through an in-take and screening process, said Kirkland. The child's parents, or parent, is interviewed and a visit is made to the home to see the child in his/her own setting. Little Brothers must be between the ages of 7 and 13. Little Sisters must be from 7 to 15.

Big Brothers volunteers go through orientation and training programs and have a personal interview with a case worker. They are screened, personal references are run and both employer and police checks are made on them.

"We want to be sure they have the right motives and background and are reliable, steady, and stable adults," Kirkland said.

The organization tries to match a Big Brother and Little Brother or a Big Sister and Little Sister who live no more than a 15 or 20 minute drive from each other. Interests of both parties are considered along with background, personal preferences and special needs.

Kirkland said that Shelby County presently has only five matches with three young boys waiting for Big Brothers.

At Christmas, this special time of giving, perhaps the best gift you could give someone is to be a Big Brother to him.

If you would like to help people fill out their income tax forms, the Internal Revenue Service wants to hear from you.

The IRS is encouraging the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance program again this year, and needs some volunteers to work in the Columbiana office.

To become a VITA volunteer, no special background in tax information is required. Anyone who can comprehend simple directions can qualify to volunteer, according to Peggy Mays of the Birmingham IRS of-

She said that retired professional people or retired teachers often enjoy this volunteer activity, but she stresses that anyone is welcome.

welcome.

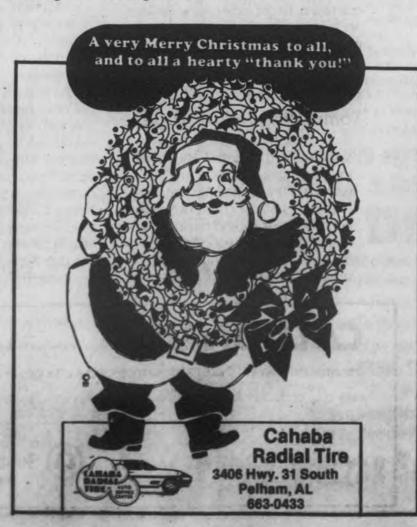

The IRS will give three days of training in Birmingham on January 4, 5, and 6. Then the volunteers will help people who have simple income tax figures, make out their tax returns.

The volunteer office in Montevallo will be handled by students from the university business department.

Depression can be dealt with...

Holidays magnify the lonliness of shattered lives

"Randy was a friend of mine...."

The words are the beginning of a tragic but true story, told by John Brumley of the Chilton-Shelby Mental Health Center.

The executive director's story is one about depression -- a condition in which life becomes hopeless and too much to handle -- and, in this case, depression's suicidal result.

Brumley, along with the Mental Health Association in Shelby County, notes that Christmas and New Years are the beginning of the peak season for depression.

For those who have lost a loved one, that loss is frequently felt heavily during the holiday period. Rememberances of happy past holidays with that person, intensify the loneliness and increase the sadness, Brumley and association report.

The holidays are also far from merry for many recently divorced persons. For the partner who has not established a new relationship, Christmas is a great time of depression.

"Often people who become depressed at this time of year, remain depressed throughout the winter unless they get help," Brumley adds. "Many who do not get help, kill themselves when spring comes -- the peak season for suicide."

For the children of a recently divorced couple, the holidays are often hard... especially if there is bitterness in the relationship between

But Brumley and the mental health association agree that depression generally responds well to treatment. Unfortunately, they note that only a fraction of the depressed people in this county seek and get the proper treatment.

Randy (not his real name) is one sad example.

"Randy seemed like he always needed to talk," Brumley remembers. "Most people who knew Randy would describe him as lonely and unhappy. He'd been that way for years.

"From time to time, people could hear Randy remark 'I'm no good and people would be better off without me.' He was an educated professional man who would also sometimes say, 'I just want to blow myself away.'

"But everyone had heard him say that often enough that they would say 'that's just Randy.

"The last month of his life was quite different." Brumley suddenly pauses. "All of us noticed he was more cheerful and energetic than we had ever seen him before. Those of us that knew him best were terribly shocked when we learned of his death."

Brumley's friend died as the result of a self inflicted shotgun blast to the chest.

"It was a well planned but poorly executed suicide," Brumley also recalls. "He bled slowly to death."

"I remember how some of us felt we probably had opportunities to help if, if we had only taken him seriously," he says.

Depressed people, however, can do things to help themselves, Brumley advises.

"They can accomplish this through professional guidance, through involvement with other people, and through actually finding ways to

But, the director stresses, a qualified professional should be con-

"People who have friends or relatives who are depressed should urge them to make these contacts and get help." A case with a happy ending is a point in favor of professional

Shattered relationships can lead to depression

"Sherry was at her wits end," Brumley says, recalling another local case. "She had problems with 4-year-old Billy and her husband Jim (all names changed).

"Nearly every day for months, Jim came home from work and got into an argument with Billy. The last time he spanked him, he left bad

"Billy might be described as a hyper-active child... seemed like he was always getting into something. This did not go with Jim's ir-

"Finally, Sherry decided to go to the mental health center for counseling. She had found herself in a trap. Often people have fleeting thoughts of suicide in this situation.

"In six weeks, Sherry was able to learn what she could do to make things better. She modified her child's diet by reducing his surger intake, and she showed her child attention at appropriate times instead of when he was misbehaving.

"Every evening when Jim came home she spent time with Billy and the home situation changed dramatically."

But Jim began to take out his frustrations on Sherry before he came to the mental health center for help.

"Jim finally came in and they were able to work as a family on their problems," Brumley smiles. "Jim was able to overcome negative feelings about himself, resulting in a strong family relationship."

The real happy ending...

"The counselors heard little Billy say at the end, 'Daddy's no longer mean to me.' In fact," Brumley smiles, "Billy had become a daddy's boy."

Auburn honors 4-H manager

Terrell Guthrie, manager of 1972. the state 4-H Center, has been named by the Auburn Alumni Association for its Award of Excellence in 4-H work.

Guthrie and his wife Ann traveled to Auburn Friday for the presentation of the $500 award.

Taking part in the ceremony were George L. 'Buck' Bradberry, executive director of the Alumni Association, and Dr. J. Michael Sprott, dean and director of the Alabama Cooperative Extension Service.

Guthrie was cited for his exceptional work in managing the Youth Development Center south of Columbiana since it opened in

Under his guidance, the center is now self supporting -- two years ahead of schedule.

A Walker County native, Guthrie recieved his BS degree in agricultural science from Auburn in 1958 and earned a masters degree in education from Mississippi State University in

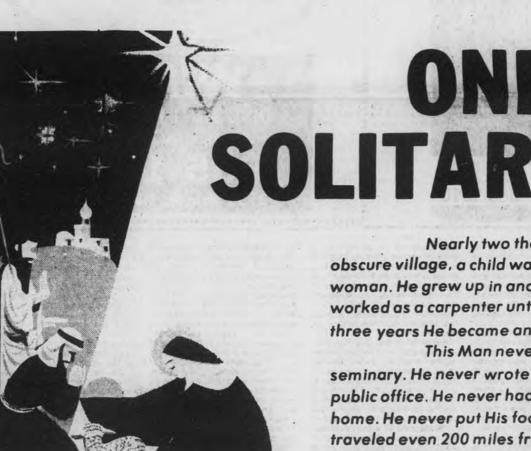

While he was in Lamar County where he began his career with the extension service, Guthrie developed one of the most outstanding beef and dairy programs in the state.

The Guthrie's have one son, Terry, who is president of the Shelby County 4-H Council.

Nearly two thousand years ago in an obscure village, a child was born of a peasant woman. He grew up in another village where He worked as a carpenter until He was thirty. Then for three years He became an itinerant preacher.

This Man never went to college or seminary. He never wrote a book. He never held a public office. He never had a family nor owned a home. He never put His foot inside a big city nor traveled even 200 miles from His birthplace. And though He never did any of the things that usually accompany greatness, throngs of people follwed Him. He had no credentials but Himself.

While He was still young, the tide of public opinion turned against Him. His followers ran away. He was turned over to His enemies and went through the mockery of a trial. He was sentenced to death on a cross between two thieves. While He was dying, His executioners gambled for the only piece of property He had on earth — the simple coat He had worn. His body was laid in a borrowed grave provided by a compassionate friend.

But three days later THIS MAN AROSE FROM THE DEAD — living proof that He was, as He had claimed, the Savior whom God had sent, the Incarnate Son of God.

Nineteen centuries have come and gone and today the risen Lord Jesus Christ is the central figure of the human race. On our calendars His birth divides history into two eras. One day of every week is set aside in remembrance of Him. And our two most important holidays celebrate His birth and resurrection. On church steeples around the world His cross has become the symbol of victory over sin and death.

This one Man's life has furnished the theme for more songs, books, poems and paintings than any other person or event in history. Thousands of colleges hospitals, orphanages and other institutions have been founded in honor of this One who gave His life for us.

All the armies that ever marched, all the navies that ever sailed, all the governments that ever sat, all the kings that ever reigned have not changed the course of history as much as this ONE SOLITARY LIFE.

Cabbage Patch too hot to handle

by Carolyn Smiley

This year's hottest new toy for Christmas may be just that -- too hot to handle.

The Coleco Cabbage Patch doll craze has become so popular that store owners in Shelby County who were lucky enough to get some of the coveted dolls, are now considering themselves almost unlucky.

David Gullion, manager of the Pelham Wal-Mart, was able to land only six Cabbage Patch dolls for his large store.

"I would have taken a couple thousand, but the manufacturers can't make them that fast," he

Because of the overwhelming demand for the dolls by Wal-Mart employees and customers, Gullion decided the only safe way to handle the situation was to leave the distribution of the dolls to someone else.

The Alabaster-Pelham Rotary Club was the lucky recipient.

The club placed the six dolls in area banks where they may be purchased by anyone offering more than one hundred dollars. The proceeds from the dolls go to Toys for Tots.

At least two of the dolls, however, will be kept to be auctioned off at 12:30 p.m., Thursday, at the Rotary Club's meeting at the Triple J Ranch House Restaurant.

Bill's Dollar Store in Columbiana also had a few of the Cabbage Patch cuties. But they too found that they had too many people wanting too few dolls.

To resolve their situation, Piggly Wiggly and some of the shopping center owners will hold a drawing for three dolls on Saturday, Dec. 24.

Similar stories abound around the state. And because stores everywhere are unable to meet the people's demands for these dolls, Alabama Attorney General Charles A. Graddick has warned of possible mail order fraud.

Graddick says advertisements in various publications have led consumers to believe that the patented Coleco dolls are being sold through the

"We can't be sure if the dolls being advertised are the real thing, but we do know that they are being sold at inflated prices," Graddick says.

He also recommends that people buy goodquality adoptable dolls from local craftsmen.

If you're looking for homemade dolls, look no farther than home. They're being made in Shelby Connie Jones of Wilsonville is one such craftsman who has been making and selling her dolls for over two years.

Jones took a course on making the 'Adopt-a-Dolls' at a fabric store and she and her sister have been busy making and selling them ever since.

At $65 dollars each, Jones figures she has sold about 150 dolls in the past two years.

Each doll takes at least a hard day's work to be completed. Jones says this is mostly because she sews the hair by hand, one piece at a time, with each strand double-stitched. This takes about four hours for each head of hair.

Of all the dolls she makes, Jones says she receives the most requests for the blonde-haired

"They were very popular!" she laughs.

- almost -- their weight in gold.

Jones is proud of her precious creations and says she plans to make a lot more of them in the future, especially with the recent 'baby boom.'

Like all crazes and fads, just how long this 'baby boom' will last remains to be seen.

Some people are predicting thousands of the dolls to be released on the market after Christmas - a move that would undoubtably drop the high prices the cuties are now demanding and bringing. In the meantime, the stuffed babies are bringing Santa Claus is coming to town!

New mayor, councilwoman

Vincent council gets shuffled

by David F. Moore

The City of Vincent swore in a new mayor and councilwoman last week as Don Greene's resignation went into effect.

Nolan Clinkscale -- for the second time in his 16-year career as a Vincent councilman -- was sworn in at the December 20 council meeting as a replacement for former mayor Greene. Greene, who turned in his resignation earlier this month, is moving to a new house outside the city limits.

Sworn in at the meeting also was 36-year old Pat Roper who will finish out Clinkscale's term. The council agreed to give Roper the seat because she was the sixth highest vote getter in the 1980 city elections.

Roper will head the street committee and serve on the police committee with councilmen Wallace Denny and Clinkscale. She is the wife of sheriff's deputy Jim Roper and the mother of two

All five city council seats and the mayor's post will be up for reelection this August.

Also at the meeting the council voted to award a $1,200 fire hall roofing contract to local builder Arthur Gibson.

Because the contract was under $3,000, Clinkscale said it was not necessary to take bids on the pro-

The leaking roof problem became apparent during the heavy storms earlier this month. Gibson will start on the project "as soon as possible," Clinkscale said.

Since the budget for this year is already set, the new mayor said the council will probably not initiate any new, major projects for the remainder of the year.

"We already have our budget, and three or four things to do," Clinkscale told the Reporter during an interview last week. "We have 10 months to do them, and if we accomplish them, then we will have met our objectives."

He said the following projects are planned:

o"Gorman Park... we want to have it ready for use this summer. We want it natural looking, but we will probably build a barbeque pit and a picnic shed."

Pursue a grant to build baseball fields and tennis courts on the 10-acre park donated to Vincent this year by EBSCO. Continued on page 3

Freezing rain lengthens Christmas holidays

by Marcia M. Sears

Rain and freezing temperatures prolonged the Christmas weekend for most Shelby Countians.

Tuesday morning they awoke to find they couldn't get to jobs and other destinations. Ice covered highways and streets making traffic dangerous where not impossible.

Although many were passable, all roads were officially closed in Shelby County from about 5:15 a.m. to noon.

Rain and sleet started falling about midnight in most sections of the county, and the temperature dropped well below freezing, turning wet streets into ice sheets.

County government offices in Columbiana remained closed until noon. Postal deliveries were delayed or halted altogether. Many businesses did not bother to open their doors at all, even when the danger passed in the afternoon.

One of Shelby Medical Center's biggest problems was in helping the staff get to the hospital. According to assistant administrator Brenda Carter, most of the employees who live in Shelby County were able to get to the hospital to take up their normal duties on the 7 a.m. shift. But many of those who live in the Rocky Ridge and Hoover areas were not able to make it on time.

Police departments, rescue services and volunteers aided the hospital in transporting staff members. Carter indicated the problem was worse than during a snowstorm, because the highways were so icy.

But, because the hospital is traditionally not full at Christmas, there were enough employees to take care of all the patients at all times.

She reported that the emergency room was called on to treat a number of bruises, abrasions, scrapes, and cuts that people received from falls

Water, electricity, gas, and telephone service did not fail under the icy conditions, although some homes had frozen pipes.

(In at least one apartment in Columbiana subfreezing temperatures Monday broke pipes and caused a ceiling to fall.)

Alabaster home burns

A Christmas Eve fire destroyed the home of an Alabaster preacher and member of the Shelby Medical Center board of

At 10 p.m. Saturday night, smoke and fire-were blowing across the deck outside Eloise Underwood's Alabaster home. Dressed only in her robe and gown, the SMC board member desperately tried to get directions to the fire department by telephone.

The fire, which reportedly started in a laundry room, all but destroyed the 5th Avenue home of the Rev. and Mrs. Jimmy Underwood.

According to Mrs. Underwood, her husband discovered the fire about 10 p.m. The electric clock in their home stopped at 10:15

The blaze went on to destroy their dining room, den, kitchen, living room, hall and one bedroom.

Mrs. Underwood said that her son and his girlfriend had fallen asleep watching television in front of the fireplace, and noticed nothing. However, her husband smelled smoke.

"The only thing we could speculate is that it was an electrical fire. It was along the side wall," she said,

Mr. Underwood tried to open the front door of the home but could not. He had to eventually escape the blaze from a bedroom win-

The children got out of the house first, but Mrs. Underwood had to leap from the outside deck to safety.

Although the home was insured, she said everything was lost. All that remained of the 11-room house after firefighters doused the blaze, were two bathrooms, and one bedroom.

The Underwood's are now staying with their daughter Janice, on 12th Avenue in Alabaster.

There were no injuries as a result of the blaze.

Airport faces catching up with competition

For years, grant money for improvements has flown past the Shelby County Airport to other regional airports. The creation of the Shelby County Airport Authority may finally give the airfield near Interstate 65 a chance to land its share

Grant money for airport expansion can come from two sources: the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) and the Alabama Aeronautics Commission (AAC). Their aid programs are funded by taxes on County or city governments may have to match about 10 percent of a federal grant, but in many cases the AAC will pick up the tab, according to Bill Tucker who represented the airport to the county commission until the formation of the authority.

"Alabama Power had an in-depth look at moving down here, but decided to stay in Birmingham," Chapman told the Reporter. "Harbert Corporation was interested, but again, they found the approach and other systems antiquated."

According to Chapman, other big companies would be more interested in locating in the area, if the runway was wider than 75 feet -- the narrowest of all the surrounding airports.

While the county airport may be underdeveloped, it is not considered unsafe. Along with the Bessemer Airport, it is designated by the FAA as a reliever airport for Birmingham -which means it often handles small planes in order to make the urban field safer for commercial

The designation makes the Shelby County airfield just as eligible for federal help as Bessemer. However, Chapman said, because of Bessemer's "sensitivity to public funds," it has gotten ahead of the Shelby facility.

The Bessemer Airport is in the process of lengthening its runway and upgrading its lighting system, according to Paul Boostrum, vice president of Bessemer Aviation.

Boostrum said he believes many companies in the area located there because of the availability of his airport. He named Allied Products, Hydramotics, Bobby Allison Racing, and Vulcan Engineering as companies that regulary use the Bessemer Airport for private business matters.

The Bessemer facility -- located less than 10 miles from Helena -- is able to handle larger, heavier planes than Shelby, including dual-wheel aircraft.

NELSON & GERALD McCREA

Grenada veteran receives hero's welcome in Pelham

by Carolya Smiley
A lot of people had visitors for the holidays, but the Gerald McCrea family of Alabaster had a very special guest.

Their son, Nelson McCrea, returned home for the holidays December 21 after spending two weeks on Grenada.

He was with the 82nd airborne infantry, helping to secure the island after the United State's recent military invasion.

Because McCrea was such a special visitor, his friends and family gave him an exceptional welcome home -- with signs, American flags on mailboxes, balloons, and a big yellow ribbon around a tree in his

McCrea was definitely flattered by all of the attention, but mostly he was just glad to be home. The past two weeks had been no vaca-

McCrea said the ordeal began when he was called back to Fort Bragg from a 3-day pass and told to remain in the barracks. No reason was given, but he knew he was headed somewhere,

"They didn't tell us where we were going until we were actually boarding the plane," he said.

When they did find out their destination -- the island of Grenada --McCrea said the morale of the troops was "very high."

"We were ready to go... pretty scared, but glad to go," he asserted. McCrea and the rest of the 82nd airborne first arrived on the island at Port Selenes, but later moved up to Pearl Airport. From there they traveled all over the northern part of Grenada.

A typical day involved getting up before dawn at 5:30, and setting out on whatever mission the situations required.

They looked for Cubans, went up in the mountains searching for weapon caches, whatever needed to be done.

McCrea said he saw several Cuban troops as well as soldiers of the Grenadian army, but he was not involved in any actual shooting.

"The first couple of days there was still a lot of action and we were all scared, but we still wanted to see some action."

McCrea said they usually stopped missions at 5 p.m., but often there were all night road blocks or ambushes, and several guards were on duty until dawn.

For those who did get to sleep, churches, schools and abandoned buildings usually served as a resting place.

"When we were up in the mountains we slept under the stars -which we didn't like 'cause it always rained," McCrea laughed. Throughout his stay, McCrea said he had a great deal of contact with the people of Grenada. "We talked a lot," he said. "They were very friendly, glad we were there and they didn't want us to leave!" Considerig this, McCrea said, made the whole operation wor-

He added that it helped greatly knowing that the American people were, behind the troops. Now that he's home, how does it feel to know a lot of people consider him a hero?

"It's new," McCrea answered with a bashful grin. "But it feels good."

McCrea should also be feeling good over the commendation he received for his participation in Grenada. He was named a team leader while on the island, his batallion was awarded the Combat Infantgymen's Badge, and he was awarded the Army Achievement Medal.

After the excitement of the past few weeks, McCrea will be enjoying his holiday season at home with his family before returning to Fort Bragg in January.

Calling wrong number can mean delayed help

by Fred Guarino

A 30-year old Columbiana man falls and injures his back. His wife runs to the telephone and dials the emergency number 911 for help.

The wife tells the operator what has happened and is connected with an ambulance service. She doesn't know the ambulance being dispatched is coming from Pelham -- some 20 miles away.

Urgently, she describes her husband's situation. The ambulance is dispatched. The injured man lies on the ground waiting for help. He waits and

A police officer arrives on the scene, finds out what is wrong, and informs the distraught wife that an ambulance service is located in Columbiana -- only a few minutes away. That ambulance

The Harpersville Ambulance Service dispatches the recently acquired vehicle it has based at 305 Main Street, Columbiana. When it arrives, the injured man has been waiting an estimated 20 minutes for help, and still, the originally called ambulance has not arrived.

The local ambulance attendants stabilize the injured man and transport him to Shelby Medical

When the ambulance from Pelham finally arrives, there is a misunderstanding over the situation, according to Lester Young, manager of the Harpersville Ambulance Service.

This true story is not one of battling ambulance services arguing over territory. Instead it is one of a situation Shelby Countians should be made aware of, Young told the Reporter.

"Inside the front cover of the telephone book there is a listing of emergency numbers," Young explained. "The 911 number is listed for fire, police and ambulance, along with local numbers for fire and police. Only 911 is listed for am-

According to Young, when anyone dials 911 they reach A&A or Hank's -- both in Jefferson County, with Hank's having one ambulance in

"If a person called 911 from Waxahatchee, they would send Hank's," from Pelham, he said "This is not really a battle for ambulance calls, but the fact that a person has to wait longer than normal," Young went on.

He said that for people in the rural area of Shelby County, the quickest way to get service is to call the Shelby County Sheriff's Department at

The ambulance manager stated that the Sheriff's Department knows which ambulances are closest, and will call them by radio.

"This lady called 911 and said she wanted the quickest ambulance. She was patched through and didn't know where the ambulance was, but the service sent one," Young stressed.

"If the call had been made from Pelham, that would have been okay. But in the rural area, Hank's is a long way," Young said.

The ambulance in Columbiana was one of two recently purchased by SMC for use by area ambulance services, with the whole idea being to cut down on response time "especially in more rural

But Young said that when he spoke with an emergency room representative at SMC about how problems were cropping up, he was told it was out of SMC's hands.

Young said he just wants the public to be aware of the situation. Hank's Ambulance Service agreed with Young that Shelby County residents should dial the sheriff's department for local ambulance service. According to Donald Herring of Hank's in

Pelham, if 911 is dialed, Pelham will be dispatch-He explained that Hank's has the contract for ambulance service in Birmingham and, as such, a 911 call is a private call to Hank's because it is received in Birmingham, However, if the sheriff's department is called, the closest local service is dispatched.

In the event of a 'toss up' on which service is closer, Herring said the calls are "supposed to be" rotated between Harpersville, Central Shelby and

But here Herring claimed there's yet another problem. He alleged that Central Shelby Ambulance Service is getting all of the toss up calls from the sheriff's department.

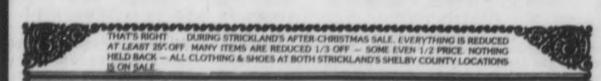

The Reporter was unable to get a comment on this Monday from sheriff's department personnel.

Holiday mishaps claim life

Traffic accidents over the holiday weekend resulted in one fatality and two injuries in Shelby County.

State troopers reported a threecar accident at 8:20 p.m. Friday on State 155 just east of Montevallo.

The accident occurred when twocars struck a tractor trailer that was backing on to a private road.

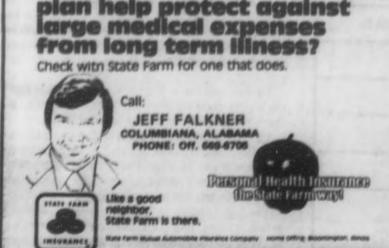

Jemison was killed and James Carter, 24, of Montevallo was hospitalized for injuries.

According to reports, the truck was backing across the road when Blanton topped a hill and was unable to stop his vehicle before plowing under the truck trailer.

A second car then topped the hill and hit Blanton's vehicle injured Friday at 11:15 p.m. when he lost control of his car and ran off County 52, one mile west of Helena.

At least 78 percent of Shelby County's bridges have been termed "structurally deficient" or "functionally obsolete."

Those facts were recently released by the Association of County Engineers in Alabama, and, according to Shelby County Engineer Gary Ray, the figures are accurate.

Ray explained that functionally obsolete means that a brige may be too narrow. Structurally deficient means that something is physically

According to the report, Shelby County's statistics are above the state average of 67.6 percent.

"What this says to the people, is that we need to be pumping more money into our bridge replacement fund," Ray said.

The statement is a definite defense of the recently increased federal gasoline tax.

"An increase in the federal gas tax will help," he said. "Instead of receiving $100,000 every three or four years, we will be receiving at least $100,000 per year.'

To stress his point on the inadequacy of the bridges, Ray pointed out that when you see a bridge in Shelby County posted with a weight limit, "you had better believe there is some reason for it being

"All I can do is guess how long a brige will hold up day after day under so much weight." He noted that looking at the structure underneath some local bridges will "scare you to death."

Ray said that one truck could knock someting out from under a bridge and the next vehicle along -- which "maybe a school bus" -would make it fall.

Shelby County is also above the state average for bridges structurally deficient or functionally obsolte on primary roads. The state averages 20 percent deficiency, while 38.5 percent of primary road bridges in Shelby County are deficient.

The only category in which Shelby County was below the state average, was that of bridges on non-primary routes.

The state average there was 79.7 percent structurally deficient or functionally obsolete. According to the report, 61.5 percent of the bridges in Shelby County are in similar condition.

None the less, according to Ray, the county's biggest bridge problem is on the non-primary routes because of the number of bridges on these less traveled roads.

Ray noted that Shelby County does have a bridge replacment program, but, he said, it badly needs increased funding from the federal and state government.

The increased gas tax, Ray said, should be enough to solve the pro-

Columbiana's schools okayed

by Carolyn Smiley

Three Shelby County schools have received their initial accreditation from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Shelby County High School, Columbiana Middle School, and Elvin Hill Elementary School were awarded their certificates of accreditation at the association's annual meeting in New Orleans on Dec. 13.

To accept this honor, Shelby County-superintendent of education Ellie Glasscox traveled to New Orleans with SCHS principal Don Bulger, Lois Bentley of Columbiana Middle, Ann Head of Elvin Hill, elementary supervisor Rebecca Nail, and secondary supervisor Evan Ma-

The schools received the accreditation after meeting the associations standards in self studies conducted last year.

Southern Association is an independent accreditation association with schools applied to voluntarily in an effort to improve their programs.

"I'm certainly very proud of the efforts of the local schools in that community," said Glasscox. "This enhances the quality of education in Shelby County. Hopefully, sometime in the near future we'll be able to say all of our schools are accredited by Southern Association."

Other Shelby County schools already accredited are Montevallo Elementary, Vincent Elementary, Valley Elementary, Thompson Middle, Thompson High, Montevallo High, Vincent High, and Chelsea High.

Clinkscale and Roper both said they were undecided about running in the 1984 elections.

Make 1984 good year

'The fastest growing county in Alabama.' One hears that statement about Shelby County a lot. And it's true. There are statistics to back it up.

But Shelby County is the fastest growing county in the state mostly because of pure dumb luck. Simply put, the county was in the right place at the right time.

That's not to say that a many people haven't worked to make the best of the situation. Quite the contrary. But generally speaking, most of what has been done, has been done in reaction to the outside phenomenon of suburban growth.

Other than offering a few tax free bond issues and grants, very little has been done to actively recruit new industry and business.

The Shelby County Airport is one good example of inaction that has caused 'the fastest growing county' to lag behind surrounding areas.

Where are the services people want? Where are services -- such as sewers -that businesses need? Where is the kind of progressive, intelligent thinking (in Montgomery and otherwise) that is necessary to prove that we are not as our image is usually portrayed to be in other parts of the nation and world?

Where are the leaders to go forth and sell what we do have -- natural resources, good climate, and good peo-

As Shelby County rolls with the flow into 1984, let us all resolve to do what we can to show the outside world that we are a good and intelligent people with deserved pride. Let us all do what we can not only to make 1984 a happy new year, but a good one as well.

State joins DUI war

by Gov. George C. Wallace

For most families, the Christmas season and the New Year's holidays are the happiest time of the year, celebrating the birth of the Savior and looking ahead hopefully to the next 12 months.

But for some in Alabama and across the nation it is a time of sorrow instead of joy, grieving for their loved ones killed in traffic accidents which so easily could have been avoided.

One thing that makes it so hard to bear is the realization that approximately 50 percent of the fatal accidents on our streets and highways involve drunk drivers. Why, we ask, do people think they have to get drunk and get out on the highways to celebrate the holidays?

That is not only tragic; it is criminal. And whatever it takes, we must find a way to get the drunks off the streets and highways. The Legislature, on my recommendation, recently passed a new anti-drunk driving law which for the first time ever in Alabama makes a jail sentence mandatory for repeat offenders.

The initial response has been encouraging. Judges have been handing out heavier penalties and, equally important, have been turning fewer drunk drivers loose. The attitude of the trial courts is crucial because no law, whatever its purpose, is effective unless judges are willing to punish the guilty.

At the beginning of a new year I can assure you I will do everything I can to see that the new law is enforced. And I am confident that the courts will do their part and that drunk drivers will be punished as they should be.

As I said, we are making progress, but we still have a long way to go. We are still killing people in car wrecks and too many of them are caused by drunk drivers. In fact, if we had only one traffic death a year that would be one too many.

It is obvious, then, that drunk driving is still a critical problem and we may need to pass more get-tough legislation to protect the lives and property of the people who use our highways. One way or another, that is what we are going to do.

I issued an executive order last August creating the Governor's Task Force on Drunk Driving. It is made up of people with varying interests, experiences and background but with a common interest in problems relating to alcoholism and drunk driving.

The group has had three public meeting -- in Huntsville, Birmingham and Montgomery -- and will have one more, in Mobile. It is taking testimony from the general public, from judges and other court officials, law enforcement officers, and all others concerned with the problems drinking and driving.

At the conclusion of its work, the task force will submit its findings to the Governor and the Legislature along with whatever corrective measures it deems necessary.

In its first three public hearings, the group has already received a long list of recommendations divided generally into two categories. Some witnesses say the problem can be solved only by tougher and tougher new laws. Others say the answer lies in education.

Most of the emphasis has been directed to the problems of alcohol because people are more familiar with them. But the new drunk driving law also applies to anyone caught driving under the influence of drugs, and the task force is taking a close look in that direction as well.

When the task force makes its report, I will recommend passage of any new laws that I think icted. In the meantime, we will keep on rigidly enforcing the laws we now have. Maybe they won't solve all of the problems, but they are a lot better than what we did have and they will save

And that is certainly worth the effort.

Fred's corner

by Fred Guarino

Good morning Shelby County and welcome to Fred's Corner.

Most of you know Tom Owen is executive director of the King's Ranch which provides a home for kids who need a home and a Christian environment.

Many of you may think of the man as a ham with a good cause... always seeking publicity by pulling outlandish, daredevil stunts. Many of you may think he gets way too much publicity.

Last Thursday I saw Owen pull one of his stunts to help raise money for his kids.

It was real! He actually let an 18-wheel tractor trailer truck's front tire roll over his body -to 4,100 pounds of weight crushing down on

I had seen Owen do things like this before with pick-up trucks and he made it look so easy that I always thought there was a trick to it.

But Thursday night I saw that wheel crush down on Owen. I saw his face flush and I heard him let out a cry.

When the truck passed over him, he leaped up in agony. Tears actually came from his eyes as he held tightly to his body.

He started to walk away with the help of two companions and then suddenly turned around. He regained his composure and spoke about Christianity and what the King's Ranch meant

He had done it all for very little money. The Ranch could not have made much on the stunt, based on the size of the crowd. I feel that Owen is very sincere about what he does, and that he actually believes the exposure he gets helps the Ranch. And for what he has done to get that exposure, I believe he deserves every word of print,

I wish the best for King's Ranch, but I hope that Owen never goes for any more 'world records' beyond that he surely accomplished with that tractor trailer rig.

I think he has done great work for the Ranch, but I believe earnestly that he should never try a stunt like this one again.

He probably will, but as a friend I hope he has reached a stopping point.

Perhaps he has touched enough people with his stunts that King's Ranch never has to depend on stunts for money again.

At any rate, I'm convinced that Owen is no ham, no self server, or publicity monger.

I believe he is a strong man possessed with a $125.00 for the job. To be sure that was the total cost I asked him if it was the total cost of the job. He said, "I'll paint the whole roof for $125.00." I agreed to it. While he was painting the roof he asked if he could paint the roof of another house there of about the same size of the first house mentioned. He said he would have enough paint left to do the second house and he would charge only for the paint on the last house. I let him paint both house tops. I assumed that the total cost couldn't be much over two times $125 or $250. His painter sprayed both houses in less than two hours.

When he finished he said just pay the cost of the paint on both jobs, 14 gallons at $37 per gallon or a total of $518. The local hardware told me later that they have a premium grade of aluminum roof paint for $8.95 a gallon. The man asked me to figure the cost of 14 gallons at $37. When I saw the figure of $518 I was so stunned that I could hardly speak, and I couldn't think clearly. It was as if someone had dashed ice water in my face. After I paid him the cash and he was gone, it suddenly dawned on me how stupid I had been. After he left I could think of several things I could have done, like call the police to help me settle for a fair deal.

Why do people go ahead and pay such a swindle? You are so stunned by your stupidity that you can't think clearly at the time, and you are so exceedingly ashamed that you don't want others to know it. That is why so few swindles are reported. I am a college graduate, so I was more humiliated by being duped than losing the money.

I beg all of you readers of this letter to talk to others, old and young, so that they may not fall into such traps as this.

ho spends money?

Letter to the Editor:

I would like to express my opinion concerning the newly formed tax watch committee. Why do these people think they have a right to say how our tax money is spent? They say that the financial security of the hospital is in jeopardy, but according to an article in last week's Reporter the hospital seems to be financially sound.

I am sure the commissioners did not enjoy having to ask the hospital board for more money. It is not their fault that the county is having financial problems. These problems are caused in part by mandatory pay raises. I am sure that if the commissioners had any omer alternatives, they would have taken them.

Unlike the tax watch committee, the commissioners were elected by a majority of the citizens of Shelby County. When we elected these men, we expected them to handle our tax money to the best of their ability. I think that is what they are do-

This spring and summer, if we don't have a mosquito control program among others, we will know who is to blame. Certainly not the commissioners. They have done all they can.

Sincerely, Larry Perrymon Rt. 2 Box 211-B Columbiana, AL 35051

The Alabama Scene

by Bob Ingram

This is the time of year when those of us in the media take a look back at the year about to end and come up with our lists of the top stories of the past 12 months. (The reason we all do this is because political activity is at a nearstandstill during this holiday season).

In looking back over the past 12 months, surely there will be no disagreement as to the biggest story in Alabama in 1983...the story that had the greatest impact on Alabamians. It was the death of a legend...Paul W. (Bear) Bryant.

His unexpected death of a heart attack in January stunned Alabamians like no event in years. Only weeks before, Bryant had closed out his history-making career at Alabama, a career which had seen his teams win more games than any in history,

A distant runner-up to that story was Gov. George Wallace's serious health problems during the spring of the year. Three times he was hospitalized. Rumors flew thick and fast that the governor was terminally ill...that he planned to resign and turn the reins of government over to Lt. Gov. Bill Baxley. Miraculously, there was a dramatic turnaround in the governor's health in early June. There was no medical explanation for his sudden improvement, but there was a noticeable improvement in his outlook and his appearance in the months that followed.

One of the most politically significant stories of the year was the court-ordered reapportionment of the Alabama Legislature and the subsequent special legislative election in November. The intent of the court order was to give blacks more representation in the Legislature, but an unexpected result was the election of a record number of Republicans and Independents.

Auburn University figured in two major 1983 stories. After months of acrimonious debate, Dr. Hanley Funderburk resigned as president of AU. A search committee is now screening applicants for the post. A new president isn't anticipated before mid-summer. And certainly the return of the Auburn football team to national prominence was a major story. The Tigers finished the season 10-1, ranked No. 3 in the nation, and won the SEC title for the first time since 1957.

There were many other big stories...the fight over a proposed new state constitution...the legislative pay raise...the continuing controversy concerning the state prisons.

But for most Alabamians, 1983 will be remembered as the year we lost The Bear.

QUANTITY RIGHTS RESERVED NONE SOLD TO DEALERS PRICES EFFECTIVE THRU DECEMBER 24, 1983 PELHAM

by Fred Guarino

As the year 1983 is carried off on the currents of time and 1984 arrives, Shelby County sports fans will find themselves left with a mixed bag of emotions

They will remember happy state championships in track but sadly recall that the big cigar passed us by in football, baseball and basketball.

On a positive note they will reminisce about the new field house in Pelham, a new head coach at Thompson and Chelsea, and, for the first time in five years, the fact that Montevallo reached the state football playoffs.

They will reflect that Briarwood Christian High competed for the first time as an associate member of the Alabama High School Athletic Association.

Unfortunately, thoughts will resurface about Pelham's unexpected losing season, Thompson's failure to reach playoff action, Chelsea's new coach's resignation and Montevallo's dream of a state football title falling short.

Added to the mixed emotions about the year is the new six class high school sports system that will change the schedules of many teams -- and the importance of many games.

But before 1983 drifts too far away, the Reporter would like to take you along for a sports tour of the year that was...

January

Deer season came in under muggy conditions that allowed little hunting activity and the weather left fishermen in a quandry over where and how they should fish.

Pelham's basketball team was off to a slow start until it came within a single bucket of winning the 4A dominated Berry Basketball Tournament.

Shelby Academy was off to a good start after winning its first homecourt basketball tournament. The title came with victories over Coosa Valley, Southern and Berney Points.

Feelings became sore over a proposed new ball field and concession stand for Columbiana's girls softball league.

Property owners claimed the field, located across from SCHS stadium, was on a dedicated street which gave them access to their property. Girl Scouts objected to being moved out of a room in their scout hut for concessions sales.

Pride ruled the day at Shelby County Junior High School. The young Wildcat cagers ripped Montevallo 50-44 for a perfect 14-0 season and county tournament bragging rights.

Briarwood Christian High School, under the leadership of Coach Gary Fleming, had been state champions in football for 1977 and 1982. They had been runners up in 1980 and 1981.

All that came in Alabama Christian High School Athletic Association competition... an association the Lions voluntarily left in 1983.

In order to have a more competitive sports program, Briarwood undertook steps to become a member of the Alabama High School Athletic Association, and take on public school competition.

(While in the process of gaining state accreditation they became ineligible for any post-season football play in 1983 -- and finished with a dismal 2-7 mark, anyway. But the thinking around Briarwood is that the year helped make the Lions tougher.)

An unexpected ice storm put a freeze on all basketball action but when things thawed out, Thompson's B team beat Pelham 49-45 and the varsity Warriors beat Pelham 65-53 for county basketball titles.

February

When it came to indoor 1A-2A track competition, the girls of Vincent High School were ready. They defended their state title for the second year in a row at Garrett Coliseum in Montgomery.

Warrior standouts Greg Snell, Arthur Johnson and Demetrius Threatt excited Shelby Countians with the signing of scholarships to play for Auburn University.

Thompson's Jeff Bentley made Crimson Tide fans happy when he signed with the University of Alabama.

The end of February saw Oak Mountain State

Park lose golf pro Tommy Truss. His position was eliminated when Governor George Wallace decided not to renew state park personal service contracts.

The Shelby Academy Raiders reached the state playoffs in basketball for their third straight season. Dewayne Kervin's squad earned the honor by finishing as runners up in the District 7 action.

Twenty-six enthusiasts and 14 'Vettes showed up for the organizational meeting of a Shelby County Corvette Club.

The 2A, Area Basketball Tournament did not end happily in Winterboro for Chelsea, Vincent, Montevallo, Jemison, B. B. Comer and the host team. The event was won by 1A Holy Family playing in a class above itself.

Montevallo beat Jemison 66-50 to reach the finals but the Family was merciless as it downed the 'Dogs 88-48.

The Thompson Warriors took the 3A area basketball title only to lose to Tuskegee 67-64 in a region bout.

The UM Falcons set three school records in 1983 for mens' basketball. They got off to an all time best nine win start, won five games in a row on the road and hit 81.3 percent of their field.

The Lady Falcons, however, ended the season on a downbeat 3-19.

Shelby won first place in mens' competition for the Shelby Baptist League in basketball, and Alabaster took the junior high crown.

With the arrival of baseball on the county scene, the UM Falcons went for a locally oriented image. The team added Todd Bass of Pelham, Bobby Greenwalt of Columbiana, Allen Henke of Shelby, and John Durrett and Steve Smitherman of Alabaster.

Andy Kogoy of Shelby County and Keith Vines of Hoover went for a world record 120 hour tennis match.

Richard M. Knecht of Pelham surprised folks when he took first place in black belt Karate weapons, first place in black belt forms, and second in black belt fighting.

The reason for the surprise was that he's only an 8-year-old, and won all the honors at the Tennessee Valley Karate Championships.

Soccer anyone? Pelham High School started a soccer club.

Vernor Keller of Vincent signed a basketball scholarship to play for the Southern Junior College of Business in Birmingham.

The 6'6"205 lb. Keller led the Yellow Jackets to a 19-9 season and lead the squad in both scoring and rebounding.

March

The month roared in like a lion with some very unexpected news: Thompson's head football coach Larry Simmons announced that he would step down.

In 12 years of football he had won 100 games, lost 26 and tied just one. His last season saw the perfect 14-0 Warriors win the the 1982, 3A state football crown.

THS assistant Donnie Kennedy agreed to replace Simmons as head coach at THS, then suddenly changed his mind.

Doug Wheeler of Fairfield High School became the new face on the sidelines.

Thompson High School continued to grab headlines when Warrior basketball coach Thomas Johnson was named by the Shelby County Coaches Association as Coach of the Year.

The City of Pelham opened a new $650,000 ball park complex behind Kelly Mall. To get things off to a good start, former New York Yankee Ron Blomberg threw in the first balls for the Cahaba Valley League at the park. He later gave those balls to John Goldman and Rachel Schuschman.

Continuing to dominate in girl's track, the Yellow Jackets of Vincent High School defended their county title for the seventh season in a row.

Also continuing a show of dominance, Thompson won the county boys track title for the third straight year.

The Thompson Warriors also did their thing in baseball. Thompson defeated Sylacauga for the Area 8 baseball crown.

May

CVA barely had enough players to even field a baseball team when they began their program. But in 1983 they reached the state playoff in Selma with an impressive 17-2 record.

Johnny and Annie Hutchison of Wilsonville made fishing news when they pulled in a 58-pound yellow catfish near the Gaston Steam Plant.

Bill Reid's Wildcats were favored to take the county baseball title in 1982 with their 18-4 record. That didn't happen. In 1983, the Thompson Warriors were favored with an 18-6 record. They didn't win either.

In a strange quirk of fate, the 1983 crown went to Shelby County which this year had dropped to a poor 10-7 season. The Wildcats claimed the honor by defeating Vincent 5-4 in the county tournament.

June

There was a big sports shake up across the state as the Alabama High School Athletic Association voted to change from a four to a six class competition system.

The action was taken to make competition more even among teams, and is to take affect in 1984.

Under the new system, Calera goes from 1A to 2A; Chelsea stays at 2A; Montevallo and Vincent go from 2A to 3A; Shelby County goes from 3A to 4A; and Thompson and Pelham move up from 3A to 5A. There are no 6A teams in Shelby County.

After all the dust finally settled, the Columbiana Girls Softball League saw its dream of a new field concession stand come together at a location across from the SCHS football stadium.

He was 45-years-old, married and the father of two children. His lifestyle was established and he had a career.

But none of that stopped Don Blackerby from converting a 1966 Chevelle into a Limited Sportsman race car and competing as a 'rookie driver' at Birmingham International Raceway.

The Shelby County Reporter announced the members of its first annual Sports Hall of Fame.

The first inductees are:

Eric Woodard of Indian Springs School, Edward Wilson of Calera, Jeff Nelson of Briarwood, Tommy White of Chelsea, Hal Shelton of Pelham, Ronald Benton of Shelby County High,
J. J. Moore of Montevallo, Jeff Bentley of Thompson High, Keith Knowles of Shelby Academy and Vernon Keller of Vincent.

Twenty beautiful girls filled the back of a Dodge Ram pick-up for a total weight of over 7,000 pounds.

Tom Owen of King's Ranch pulled the load with his teeth a distance of 40 yards in 25.8 seconds. It was a world record set at Legion Field.

Owen, executive director of the ranch, performed the stunt to help raise money for the children his program helps.

July

In June the land around the Shelby County Animal Shelter was wilderness. In July it had become the site of the Shelby County Bow Hunters Archery Range.

The Dixie Youth District Baseball title and Dizzy Dean World Services were held in Montevallo.

Alabaster hosted the Dixie Youth Baseball Championships.

August

Alabaster's baseball All-Stars finished second in the state and Inverness Country Club hosted the Alabama Open Golf Tournament.

Cyclist David Luellen began a bicycle ride from Chelsea to the Panama Canal. He began the trip on a 50-pound, 18-speed bicycle, and predicted that he would average 120 miles per day.

We haven't heard from Luellen since...

Pelham High School announced the hiring of two new coaches -- Jim Vakakes as head baseball coach and Jerry Yancy as a football assistant.

September, October, November, December

Football rolled onto the scene and an indication of how things would go came early.

Montevallo followed a 20-9 win over Chelsea with a 26-6 rout of Briarwood. Thompson lost to Bibb County 23-20.

Montevallo went on to reach the state 2A playoffs and the Warriors were left out in the cold as far as state honors with a 9-2 record.

The Bulldogs whipped Winterboro 40-12 to take command of Area 7 and beat Hokes Bluff 42-13 to win the Region 4 crown. The road to glory ended, however, with a 34-14 home loss to Handley.

The Warriors closed their season with at least some glory on a 42-12 win over West Point. It was their 11th game of the season.

Calera also failed to reach the state playoffs in 1983 but Danny Alverson's squad did manage to pull a stunning 16-13 upset over Jemison.

Coosa Valley Academy had a long year but the Rebels closed things out in style with a 25-6 trouncing of Shelby Academy.

Vincent beat its archrival Chelsea 28-6 and the Thompson Warriors went on to become the only team to beat Montevallo in regular season action with a 20-0 victory.

The 95-lb Pelham Panthers were stopped short of a second straight super bowl trip at the hands of Huffman, 20-14.

For the first time ever, Vincent's boys varsity track team won the state IA, 2A cross country track title. It was the first varsity boys sports title in the history of Vincent High School.

And, sporting news came to a close when Richard Conkle regained his position as head football coach in Chelsea.

Conkle, who stepped down in 1979, saw three other coaches fill his shoes before retaking control of the Hornets. Serving from 1979 until 1983 were Daryl Burnham, Roger Hibbs and Gene Hulsey.

Semi-truck rolls over King rancher

by Fred Guarino

The weather is bitterly cold outside the Oxmoor Ice Lodge.

Tom Owen stands before an 18-wheel tractor trailer rig, looking on as a driver practices backing over a ramp.

Each time as the truck backs up, Owen tenses his tremendous stomach muscles to see if he can hold them tight for the time it takes the truck to roll over the ramp.

Owen tells someone that he can hold his stomach like that for only five seconds, and that he will pass out if it takes longer.

The first few times the truck backs over the ramp, it hits the ground with a smashing thud and stops... slowly rolling back.

Owen's face shows concern. He speaks to the people who have leased him the 17,500 pound rig -the front wheel of which weighs 4,150 pounds.

Owen learns that there is a slack in the drive train when the truck falls off the ramp. He ask the driver to "give it some gas" and to roll back further before stopping.

The cold becomes worse and after a few more dry runs with the truck, Owen retires to a little side room inside the ice lodge. There he signs papers relieving the truck driver and the leasing company of any liability.

A Christian radio station has promoted this wild, December 22 stunt -- that is, to let the tractor trailer's front tire roll over Owen's stomach.

Its purpose is to help the executive director of the King's Ranch raise money for the children there. Too, if successful, it will be a world's record for Owen.

"We are interested in his cause. He does good work and provides Christian leadership at his home," a representative of the radio station says.

The representative is almost embarrassed, however, about the small amount of money Owen will receive... one dollar off each admission ticket. Only about 300 people are on hand.

The stunt is so dangerous "That's Incredible" wants the story. But the tv show won't allow Owen to do it before their cameras until they have seen a video of it, so Owen has hired a production company to tape the

"These stunts have helped me to promote the King's Ranch and they give me a unique opportunity to share my Christian Faith," he allows.

Several of Owen's friends had asked him not to perform the stunt this particular night.

The 33-year old power lifter has let trucks roll over his body before, but never anything as big as this tonight. He admits that he has never heard of anyone else doing it before.

"I am stronger than ever now," Owen says as he shows a bulge of stomach muscle that wasn't there a month ago.

"I work my stomach muscles more than most weight lifters work the bench press," he adds with confidence.

(He has been state champion eight times in power lifting competition and Southeastern champion six times -- but all that matters little when it comes to 18-wheelers rolling over your body.)

The driver of the truck, Walter Harbin, has become involved in the event by accident -- or prayer.

At first Owen couldn't get a driver. That morning at the ranch he had asked God to give him a sign if He didn't want him to do this stunt.

When Owen rose from his knees, Harbin of Childersburg walked in. A truck driver who has put together seven bicycles for the ranch from old parts... he agreed to be the driver.

At 6' and 275 pounds, Owen lies down on the cold ice inside the Ice Lodge arena. A special track of plywood has been put down to keep the truck from sliding on the slick, cold surface.

The signal is given... the truck rolls off the ramp and hits Owen's stomach. After what seems like an eternity, the truck rolls off.

Owen's face flashes red, he lets out an unexpected yelp and he leaps to his feet in pain.

He has done it. The King's Ranch gets a little cash and a lot of publicity.

Is it all worth it?

"Many times I didn't want to get under the truck but I knew this is where I should be," Owen says, the thought of his place being under a truck making him laugh.

"My interest is the Ranch's growth," Owen explains. "We are about to open our eighth home and I feel our budget is really going to increase."

For the record, the King's Ranch provides a place to live and a Christian environment for up to 60 abandoned and abused children. There are six homes in Shelby County and two more are about to be opened on 40 acres of land in Chilton County.

Crushing load

A 4,150-lb tractor trailer rig's right front tire crushes down on Tom Owen of the King's Ranch as he goes for a world record stunt at the Oxmoor Ice Lodge. Owen pulled the stunt last Thursday night to raise funds and to increase exposure for his homes which provide a place to live for abandoned and abused children in Shelby County. (Photo by

News from all around

by Iris F. Smitherman

Pat and Betty Wyatt of Montevallo got a couple of extra Christmas gifts this year, and although neither of the 'gifts' were found under the tree the Wyatts consider them special all the same!

On Dec. 22, their daughter and son-in-law, Lyn and Mary Jane Emfinger of Aldrich, presented them with a 7 lb. baby girl. Christina Lyn was born at Brookwood Hospital, and was greeted by her brother, Tom. Other grandparents are Doyle and Tomlyn Mathews.

Then on Christmas Day, Dec. 25, the Wyatt's oldest son and his wife, Danny and Rose Mary Wyatt of Homewood became the parents of a daughter. Mary Elizabeth was born at St. Vincent's Hospital and weighed 7 lbs. 13 oz. Other grandparents are Art and Bea Klopack of Birmingham.

Congratulations to all and to all a good night...

On Dec. 18, Eddie Blevins of Wilsonville celebrated his 2nd birthday with a party including his parents, Darlene and Ed Blevins.

Grandparents are Thomas and Judy McDonald of Wilsonville and Joyce Blevins of Westover.

. . . . Happy anniversary on Jan. 3 to Mr. and Mrs. Bill Glosson Sr. of Pea Ridge.

Tierra Tavarish Cathey will celebrate his 2nd birthday on Dec. 30 with a party at a Vestavia Pizza Parlor. He is the son of Sybile Cathey and Anthony Booker.

Grandparents are Lester and Ruether Cathey of Montevallo, Eugene and Nellie Booker of Alabaster.

The birthday boy's great grandfather will be celebrating his 78th birthday in Birmingham with his children on Dec. 30. His children are Maggie Nixon of Birmingham, Carrie Webb of Massachusetts, Ruether Cathey and Walter Cottingham Jr. of Montevallo, Andrea Cooper of Bessemer, Clifford and Ronnie Cottingham of West Blocton.

Happy birthday wishes to Philip Harper of Pea Ridge on

New Year's resolutions... we've all made them, and we've all entered the new year with determination to become a better person, to be friendlier, to be somewhat better off financially, to be thinner, to have longer hair, to have shorter hair... well, anyway, you get the picture.

Yes, we've all made these commitments, and so often we find ourselves making the same resolutions year after year.

Time is running short for making this year's resolution list, however, if you run out of time and your a lot like myself, you can just dig out last year's.

SMC hires PR director

Steve F. Martin is the new director of public relations at Shelby Medical Center in Alabaster.

The position became effective January 3, according to hospital administrator Roland Bradford.

Formerly director of media services at Livingston University, Martin brings with him six years experience in newspapers and eight years experience in university relations and publications.

A native of Aberdeen, Miss., Martin is a graduate of the University of Alabama,

"We are delighted to have a public relations director with such a variety of experience to join our administrative staff," Bradford said.

Martin, who now lives in Livingston, replaces Vicki Kessler who resigned last month to reportedly take another job in Birmingham.

Toys for tots

The annual Shelby County Fraternal Order Police Toys for Tots drive was again successful. The biggest single contribution to the drive was the $1,000 from the Alabaster/Pelham Rotary Club's annual Christmas auction. Alabaster Police Chief C.E. 'Bull' Carter accepted the check from the club auctioneer Ken Williams (right). (Of the total $4,000 raised by the auction, $1,000 went to scholarships, $1,225 to Rotary projects, and the rest to local charities.) Sixty Alabama Power employees near the airport raised $264 for toys which were loaded up last week for delivery to Santa last week by, among others, Wayne Holcomb, Larry Lumpkin, Bill Thomas, Pete Levine, Tom Carter and Les Brown.

UM player makes All-American

The University of Montevallo's Theresa "Tee" Straughn has been selected a second team NAIA All-American Volleyball player.

The 5' 4" junior played an instrumental role in the Lady Falcons making a second consecutive appearance in the NAIA National Tournament.

"Tee was the steadiest player we had," said coach Bev Warren. "She came into a complex offense as a setter-hitter and had an outstanding season. At 5' 4" she was one of the most dynamic hitters around because of the height differential she had to overcome. Her enthusiasm carried us a long Straughn was named to the NAIA All-District 27 team earlier in the year after she helped lead the Lady Falcons to the District 27 title and a berth to the National Tournament.

Her versatility was shown as she led or was second on the team in five statistical categories. She was at the top of the stats in assists with 726, attacking percentage 37 and serving percentage 97 and was second in kills with 313 and digs 327.

Weather slows county

Police departments throughout the county reported no major auto wrecks, although in the words of one Alabaster officer, "There were lots of cars in the ditch."

In Vincent, former county commissioner Alpha Lowe was answering the telephone at the city hall. "All the gas board employees took off today as part of their holiday, so I came down to answer the calls."

He said that no major problems had come in, but one man nearly turned his car off the railroad over-pass south of town. "One wheel was a foot off the ground," Lowe said, but a passing motorist helped push the car back on the highway. A fire plug blew out in Vincent on Monday, causing water trouble for a time, but Lowe said it was repaired by 6:30 p.m.

Circuit Clerk's office, managed to drive from Vin-

Lowe's wife, Evelyn, who is chief clerk in the cent to Columbiana by a round-about route. She arrived at 8:30, only to find the courthouse closed In Pelham police officer John Ellison said nothing out of the ordinary happened Tuesday morning. "I think people learned from last year, and stayed home," he said. Traffic was light, although stores started opening, and most were open by Calera had problems with frozen waterpipes near radio station WBYE, and two individuals had frozen water meters.

The most serious reported accident due to the storm was a broken leg, suffered by a man who slipped on the ice getting out of his car between the drug store and city hall in Calera.

All entrances to Montevallo were closed by the icy road conditions until mid-morning. Cinders were poured over Holloway Hill on highway 25 and over the Middle Street viaduct to make them passable. The post office attempted no rural route delivery from the Montevallo office, and the stores remained closed through the day.

Christmas came clear but cold

Christmas 1983 turned out to be the coldest on record for most of the United States, and Shelby County did not escape.

Temperatures dropped as low as two degrees over the four-day holiday weekend, which began on Friday for many workers and extended through Monday.

But the cold did not slow down the pre-Christmas activity. Stores were jammed on Friday the 23rd and Saturday the 24th as last minute shoppers bought gifts for their families and stocked up on holiday treats at the grocery

Despite the cold, the days were clear and free of rain or snow.

People traveled freely except for cold-related automobile problems, such as overworked batteries and sluggish engines.

But Tuesday morning, December 27, was something else. (See related story).

Airport improvements pondered

according to Tucker and Chapman.

So why is the county airport lagging behind other regional airports?

Until last week, one thing that the county facility lacked that other airports have, was an airport authority. The basic idea behind the authority is to concentrate specifically on aviation development in Shelby County.

"The (county) commission didn't have time to do a study," said commissioner John Ames. "There has been no long-range planning since the airport began, and instead of spending money piece-meal, we decided to do nothing."

Ames said that was the reason the authority was Commissioner Jake Morris echoed Ames' view that there wasn't enough time for the commission to focus on what should be done with the airport.

"We could never get together on what we wanted to make out of the airport, and that is what sparked me to push for the formation of an airport authority," Morris said.

Adding that he was glad to see there were people knowledgeable in aviation able to make recommendations back to the commission, Morris said he would "back the authority 100 percent."

Doug Ballard, chairman of the authority, said the first priority will be the installation of a nondirectional beacon the county purchased three years ago. The money allotted for the beacon did not cover the installation cost, so the piece of navigation equipment -- which transmits the location of the airport to pilots -- has been stored on land near the airfield.

Because the authority was created by the commission, the commission spells out the purpose of the authority. Ballard said the commission has not specified anything yet, but he feels the authority's job will be to ask this;

"Do we need an airport, do we keep it like it is, or do we expand it?"

But what Chapman considers one of the main tasks of the authority -- convincing companies to move to an area with an airport which can serve their needs -- will apparently have to wait until the Shelby County facility catches up with its competi-

Initial Public Notice

The Festeral Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) in conjunction with the State of Alabama gives public notice of its intent to determine whether the provision of temporary housing in existing resources under the Temporary Housing Program (Section 404 of the Disaster Rates Aut of 1974) compiles with the President's Order on Floodplain Management (Executive Order 11988). The Federal Emergency Management Agency proposes to provide individual disease victims temporary housing assistance in Jefferson, Sheiby, Dalias and Calhoun Counties as a result of high winds, tornadoes, and excessive rainfall in those counties which are included in the President's declaration of a major diseaser. This notice concerns svaliable nousing units located within the base or one-percent chance floodplain, also known as the 100-year floodplain. Prior to utilization of such resources as temporary housing. FEMA will require that vulnerability to damage by flooding, natural-value-related factors and impact on wetlands be determined.

Although these resources may be located in the floodplain, the Federal Emergency Management Agency's utilization of these resources is been don'the following rationals:

1. That time is of the sesence in providing temporary housing to particular applicants. Suitable temporary providing temporary housing to par-ticular applicants. Suitable temporary housing units within the floodplain may be the only readily available housing.

2. The proposed temporary housing units will not subject an occupant to unreasonable flood risk. Each occupant will be informed if the unit is in the 100-year floodplain.

3. In order to maintain the integrity of existing communities, the oc-cupants proximity to places of business, worship, educational facilities as well as social or ethnic considerations, such units will be us-

Calera ball fields enter on deck circle

by David F. Moore

Calera's 60-acre Oliver Park - already the largest municipal park in Shelby County -- will probably see some capital improvements in 1984.

If approved, current plans call for the construction of two ball fields, one for men's softball, the.

other for combination softball and Calera High School play.

The matter is expected to get approval from the park and recreation board when it meets January 5. The matter will then go to the Calera council, probably on January 9.

The first of several phases of park improvement work is to be financed with some $24,000 in federal revenue sharing funds. Work is expected to begin soon after the first of the year, and be completed in time for the March 31 start of the ball season.

The ball fields are planned for the newer section of the park, where pines and undergrowth now grow.

"We've got a nice little joint over there," said councilman and park board chairman Mark Jones during a Reporter interview. "It should be an interesting year for the park -- if this whole thing doesn't blow up in my face..."

Jones pushed development of the ball fields through the council this fall, over proposals to build a road through basically the same part of the park.

"The road would have dissected the only level land for ball fields," Jones said. "This was the only logical place to put the fields."

Outside logic of location, Jones said there are three reasons for building the ball fields:

•The 'homeless' Calera Eagles for three years have had to play their home games at the University of Montevallo.

•At least a dozen softball teams in the area have to play ball elsewhere because they have no facilities in Calera.

•Tournament play and concessions would help generate additional revenue from the park. Jones said the city averages spending some $50,000 per year on Oliver Park, while the facility presently pulls in only about $2,700 in revenues.

"We know it's virtually impossible to have income balance the cost of the park, so we have to offset as many expenses as possible," he said. "Even though the park is heavily used right now, maybe this'll re-kindle new interest in it."

One major concern over the ball fields, however, is that they could possibly provide too much fun for players and fans -- at least as far as noise levels in neighboring Farris and Dunwar Subdivisions are concerned. Jones said he has a lot of empathy for consideration because he lives in one of the subdivisions himself.

"We do not want to put the fields too close to either property line," Jones said. "We don't want to disrupt people's lives by putting a park in their backyard."

To minimize the noise level — especially in Farris which will be closest to the two new fields — at least a 100-foot buffer zone of dense undergrowth and pines will divide the park and residents, Jones explained. And to cut down on children trampling through yards to get to the park, the present 850-foot barrier fence that now divides the old and new parts of the park, will be re-erected along the Farris boundary.

In addition to clearing and fencing two ball fields, phase one of the project involves lighting the diamond to be used by the high school, running utilities for the future pressbox/ concession stand, and creeting scoreboards.

"I think maybe we can do the entire thing for as little as $20,000," Jones said. "We'll find out for sure when we take bids for the fence."

Plans for the future ball fields and which will one day complete the park were drawn after park committee members studied similar facilities in Pelham, Oxford, Gadsden and Montgomery.

The initial 13.7 acres that the city park was built on were purchased in 1967 for $6,000 from Joseph B. Jeffers, Jr., who agreed to the price on condition that the facility be named after his grandfather, whose last name was Oliver.

In 1981, 46.5 acres were added to the park, making it the largest in the county, Jones said.

Besides Jones, members of the Calera Park and Recreation Board include councilman Larry Farris, secretary Betty Bradley, Evelyn Pierce, Bob Loftin, Roy Loftin, Ernest Wilson and Daisy

The last major physical addition to Calera's Oliver Park was the construction of a running track around Ricky M. Cairns Memorial Stadium. Some 100 to 150 area residents -- such as Deegee and Shanda Schroeder -- reportedly use just the track each day. Park board chairman Mark Jones said he hopes construction of two new ball fields at the park this spring will even further increase usage of the 60-acre facility. (photo by David F. Moore) ast January, a 90-year-old woman faced a critical situation. At the height of cold weather, she was suffering from arthritis and a severe kidney ailment. Medical and heating costs 2018/41 were higher than usual, and her only income was government assistance. As the bills mounted, there was not enough money to pay for heating and the other expenses, too. She had never had to ask for help before. Project SPIARE paid her heating bill when she had nowhere else to turn.

SHARE HELPS THE ELDERLY, DISABLED AND MEDICALLY IMPAIRED.

Monthly one-dollar donations to Project SHARE provided energy assistance for more than 2200 qualifying Alabama families last year. They were not people looking for a way to keep their thermostats turned up. They were looking for help to keep them turned on. Many who really needed help, and had never asked for help before, like the elderly, disabled, and medically impaired, turned to Project SHARE.

Saginaw 'mom and pop' store closes

by Bert Seaman

Thomas Thornton was 52 years old when he started trading at the Aldridge Grocery in Saginaw. That was in 1948.

When he stopped by the store on old US 31 last week to get his favorite snack -- a packaged cherry pie and a strawberry soft drink -he learned the news: the store is closing January 3, 1984.

Now in their early 60's, store owners Pauline and Lacy Creamer have decided to call it a day -- and a career.

The couple have operated the grocery near the Saginaw Lime plant since 1958 when Mrs. Creamer's father died.

Although the store is no longer on the beaten track thanks to the construction of the present-day US 31 and I-65, the business trade is still there. Only now, instead of the motorists who used to stop by on their way to Birmingham or Montgomery, the trade consists mostly of local residents and employees of industries that have located in the

The closing of the business represents the closing of an era in which 'mom and pop' type stores flourished.

When it comes to the prices of the limited items on the grocery's shelves, Mrs. Creamer admits that they are higher than they are in a supermarket. A small store just can't buy in volume.

When the store was in its heyday, the Creamers sold everything from dress goods to feed, and several companies stocked their shelves. "We're down to one company now," Mrs. Creamer said last week. Pointing to a glass jar containing bags of peanuts, the Creamers said it had been there almost since the store opened. The price -- printed in red letters -- reads 5 cents a bag, although inflation has bumped the actual price up to 35 cents. And shoes -- "yes, we sold shoes too," Mrs. Creamer laughed, as she pulled a dust covered box from a dust covered shelf. The price for a pair of ladies black suede shoes listed on the 1949 dated box? Three

In most respects, the store looks the same as it did in Walter Aldridge's day: a pot belly stove stands in the middle of the room, the chest type cold drink box is just inside the door, the meat box, slicer and scale -- all original -- are at the far end of the room. "Oh, we still use everthing," Mrs. Creamer said. If a customer doesn't want a sandwich, the Creamers may slice some baloney for them to eat with crackers.

Always trying to accomodate the people who trade with them, the store owners have extended credit to customers over the years, helping them out when needs arose.

"I kept a baby one time when a lady had to take her husband to the hospital," Mrs. Creamer remembered.

Another item the couple started out with still has its place on the counter, and is still used to total bills. It's their manually operated Victor adding machine.

Packing it in

At one time 'mom and pop' stores were common in rural areas of the country. But under the onslaught of supermarket buying power, legions of convenience stores, and re-routed traffic patterns, this era is now passing. Lacy and Pauline Creamer, who run one such 'mom and pop' store in Saginaw, say that January 3 will be their last day of business. (photos by Bert Seaman)

Incentive is the key in war with weight

Twenty cafetoria employees at the University of Montevallo participated in an incentive weight loss program established by ARA Food Services.

The program was in conjunction with Student Health Services and the Shelby County Medical Center.

"In this program, cafeteria employees voluntarily took part in weekly weigh-ins and private consultations with a registered dietician to achieve as much weight loss as possible this semester in a healthy manner," explained Jeanette Merijanian, SHS coordinator.

Instructors were Diane Bridgewater, a registered dietician with SMC; Theresa Wiggins, a senior dietetic student; and Kim Vandergriff, a graduate intern in the counseling center, who also worked with the employees' exercise program.

Cafeteria employees, Ms. Merijanian said, traditionally have weight problems because of their jobs. The weight loss program was designed to explain to them why they eat and how to eat in a nutritiously sound manner.

As an incentive to lose weight, the employees contributed to a pool, with the money given at the end of the semester to the worker who had lost the most weight. ARA also added the incentive of a $1 per pound lost to all employees.

The winner of the pool was Yolanda Lacey of Montevallo, who not only lost 22 pounds during the semester but also showed a dramatic decrease in blood

Loser is winner

Yolanda Lacey, (left) of Montevallo, recently received a check for having lost the most weight during a semester-long incentive weight loss program for University of Montevallo cafeteria employees. With Lacey are, Diane Bridgewater, a registered dietician with Shelby Medical Center, and Jeanette Merijanian, coordinator of Student Health Services.

Losing weight or cash?

Are you losing weight or just your money?

January seems to be the month for getting back in shape after the holidays according to Attorney General Charles Graddick. Advertisers are keying in on this American fad for finding magic ways to lose weight.

The Attorney General's Office of Consumer Protection reported an increase in the number of complaints from consumers regarding diet fads and weight reducing paraphenalia.

Offers include specialized garments to sleep in and lose weight over night, body or shrink wraps that "melt" fat away, or pills that supposedly either curb appetites without side effects or allow you to gorge yourself and still lose weight.

Other times, clinics offer programs of quick weight reduction through vitamins and low-calorie food diets that can seriously damage one's health.

Even though many people do lose weight through some of these programs statistics show that 90 to 95 percent regain the pounds and inches when they resume normal eating habits Graddick says.

Rubber sweatsuits and wraps have no effect on fat deposits and will not dissolve fat, even temporarily he adds. This treatment may cause a loss of inches or pounds due to heavy sweating. but the fluids are soon replaced by the body through eating and drinking. A serious side effect, dehydration, can occur when there is rapid and excessive fluid

Starch blockers are pills that have been touted as allegedly blocking or impeding starch digestion and thereby helping in weight control. Advertisers claim they eat up to 600 calories a day. The Food and Drug Administration has found that some users of these products experience nausea, diarrhea and severe stomach pains. The pills are especially bazardous to diabetics Graddick

If you need to lose weight, spend your money on a pair of walking shoes or a balanced lower calorie diet the Attorney General advised. Check with your physician before beginning any diet program, either on your own or through a clinic.

For more information contact the Food and Drug Administration, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Maryland 20857 or call the Attorney General's Office of Consumer Protection tollfree 1-800-392-5658.

Before the opening of the 'new' US 31, Mrs. Creamer's fingers were kept busy totaling up sales.

"This was one busy highway before the mid 1950's" Creamer remembered.

Company houses belonging to the lime plant were all over the area then. "And when it was pay day at the lime plant, this store would be filled," Mrs. Creamer reported.

"Oh, it's different now," she mused. "Back then my husband would deliver groceries because everyone didn't have a car."

In the early days of the business, the store even carried linament and various brands of tonic.

Produce was sold, too, Mrs. Creamer noted, pointed out a bunch of bananas in an old photograph which showed her father standing behind the counter.

Today, truckers from nearby plants and people in the neighborhood mainly stop for gasoline, cigarettes, cold drinks, sandwiches and other snacks.

"We have maybe 30-40 customers a day," Creamer said.

Explaining why he and his wife decided to close the business, he said, "We just felt like we worked long enough."

"Now I'll have time for the things I love," his wife remarked. Those things include painting, embroidering and other types of handwork.

Creamer said that he would continue to drive a school bus, and maybe try and pick up his golf game where he left off a few years ago.

But the couple realize it won't be easy making

But the couple realize it won't be easy making the adjustment to not being in the store five days a week.

No decision has been made on what will be done with the building. "I guess we'll think about it a while," Creamer said.

Longtime customer

Eighty-eight year old Thomas Thorton -- making his standard snack purchase -- is one of the customers that has continued doing business with Creamers over the years. Although 'Mom and Pop' Creamer still average 35 customers a day, they say it's time to close up shop.

Neither of their daughters has any interest in opening a business there.

However, six-year old granddaughter Mindy Noe wishes the store would remain open. She enjoys spending time there with her grandparents.

The Creamers' daughters are Jane Noe of Alabaster and Hilda Bynum of Bluff Park. The Bynums have two married daughters.

Chelsea FD elects leader

The Chelsea Fire Department held elections last week to determine officers for the new year.

Verne Craig was reelected as chief and Don King and Jack Lee were made 1st and 2nd assistants, respectively.

Gary Fisher was named secretary and Allen Morgan was appointed treasurer.

Elected to the board of directors were chairman Bill Weldon, Wallace Blackerby, Stanley Chesser, Larry Hudgins, Roger Kennedy, and Rusty King.

The department reported that its 20 active volunteers made 88 runs in 1983 -- thus far.

The department also added a utility truck this year.

Ballet comes to UM stage

The Joffery II Dancers -- the 'farm team' of the Joffery Ballet -- will perform at UM's Palmer Hall Jan. 16 at 8 p.m.

The Joffery II Dancers is a company of 16 young professional dancers enrolled in a program deisigned to prepare them to be soloists in the Joffery Ballet and other professional ballet and dance companies of the world.

Nearing its 15th birthday, Joffery II has trained more than 150 young professionals. Among major dancers who have been associated with Joffery II are Peggy Lyman of the Martha Graham Dance Co.; Yoko Ichino of American Ballet Theatre; and choreographer William Forsyte, formerly of the Stuttgart Ballet and now resident choreographer of the Munich Opera.

Tickets to the Jan. 16 performance at UM will be available at the door.
